3-Billion Dollar Tax Bill Passed by House; Joint Return Killed

Effort to Recoup 300 Million Loss Of Revenue Through Recommittal Fails

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Shorn of joint income tax requirements, the three billion 220 million dollar defense tax bill passed the House yesterday by a 389-to-30 record vote.

The mandatory joint return provision was knocked from the bill by a 242-to-160 separate vote before final House action sped the measure to the Senate.

Defeat of the joint return provision stripped 300 million dollars in prospective revenue from the bill, but the House made no effort to recoup the amount. A motion to recommit the legislation to build it back to the 3½ billion dollar tax goal was shouted down.

Conditional opposition of the President, and a solid House leadership front against forcing husbands and wives to pool income for tax purposes, paved the way for a dramatic upset of the provision.

Committee Is Reversed

The Ways and Means Committee, rarely licked in a tax fight, was reversed on the requirement as a majority of Republicans backed Speaker Sam Rayburn and his Democratic leaders against Committee Chairman Robert L. Doughton.

For more than two hours debate raged on the issue, with three women members and representatives of eight community property States opposing the reform as a threat to the family unit and an invasion of women's rights. In vain, committee members replied that only "a wealthy few" would be hit by the tax and marital ties would be severed.

New Effort Due in Senate

The committee considered substituting recommendations for separate returns in all the States, with drastic increases in individual rates. But time was short and no substitute plan was approved. Shy of its revenue objective, the bill went to the Senate, where an effort will be made to boost the revenue. Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee called a meeting tomorrow to consider the House bill in executive session.

Missing also from the bill were the President's proposals for basing excess profits taxation chiefly on invested capital and lowering individual tax exemptions to $750 for single persons and to $1,500 for married. The committee had disapproved these and under the rule no amendments could be offered independently.

But the bill as passed carried the highest individual tax rates ever imposed here, starting surtaxes at $15,000 in Bank

President and First Lady Save by Joint Returns' Death

President and Mrs. Roosevelt were among the married couples benefiting by House refusal yesterday to approve mandatory joint returns on husbands and wives.

At least that was the story told in Capitol lobbies and by members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Current estimates were that the House, besides washing its hands of a controversial tax, saved the White House couple between $15,000 and $16,000 in income taxes by striking out the proposal.

Combined income of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt was variously estimated at between $250,000 and $275,000 a year at a recent executive meeting of the Ways and Means Committee, it was learned.

Reports of this meeting filtered into the lobbies, but remained unmentioned in debate. Possible effects of joint returns on Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt were fully aired at the committee meeting, which followed receipt of the President's letter asking modification of the tax.

No member of the committee alleged personal interest.

During last Saturday's committee tete-a tete, it was mentioned that Mrs. Roosevelt, through radio broadcasts, columns and lectures, must be earning about $200,000, against her husband's $75,000.

Assuming her income is only $175,000, the Ways and Means Committee's comparative table estimates the Treasury collection on a $250,000 joint return couple at $159,013.80.

Filing separate returns, a couple with the same combined income would pay only $143,162, if one spouse received 70 per cent of the income.

President Roosevelt in his letter did not oppose the joint return principle, but indorsed Treasury suggestions for "substantial relief to earned income of husband and wife."

Mrs. Roosevelt's income, like her husband's, is chiefly in personal earnings.

Bitter Debate

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The Senate today is expected to approve by a big majority the Administration bill to extend to 30 months the maximum service period for selectees, National Guardsmen and Reserve officers.

Administration leaders yesterday obtained unanimous consent to a vote on the Taft amendment at 1 p. m. and predicted that action on the bill could be completed by late afternoon.

Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, majority whip, expressed confidence that no more than 30 votes can be mustered against the bill or in support of the Taft amendment.

Isolationists Take Floor

The amendment, generally recognized as a test of strength on the bill itself, would limit service of selectees to 18 months and that of Guardsmen and reservists to 24 months, with dismissals of selectees to begin next April at the rate of 50,000 a month and induction of new men to proceed at the same rate.

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared the way for the House to take up the legislation today, approving a rule which would limit debate to two days.

Isolationists held the floor during most of yesterday's five-hour debate on the draft extension bill, Senators Nye (Republican), of North Dakota; Brooks (Republican), of Illinois, and Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, leading the assault on the measure.

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, was prompted at one point in the bitter debate to observe that "some people seem to hate England more than they love America."

Brooks Applauded

Another militant supporter of Administration foreign policy, Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, replied to suggestions by Nye that Canada had a more lenient conscription policy than the United States by asserting that this country would have to be maintaining 1,200,000 men overseas and training 2,300,000 men for overseas duty if it were to equal the Canadian effort, in view of the relative population of the two nations.

"We haven't yet become a British colony," Nye answered, drawing a wave of applause from the crowded gallery.

"And there are some Senators here," Pepper cried, "who do not

U. S. Gives Reds Arms Priority; Nazis Shift Blitz to Ukraine, Pincers Drive Threatens Kiev

Kremlin Concerned For Southern City; New Salient Driven Toward Leningrad

By the Associated Press

The Russians indirectly admitted a considerable German gain today with an announcement that fierce fighting had progressed in the direction of Kholm, on the front midway between Leningrad and Smolensk.

Kholm, a town on the southeast side of a vast marshland, is on the Lovat River, some 70 miles southeast of Porkhov, where heavy fighting has been raging for days.

Violent fighting also is under way, the Russians said, in the Smolensk sector which guards the route to Moscow, and in the direction of Bel Tserkov, 50 miles south of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

The Soviet communique said the Red air force was cooperating with ground forces in dealing blow after blow upon Hitler's panzer units and ground troops.

Ukraine Chief Objective

The German offensive into the Ukraine, in parallel drives directed at the engulfment of Kiev, appeared yesterday to be giving the Russians great concern, but there were indications that the invaders' pressure had been relaxed somewhat in other theaters.

This was suggested by the Nazis themselves in making it clear that the conquest of the Ukraine was for the moment objective No. 1, apparently taking precedence over the thus far unsuccessful campaign at the Moscow approaches about Smolensk, and by their hints that an assault of extraordinary violence was in preparation in the south.

The German high command declared that vital Soviet rail communications in the Ukraine already had been cut by German and Hungarian motorized troops operating ahead of a great force which apparently was developing a plan of battle similar to that tried so long at the center in the vicinity of Smolensk.

Columns Are Thin

These advanced columns, unofficial informants in Berlin reported, were drawn out far and thin and swinging left and right to try to destroy the southern Red armies piecemeal. So far as could be judged, the Germans at some points were within 50 miles or less of Kiev, but not apparently in great strength.

That their maneuver involved a certain amount of peril for the invaders, however, was acknowledged in Berlin, where it was said that the Russians were counter-attacking bitterly in an effort to break the far-separated German spearheads.

As to the old struggle about Smolensk, the German command asserted that the bulk of a major Red force defending the area just east of Smolensk had been destroyed and that the surviving units faced dissolution. This familiar claim—there have been many official German reports of Russian forces entrapped and destroyed at the center—was visibly weakened, however, by admissions in Berlin that the Soviet conceivably might be able to form still another defense line.

Russians and British Are Put on Par; Former Won't Need Lend-Lease Funds

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States last night opened its arsenals to Russia, pledging the Soviets priority on arms orders and "unlimited" export licenses to strengthen their resistance against Hitlerism.

Renewing for the fifth year the United States-Russian trade agreement, Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, told the Russian Ambassador, Constantine A. Oumansky, that the United States had decided to give Russia "all economic assistance practicable."

The American decision, revealed in an exchange of notes between Welles and Oumansky, thus raised Russia to equal rank with Great Britain as a partner with the United States in the world-wide onslaught against Nazism.

In Defense of U. S.

"I am pleased to inform you," Welles wrote to Oumansky, "that the Government of the United States has decided to give all economic assistance practicable for the purpose of strengthening the Soviet Union in its struggle against armed agression. This decision has been prompted by the conviction of the Government of the United States that the strengthening of the armed resistance of the Soviet Union to the predatory attack of an aggressor who is threatening the security and independence not only of the Soviet Union but also of all other nations is in the interest of the national defense of the United States."

Disclosure of the pledges to Russia followed a ringing declaration of defiance of the Axis by Secretary Hull, who returned to the helm of the State Department yesterday after a month's rest.

Hull, who kept closely in touch with international affairs during his absence, said in a statement that "full effort and ever-increasing production and preparation for defense" would assuredly bring about "a successful resistance" to what he termed "the forces of barbarism."

No Figures Specified

While the agreement with Oumansky specified no maximum figure of purchases that Russia may make in this country, it provided for assistance in the following forms:

1. "Most friendly consideration" for Soviet requests to place orders here for defense materials.

2. Priority assistance, on the same basis employed by Great Britain to speed completion and

Vichy, Aug. 4.—The French government assured the United States, in an authorized statement tonight, that it refuses to surrender empire military bases to Germany or any other power and announced that strategic Dakar has been placed in a "full state of defense."

The assurance to the United States, that the recent cession of military facilities to Japan in Indo-China will not be repeated, answered a stern warning Saturday by Undersecretary of State Welles.

Welles hinted that a diplomatic break would follow if Marshal Petain's government submitted to fresh German demands for a broadening of French-German "collaboration" on a military basis.

Paris Press Warns Vichy

(It was understood that Germany had demanded the right to "protect" French African possessions, especially Dakar, and the return of Pierre Laval to power in the Vichy government.)

The German-controlled Paris press came out flatly today and warned Vichy that it faces "tragic consequences" unless it agrees to "political and military collaboration for defense of her colonial empire, as in the case of the Far East. The press said there must be an immediate "radical change in men and methods" in the Petain government.

"From Any Quarter"

The newspaper L'Oeuvre, pressing the German demands, alleged that United States Ambassador William D. Leahy had "offered American aid to help France resist and defend her African empire against Germany."

The announcement that Dakar, closest point to South America, is in a "full state of defense" was made

U. S. May Send Ship to Orient For Nationals

Many Are Marooned As Japan Cuts Off Direct Sailings to U. S.

By Hallett Abend
Copyright by New York Times

Implying that there is a probability of sending another merchant ship to the Far East to bring home American citizens now marooned in Japan and in other parts of East Asia, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said yesterday that he is studying the problem created by the fact that more than 100 Americans are now seeking to return to this country from Japan. They are unable to do so because the Japanese government has canceled all sailings of Japanese ships to this country.

Pointing out that similar problems had been coped with concerning American citizens in various parts of the world since the war began in September, 1939, the Secretary of State reiterated that the American Government always cooperates with its nationals whatever the circumstances may happen to be.

The reason that no immediate action has been taken, the Secretary said, is because the plight of Americans in Japan did not become critical until today, when Japan, in effect, canceled for an indefinite period all sailings to the United States.

Return Advised Before

Hull recalled that Americans in Japan, Korea, Manchuria, China, Hongkong and French Indo-China twice had been officially advised to come home. The first such advice was given last October, and then two large passenger liners were diverted to bring the refugees home. The advice to evacuate all portions of the Far East occupied by Japan or menaced by Japanese occupation was repeated in the spring of this year.

Whatever new action is taken will almost certainly apply not only to the Americans marooned in Japan but also to those living in the Japanese-occupied coastal cities of China. Although several thousand Americans have left the Far East as a result of State Department warnings, there are still about 4,000 civilians there, mainly in Shanghai. American armed forces in China include 500 Marines divided between Tientsin and the legation

Keels were laid for the aircraft carrier Cabot, two light cruisers, ten destroyers, three submarines, 34 mine sweepers of various types, two mine layers, five submarine chasers and additional auxiliary craft.

Autoists Face Curbs if Gas Curfew Fails

Save Voluntarily To Avoid Crack-Down, Snow Warns D. C.

Threats of compulsory restrictions on the gasoline purchasing and consumption habits of motorists—here and along the entire Eastern Seaboard—were renewed last night by defense conservation authorities.

In the face of heavy buying just before the first gas curfew became effective at 7 p. m. Sunday, local and Federal officials again warned that restrictive measures will be instituted if the hoped for voluntary cooperation program breaks down.

"We are more than anxious to have the voluntary plan work out," said Maj. Beverly C. Snow, chairman of the District Petroleum Conservation Committee, "but if it doesn't, some type of restriction will follow."

He said he didn't know what the restrictions might be, but recalled that Federal Petroleum Coordinator Ickes has repeatedly threatened some form of action if the present volunteer program fails to achieve its purpose.

And from the "Oil Czar" came a reiteration of his earlier compulsory warning—to be adopted if, when adequate figures are available, it is found the motoring public is not cooperating.

In a statement last night, Ickes said compliance with the first night's curfew on gas sales was "very satisfying," but advised motorists that unless they curtailed the use of motor fuel voluntarily "more drastic steps will have to be taken."

Reaction of dealers in the 17 Atlantic States affected "were, in the main, enthusiastic," said Ickes.

"In fact," he added, "we have even received requests from station operators in States outside the affected area that they be allowed to go along with us in this program."

In Canada, the Associated Press reported motorists generally are observing official pleas for slower highway speeds and cessation of unnec-

D.C. Policeman Kills Alleged Assailant

A patrolman last night shot and killed a man and critically wounded the victim's brother, after the two attacked him in an alley, according to District police.

The dead man is Jasper Cobb, 38, Negro, of 1404 Belmont Street Northwest. His brother, Edward, 28, is seriously wounded, with a bullet in his abdomen.

The patrolman, Donald R. Webber, 26, of 1230 Queen Street Northeast, attached to Thirteenth Precinct station, was placed under technical arrest pending investigation into the shooting, which took place in an alley behind 2304 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Asked for Auto Card

According to Webber's statement, he observed the Cobb brothers in the alley beside an auto, the ventilator of which was broken. He questioned them, and on being told it was their auto, asked for their registration card. At this point, the elder brother, Jasper, began using abusive language. When Webber arrested Jasper for intoxication, the brothers attempted to wrest his service revolver from him, and the patrolman fired.

Police said they obtained two conflicting statements from the wounded brother. Edward said first that he had attacked the policeman only after the latter had beaten his brother with a nightstick, but later, according to police, Edward said that he had merely attempted to prevent the policeman from arresting his brother.

Garfield Hospital doctors said that three bullets had killed Jasper Cobb, but there were no signs of his having been beaten. Police and the coroner's office undertook separate investigations.

Army Discharges Ex-Head of Hiking Club for Flat Feet

Years of tramping the Maryland and Virginia countryside with the Wanderbirds Hiking Club did not condition the feet of the club's past president, William H. Ball, the way one might have expected it to.

Inducted into the Army under the Selective Service Act on June 27, Ball received his discharge last week because of disability—namely, flat feet.

Former employe of the Internal Revenue Department here, Ball is 33, and has been an active hiker for many years. Although he has not arrived home from Fort Wallace, Tex., where he was stationed, last night, his father, Fred Ball, 1861 Ingleside Terrace Northwest, said that his son had been troubled with pains in his feet.

The camp doctor, the father related, then told him that he was being discharged because his feet weren't in condition for active duty.

He is expected home within a day or two, but whether he will resume his hiking activities is not known.

Roosevelt Cruise Is 'Newsless,' but Rumors Are Rife

Special Dispatch to The Post

New London, Conn., Aug. 4.—President Roosevelt was at sea tonight on his "newsless" vacation cruise, trailed by a flood of rumors ashore as to his destination, if any.

One rumor was that the President was going to meet Winston Churchill at sea. Another was that he had an Atlantic rendezvous with Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator, who was expected to be flying from London at any moment. Still another was that the President was going to drop in on Iceland, to see how the Atlantic patrol was working. All were without any apparent foundation.

How Long Should Draftees Serve?

Post Readers Ready to Aid Widow Robbed of Savings

Moved by the plight of Mrs. Rose Fones, 74-year-old widow, of 416 Third Street Northwest, whose life savings were stolen last week, a number of Washingtonians yesterday called The Post, inquiring how they could help her.

The Post will be pleased to receive contributions from all wishing to help her. Contributions may be left at the desk in The Post lobby.

A woman, unknown to Mrs. Fones, handed her $2 across the fence, saying she would try to do more later on. Mrs. William Crozier, 1737 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, phoned The Post that she desired to help, as did L. M. Bolton, with offices in the Investment Building. Another was Peter Papoulakos, of 918 G Street Northwest.

Police yesterday sent Detective Sergt. Elmer Lewis, of the Robbery Squad, to Bristol, Tenn., to return a suspect in the case. The man, formerly a roomer at the house where Mrs. Fones has resided for two months, was reported to have had only $18 at the time of his arrest.

Mrs. Fones told police that $1,167 was taken sometime between Thursday and Sunday from the mattress of her bed.

She said yesterday that she hadn't been able to eat or sleep since her loss. She held the $2 the woman gave her across the fence tightly in her hand. She is staying on at the rooming house, simply waiting to see what happens next, she said.

D. C. Stores Act To Stop 'Runs' On Silk Stockings

Local department stores, in an effort to stop heavy silk stocking buying and to spread their supply over as many customers as possible, yesterday voluntarily agreed to sell but six pairs to each person.

Prior to this agreement, one merchandise manager said, many individual silk stocking sales were running in the dozens. Notwithstanding yesterday's curtailment of individual sales, it was reported gains as high as 150 per cent were made over last Friday's silk stocking buying.

The mass movement, which began quietly last week when the President froze Japanese assets in this country, gained momentum Saturday when the Government ordered stoppage of silk processing, and reached its peak yesterday when women realized just what had happened.

Several local stores reported they would face a silk stocking shortage within a week if the current volume of sales continues. However, it was said such estimates were hard to make because of the uncertainty of future shipments.

German Legation Accused

Arrests Break Up Nazi Plot To Subvert Colombian Army

By the Associated Press

Bogota, Colombia, Aug. 4—Minister of War Castro Martinez announced tonight that the government was investigating attempted subversive activities within the Colombian Army and that an undisclosed number of persons had been detained.

There were reports that at least one German was among those detained but the German legation stated that no German national was held.

"A number of private individuals have been in contact with a group of army subofficials," the minister of war said, "in an attempt to institute subversive activities within the armed forces.

"The situation has been cleared up and at no time was the national sovereignty threatened."

Castro Martinez added that no active army men were held.

Bogota radio stations reported that Nazis were behind the attempt to undermine the army. The government check-up was said to have begun more than six weeks ago.

For months the German Legation has been printing a special Spanish edition of the German army bulletin for distribution to Colombian armed forces, an informed source said.

This informant said it was common sight to see uniformed officers and soldiers calling at the legation to obtain the bulletins and other Nazi printed material.

Nazis Shift Blitz to Ukraine; Kiev Drive Held, Reds Imply

Defenders Broken In Moscow Salient, Germans Claim

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Tuesday), Aug. 5.—German sources announced early today that Nazi columns were fighting encircled Russian troops south of Kiev in a "battle of annihilation" now in full swing and paralleling reported destruction of Soviet forces near Smolensk.

They pictured the weight of the German offensive as having shifted from the Smolensk area, where Russian resistance was declared to have been broken, to the Kiev sector, where the high command said Red troops were isolated from railroad supply lines.

In the drive on Leningrad, German pressure on Soviet forces was increasing, a military spokesman said.

Portions of two Russian units were said to have surrendered to encircling German troops northwest of Lake Peipus, on the Estonian frontier.

Russian railroad communication have been cut by German and Hungarian troops thrusting deep into the Ukraine toward Kiev, it was officially declared.

Along the central front the bulk of a major Red force defending the Moscow approaches has been destroyed in a trap east of Smolensk, it was announced.

Surviving units of the Soviet army in the Smolensk theater, it was added, face dissolution.

These parallel but far-separated victories were announced by the Nazi high command in a communique which pictured the Russians as suffering disaster on two of the three major areas of the front.

Moscow Road Not Clear

As to the center, however, it was conceded that despite the demolition of another major obstacle on the way to Moscow the bitterly resisting Russians might be able to organize still other defenses before the city.

South of Kiev, where German tank units were declared to have broken down the Red defense lines to burst out into the flat, open country, a battle similar to the Smolensk action appeared to be developing.

The primary objective in each instance, it was stated, was the same: to destroy the Russians rather than to push them back.

Thus in the Ukraine, German accounts indicated, encirclement maneuvers were being carried out by motorized detachments thrusting deep into enemy country in column formation and then swinging to right or left to pinch off Soviet forces.

Columns Are Thin

Military commentators admitted that these thrusts were under vicious attack and the Soviet troops were trying to cut the long, thin and swinging German columns.

But, asserted a commentator for the official German news service, the Russian organization usually is not able to get enough troops at the right place in time to nip off these surprise advances, behind which mighty land and air power are concentrated.

Commenting on these running tactics, the authoritative commentary, Dienst aus Deutschland, observed:

"The size of the encircled area or the time required to liquidate it is not important. What counts is that the enemy is grabbed; he can't retreat and he is destroyed."

In the aerial offensive the high command reported an overnight bombing attack on Moscow, in which supply and armament centers were declared hit along with an important traffic junction "in the region of the source of the Dvina River."

54 Tanks Smashed

Helsinki, Aug. 4 (AP).—Finnish troops driving toward Petrozavodsk, a key Russian city on the Murmansk-Leningrad railroad, were reported tonight to have smashed 54 Soviet tanks and four armored cars in bitter fighting north of Lake Ladoga.

The newspaper Ilta Sanomat said Soviet counterattacks had failed to check the Finnish drive, and the high command said the Russians had lost great numbers of men.

500,000 Reds Mass to Drive On Finland

By Edward W. Beattie, Jr.
United Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 4.—A Russian army of more than 500,000 men, led by Gen. Gregori M. Stern, was reported in advices reaching London tonight to be preparing to launch Russia's first real offensive of the 44-day-old war on the Karelian Isthmus about 65 miles north of Leningrad.

Aerial reconnaissance was said to have revealed a steady flow of Russian military supply trains northward from Leningrad and formidable Red army concentrations moving up to a 60-mile-long front reaching from Kexholm on the west shore of Lake Ladoga westward to Viipuri.

As the Russians moved up to positions behind the former Finnish Mannerheim Line, smashed by Russian forces under Gen. Stern after he took charge of the war against Finland in December, 1939, the Finns were said to be rushing forces eastward from the Hango area to meet the threat.

There was a possibility, the advices reaching London said, that the massing of Gen. Stern's large forces along the Kexholm-Vipuri line might be a bluff to draw off Finnish and German troops from other northern frontiers.

Million Reds in Sector

The Red army's forces on the northern front, including the defense of Leningrad against Germany's attempted encirclement, were estimated here to have totaled 1,000,000 men when Germany's attack on Russia was launched on June 22, against about 100,000 Germans and 300,000 Finns.

On the Karelian Isthmus, the Red army was said to have had at least 500,000 troops, against about 200,000 or 250,000 Finns.

The outcome of the Battle of Leningrad itself, where the Russians are battling German attacks from the south, southeast and west, probably will determine whether and when Gen. Stern's offensive on the isthmus is to be unleased, it was said.

The Russians also were reported to be massing for attacks north of Lake Ladoga, indicating their intention of defending the vital Leningrad-to-Murmansk railroad and the Stalin Canal, both important as communication lines with Soviet forces on the Artic front around Murmansk.

Britain was urged by military strategists today to mass all available men in Syria and Iraq in preparation for a new clash with Germany if the Nazi armies succeed in capturing Kiev, which they now threaten, and swing south into the Caucasus.

Soviet military leaders were reported to have acknowledged to Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's lease-lend administrator, who flew back to London Sunday from Moscow, the possibility of Kiev's fall.

Strategists asserted that Britain apparently is unanble to strike in force at any German flank, largely because the Royal Air Force has not yet gained sufficient strength, and a concentration of men in the middle east was the best use of British man power at the moment.

Also, there is the possibility that major warfare will reopen in Libya.

Some well informed observers contend that the real battle of Russia is just about to start and the fierce combats of the past six weeks have been preliminaries to the huge fight ahead.

Smolensk Battle Is Still Raging, Moscow Reports

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Tuesday), Aug. 5.—The Red army, battling bitterly against a double drive into the Ukraine, reported today the Germans have smashed another triangular wedge into the northern flank of the front halfway between the Smolensk salient and Leningrad.

The Moscow war bulletin declared fierce fighting had developed in the vicinity of Kolm, easternmost point of a triangle based on Pskov, 100 miles northwest, and Polotsk, 100 miles southwest.

Kolm, little town in the marshlands north of White Russia, is 70 miles deeper into Soviet territory than Novorzhev, where fighting in this sector was reported last week.

Smolensk Battle Goes On

The Red army said the fighting continued in the Smolensk salient and near Bel Tserkov, southern arm of the new pincers closing in on Ukrainian Kiev.

Twenty German planes were reported destroyed by bombs on German airdromes and six Russian planes were listed as lost.

The Russians announced that Moscow was attacked by German bombers last night in the twelfth attack on the blacked-out Soviet capital.

Two German planes were reported shot down in the eleventh attack, the night before.

The official communique told of frustrating five panzer assaults on fortifications "in the vicinity of the town of 'K' in the northwestern sector of the front" (apparently the sector before Leningrad) and a counterattack which swept the field of German tanks, armored cars and artillery.

As the Red army reported it, the defending mechanized forces waited until the Germans were worn out and had spent their fuel and then launched a fierce counterassault with their own tanks and armored cars. In all, about 300 vehicles took part on both sides.

Debris Strews Field

A Russian force overwhelmed the first of the German tank columns, the communique said, reducing four German batteries and then raced on into the German rear. This force was credited with knocking out 30 tanks.

"The vast field was strewn with the debris of enemy tanks, armored cars and trucks," the communique said, listing the German losses as more than 100 tanks and armored cars, more than 100 trucks, 45 guns of various calibers, about 20 mine-throwers and at least 1,000 killed.

The Soviet command's afternoon communique, for the second successive day indicating preoccupation with the situation in the south, declared by implication that furious resistance was holding the Nazis in check both in the vicinity of Korosten and Bel Tserkov.

Trying to Close Pincers

The first lies 80 miles northwest of Kiev; the latter about 50 miles to the southwest. The picture thus was one of two roughly parallel and far separated Nazi salients which the invaders appeared to be trying to extend at presumably enormous cost.

All official information available here during the day indicated that neither German column had made any progress of consequence in round-the-clock fighting which for the first time in weeks appeared to be somewhat overshadowing the familiar and mighty contests along the Red center and northern wings.

At the center, about Smolensk, the Soviet general staff reported only that Russian troops were holding unchanged positions.

In Estonia, below Leningrad, the situation was similar.

This, the beginning of the seventh week of the war, saw a sharp increase in the tempo of aerial action by both sides.

The afternoon war bulletin reported that the Red air fleet was on widespread offensive action against every arm of the invading Nazis—motorized and mechanized forces, infantry columns and artillery positions.

Illustrative of persistent German air activity was an official announcement that Nazi planes dropped 100 incendiary bombs about a single target—a bridge over an unidentified river—without scoring a single hit.

Driven off, the Germans returned—this time in a formation of 25 bombers and fighter craft—and six Nazi bombers were declared shot down by Red fighter planes.

Duce, Sending Men to Russia, Calls U. S. Foe

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rome, Aug. 4.—Premier Mussolini, in an oration to a Blackshirt militia unit which was departing for the Russian battlefront, linked the United States to England and Russia as the enemy of the new order in the "clash between two worlds."

The oration was made last Tuesday, Mussolini's fifty-eighth birthday, but was only released to the press today.

"For 20 years," Il Duce was quoted as saying, "the peoples of the world have been disturbed by this alternative, by this iron dilemma: Fascism or Bolshevism, Rome or Moscow. The clash which we wanted and which began in the long ago years of the squadrons of the revolution has not yet reached its epilogue. The drama has reached the fifth act.

"On one side are Rome, Berlin and Tokyo; on the other, London, Washington and Moscow. Not even the slightest doubt can arise concerning the outcome of this battle. We shall win."

[In an outline of the speech carried by the Berlin radio and heard by C. B. S. in New York, the United Press reported, Mussolini was quoted as saying "it matters little whether we have still to fight for a long time." This quotation was omitted from the version released in Rome today.]

Press Attack on U. S.

Meanwhile, the press attack on the United States continued. Adjectives such as "brutal" and "bestial" were liberally sprinkled through a four-column article in Il Giornale D'Italia this afternoon, which purported to describe the treatment given by American authorities to Italian employes at the New York World's Fair and the crew of the Italian liner Conte Biancamano while they were under detention in the United States.

Ellis Island, where most of the detained Italians were kept before they were taken to a concentration camp in Montana (Fort Missoula, Mont.), was described in the article as a place where the beds were full of vermin and the food was spoiled so often that some of the Italians had to go on a hunger strike to obtain decent fare.

In addition, the article continued, all the innocent Italians were treated as common criminals and kept under surveillance. Even on the United States transport West Point, on which some Italians returned to Europe, the surveillance was vexatious in the extreme, it complained.

The article was based on an interview given at Genoa by Arman'o Tosi, who was manager of the restaurant in the Italian pavilion at the World's Fair, and several other Italians.

Their principal grievances were that their knives, razors, pens and scissors were taken away from them while they were being detained; that they were finger-printed and photographed; that several times they had to occupy cells and that their arrests were made an occasion for "theatrical buffoonery."

As for the voyage of the crew of the Conte Biancamano from Cristobal, Canal Zone (where the liner was seized March 30 after its crew had sabotaged its essential machinery and from where the crew was taken to New York aboard the United States Army transport Leonard Wood), the article complained that the women personnel of the crew were subjected to "every annoyance."

Nazis Fine Belgrade Heavily For Sabotage, Turkey Hears

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Aug. 4.—The German commandant at Belgrade, Air Gen. Danckelmann, has levied a heavy fine against the city of Belgrade for sabotage, it is reported tonight by foreign circles here.

The fine is understood to have been instituted after a series of executions and imprisonments failed to halt sabotage and guerrilla warfare.

Meanwhile, sabotage of autumn crops in the Yugoslav Banat is reported particularly effective. Night-riding bands of Serbian Chetniks, it is reported, have destroyed hundreds of acres of grain and wheat crops.

The Germans have retaliated by shooting large numbers of Serbian peasants.

Communist saboteurs in Bulgaria have derailed three trains within the last ten days, it also was reported here.

The three accidents were said to have occurred between Ploovdiv and Sofia, Varna and Sofia and the Yugoslav frontier and the Bulgarian capital. Bulgarian army patrols, it is understood, have been doubled on all Bulgarian railroad main lines and railheads.

Finns' Own Sergt. York

Helsinki, Aug. 4 (AP).—Vilho Raetoe, ordinary warman, as the Finns call privates, became the fourth knight of the Mannerheim Order today by a decree of Commander in Chief Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim.

Raetoe won his citation for capturing single-handed a Russian antitank gun, then sighting along the barrel—its sights had been lost—and demolishing four Soviet tanks.

Long Pants for Italians

Rome, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Italian men, urged a year ago to wear shorts to conserve clothing materials, were told today by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper to get back into long pants.

"Grown men with hairy legs barely covered and short panties resembled ridiculous absent-minded professors," the newspaper said. "To be sure there was a short pants campaign last year in order to economize on cloth but this mediocre idea proved a failure."

Soap Scarce in Italy

Rome, Aug. 4.—Ordinary toilet soap has disappeared as a stock in trade of virtually all the stores in the more prosperous sections of Rome.

Some persons are experimenting with men's shaving cream as a substitute cleansing agent. Wmon who can afford it are cajoling cakes of rare perfumed soap from their hairdressers at prices ranging upward from $1.20 a cake.

Do's and Don'ts—that will help you use 1/3 less gasoline for

DO

1 Have your carburetor adjusted for the most economical mixture of gasoline and air.

2 Have ignition system and spark plugs checked regularly for most economical performance.

3 Keep transmission and differential properly lubricated, and lubricate chassis regularly. Use correct grade of lubricating oil in engine and change it regularly for maximum efficiency.

4 Keep the cooling system clean and filled to proper level.

DON'T

1 Don't speed. Driving at high speed greatly increases fuel consumption. Wind resistance increases by geometric proportion to speed. At 60 miles an hour it is four times greater than at 30. Drive at a reasonable, safe speed and save.

2 Don't make "jack-rabbit" starts. Driving in first and second gear multiplies the consumption of gasoline. Watch your starts at traffic lights—avoid sudden bursts of speed.

3 Don't let your car idle at the curb—don't race your motor when starting. This is hard on the motor and wastes gasoline.

4 Don't use your car unless you have to. Plan your driving. Group your errands.

5 Don't forget others. Share the transportation your car provides—double up with friends going the same way.

Is it the voluntary, American Way!

"I hope that this (saving of gasoline) will be VOLUNTARY. I hope that this VOLUNTARY saving will be undertaken immediately.

"If it is not, then we can only conclude that our many exhortations . . . have fallen on indifferent ears, and that it will be necessary to put into effect some system of INVOLUNTARY RATIONING."

Hope in the Dark: Belgians Find Plane

But Escape Was Still Distant for Fliers; Navigation Instruments Had Been Removed

The two Belgian air officers, whose recent escape to England from Belgium, in a training plane stolen almost directly under the noses of the Nazis, was one of the most thrilling episodes of the war thus far, tell the story of their exploit in a series of interviews, the second of which follows.—(Editor's note.)

By Merrill Mueller,
International News Service Staff Writer

London, Aug. 4 (INS).—"To steal an airplane is one thing! To steal it under the noses of German sentries is something else! But we managed it!"

Jacques, his English tinted with the Flemish accent, carried on the report of the exploits of the two Belgian fliers who resolved to get to England to continue the fight against Belgium's conqueror. For nearly three months they worked in secret preparing their escape—which almost failed—but on the first night of their program, the night they saw their vehicle of escape for the first time, they little dreamed of the troubles before them.

They had pedaled furiously on their bicycles to an auxiliary Belgian air force field outside Antwerp to determine if an old training plane was still kept there. As they approached the field, they came to a sudden halt.

"We saw sentries; two German sentries blocking the road," Jacques explained. "They had not seen us, nor did we believe they had heard us, so we cut off the highway into a wooded lane and skirted the fields we wished to examine. Then we found the cause for the centries."

Jean went on in French.

"Two were guarding a bridge some distance from the field and two more were stationed outside a farmhouse just two fields from the barn where we hoped to find our airplane.

"The farmhouse had been made into an officers' mess for the Reichswehr. Perhaps it was also a small headquarters. A few cars stood in front. The sentries appeared preoccupied with their own conversation," Jacques continued, "so we left our bicycles hidden and crept on hands and knees to the barn.

"It was locked with a huge padlock! We had expected that, however, and had brought keys along." Jean cut in again:

"Jacques could open the Bank of Belgium with a toothpick! He opened the lock with a little, bent old key!"

"It was a poor lock!" Jacques said with a smile.

Into the dark barn the boys crept, feeling their way lest they knock something over and bring the sentries on the run. They finally managed to close the door and then Jean, carefully shielding its beam, turned on his pocket flashlight.

Right in the middle of the barn, covered with dust and straw but apparently intact, was the airplane they were seeking!

In Good Condition, Too

"The engine was intact; the controls intact and the aircraft appeared in good condition—but the Germans had removed every single flight instrument from the dash panel!

"You cannot fly without instruments—especially at night! And our getaway had to be made at night! Our hopes died."

Jean, leaning against the mantel, took up the story from that point:

"It is over and now we can laugh about it—but then we were ready to give up. Finally, I asked Jacques if he knew where we could steal a compass—I thought we could make the other instruments. He said I was crazy. He was right. But we decided to try.

"We examined the gas gauges. There was no petrol and we would need at least three hours worth for our little 90-horsepower engine. We examined the oil tanks—full. But we had to test its quality. Then we crawled out of the barn."

Not four hundred yards from the door as they came out of the barn paced a sentry. Then they relocked the door and crept back to their bicycles—happy with their original success but blue about the seemingly insurmountable problems facing them.

(Tomorrow: From despair to hope to despair, again).

It's Senator O'Daniel, Now

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CONGRATULATORY KISSES—After being sworn in yesterday as the junior Senator from Texas, W. Lee O'Daniel was showered with kisses by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Molly Wrather (right). Mike O'Daniel (left) was also in town to see his father take the oath of office

Without fanfare, W. Lee O'Daniel, former flour salesman, crooner, composer of hillbilly songs and Governor of Texas, came to Washington yesterday, and a few hours later was given a share in holding the reins of the District Government.

Shortly after he was sworn in yesterday as junior Senator from Texas, he announced he would serve on the District Committee. He was also named to the commerce, claims, irrigation and reclamation committees.

"Pass-the-Biscuits Pappy" was met by his newly married daughter, Mrs. Molly Wrather, and his son, Mike, when he arrived yesterday with Mrs. O'Daniel. Also on hand at Union Terminal were Eugene B. Germany, of Dallas, chairman of the Texas State Democratic Committee; Representative and Mrs. Nat Patton, of Crockett, Tex., and Representative Lindley Beckworth, of Gilmer, Tex.

Fills Sheppard's Seat

Victor in a closely contested special election in Texas June 28, O'Daniel's term serves until January 3, 1943, filling the unexpired term of the late Morris Sheppard. His family, with only Soldier Son Pat absent, sat in the spectators' gallery as Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, administered the oath of office. The new Senator then signed his name in the Senate register, and Edwin Halsey, secretary of the Senate, presented him with the pen he had used.

A moment later O'Daniel stepped down from the rostrum and was congratulated first from the floor by Senator Langer (Republican), of North Dakota. Several Texas Representatives also greeted him.

After taking his oath, O'Daniel said that Texas laws automatically terminated his term as Governor of the Lone Star State. He immediately sent a telegram to Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson congratulating him upon becoming the new chief executive of Texas.

The District Committee's new member may have some real surprises for Washington. When asked about suffrage for the Capital City yesterday, he replied, "I believe in letting everybody vote—and without a poll tax, too."

On the matter of extending military service for selectees, the new Senator "passed-the-biscuits." He answered, "I'll have to see what it's all about."

Questions about foreign affairs brought the same type of answers. "Haven't they got that settled yet?" asked O'Daniel. "I'll have to look into it."

More Younger Army Officers Get High Ranks

President Roosevelt yesterday advanced more younger officers of the Army into higher rank, even jumping two lieutenant colonels over the rank of colonel and making them temporary brigadier generals.

Six brigadier generals were nominated to be temporary major generals:

Charles H. White, 57, a native of Taunton, Mass., now commanding the Seventh Division at Fort Ord, Calif.

John P. Lucas, 51, Kearneysville, W. Va., commanding the Third Division, Fort Lewis, Wash.

Oscar W. Griswold, 54, Arthur, Nev., commanding the Infantry replacement center at Camp Croft, S. C.

Simon B. Buckner, jr., 55, Munfordville, Ky., commanding the troops in Alaska, with headquarters at Fort Richardson, Alaska.

Davenport Johnson, 51, Tyler, Tex., assistant chief of the Air Corps, Washington.

Lieutenant Colonels Advanced

Lieutenant colonels promoted to temporary brigadier generals without first serving as colonels, were:

Mark W. Clark, infantry, stationed at the Army War College, Washington, and Muir S. Fairchild, of the Air Corps Chief's Office here.

Colonels promoted to temporary brigadier generals were:

Homer R. Oldfield, Coast Artillery Corps, Panama Canal Department.

George R. Meyer, Coast Artillery Corps, Panama Canal Department.

Jesse A. Ladd, infantry officer at Fort Ord, Calif., who was in charge of the Army guard which took over the strike-bound plant of North American Aviation Corporation, Inglewood, Calif., some time ago.

Albert E. Brown, infantry, chief of the War Department's budget and legislative branch.

Alexander N. Patch, Forty-seventh Infantry, Fort Bragg, N. C.

George E. Stratemeyer, Air Corps executive officer, Washington.

Frayne Baker, infantry officer in the Thirty-fourth National Guard Division, stationed at Camp Claiborne, La.

Gen. Chaffee Honored Again

In addition, Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, who is seriously ill in a Boston hospital, received his second high honor within a few days.

He was nominated by President Roosevelt for permanent appointment as a major general, a rank which he now holds on a temporary basis.

On Saturday, he was presented in Boston with an Oak-Leaf Cluster citation for his Distinguished Service Medal. He won the medal during the World War and the Oak-Leaf Cluster was awarded to him for his work "in organizing and commanding the armored force of the Army."

Medal for Daring Airmen

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—Sergt. James Allen Ward, of New Zealand, second pilot who put out a dangerous fire while spreadeagled on the wing of his Wellington bomber 13,000 feet above Holland's Zuider Zee, has been awarded the Victoria Cross.

Squadron Leader R. P. Widdowson, the Wellington's captain, received the Distinguished Flying Cross and Rear Gunner Sergt. A. R. J. Box the Distinguished Flying Medal for their part in the exploit.

Ward, 21, was flying home from a raid on Muenster one night in July, when the Wellington had a brush with a Messerschmitt.

The front gunner was wounded, the starboard engine damaged, the hydraulic system ruined, the radio knocked out, the undercarriage partly shot away and the bomb doors were loosened. A 4-foot flame poured from a gasoline feed pipe in the wing.

When the air stream blew the chemicals away from the nozzle of his fire extinguisher, Ward kicked a hole in the wing surface to hold to, crawled out and tried to beat out the flames. He finally got the fire under control by stuffing a cockpit cover over it. The plane landed safely in England.

Actress Called To Ellis Island

MERLE OBERON, 30-year-old British actress, has been ordered to appear at Ellis Island today by Immigration officials about her alleged lack of a reentry permit into this country when she flew from Toronto, Canada, to New York yesterday. Miss Oberon flew to Toronto Sunday afternoon to speak on a Canadian radio broadcast for British war relief. When she returned at 2 a. m. yesterday she was retained for questioning because she had no reentry permit, the officials reported. To allow the actress to return to her New York apartment, pending today's hearing, she was paroled in the custody of American Airlines through which she had arranged her flights

Activities by Both Sides Ending Mediterranean War Desuetude

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Aug. 4.—The war in the Mediterranean showed signs of rousing today.

The British declared the Axis has relaxed its siege lines about Tobruk and reported heavy aerial onslaughts on numerous objectives, while the Egyptians acknowledged many casualties from wide Axis raids on the Suez Canal area and the Delta of the Nile.

The Middle East command said British patrols, which have been making nightly raids deep into the Axis lines about Tobruk, cut off on the land side now for 113 days, recently had been unable to make contact with their enemy. The Axis forces have been withdrawing from their forward posts at night, it was said.

Italian Fields Bombed

(The Italian high command said advanced elements at Tobruk were showing "considerable activity" and told of dispersing mechanized forces with artillery.)

The British said whole squadrons of American-made Maryland (Martin) bombers flown by South Africans dropped scores of bombs on targets about Tobruk.

Fragments of numerous grounded Italian fighters were seen flying into the air from explosions in another British raid at Reggio Calabria, on the "toe" of the Italian boot, a communique added.

Direct hits on blockhouses and bombing and machine gunning of searchlights, antiaircraft batteries, barracks and airdromes at Benghazi, Gambut, Berka and Misurata also were reported.

Seventeen persons were killed and 58 injured in the worst raid yet on the Suez Canal area, the Egyptian government admitted. Air raid alarms were sounded last night at Cairo, Alexandria, Suez and Port Said, but the ministry of the interior said no great material damage was done.

Italians Claim Submarine

Rome, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Italian high command today said one of their torpedo boats rammed the big British submarine Cachalot, broke her in two and rescued 91 survivors.

Normal complement of this 1,520-ton Porpoise class mine-laying undersea boat its 55.

FBI Probes Tool Thefts

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 4.—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents began an inquiry today into the theft of valuable precision tools from two Detroit toolmaking factories working on defense contracts to learn whether sabotage was involved.

Using pass keys, the thieves broke into the Majestic Tool & Manufacturing Corporation and the Central Machine Co. plants Sunday, bound the night watchman at each place and stole several hundred micrometers, gill blocks and other instruments valued at $4,000.

"This raid on our plant appears to be more than just an everyday robbery," said John W. Parker, Majestic president. "It looks more like the work of saboteurs."

Both plants, which had been made helpless because of the lack of tools, some difficult to obtain, were able to resume full production late today with instruments procured from competitors, dealers and others.

One of the night watchmen said "the men seemed to know just where to look for the micrometers and they did not seem excited. They worked fast but it took them more than an hour to go through all the tool boxes."

Pen Women Name Moving Day Unit

The District branch of the American League of Penwomen last night formed three committees to begin work on moving the league's belongings out of their clubrooms in the Grafton Hotel. The building is to be taken over by the British Supply Council on September 1.

A decision committee to take care of questions arising in the evacuation process, a house hunting committee to find new quarters, and a moving committee were named at the meeting last night. In addition to the personnel selected for each committee, the local president, Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, and vice presidents, Mrs. Bertha Chaney and Mrs. Edward R. Seal, will serve on all three groups.

Hanover Suffers Biggest Raid

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 4.—Defying bad weather over the Continent, Royal Air Force bombers kept up their pounding of Germany and occupied territories last night, attacking factories and rail centers at Hanover and Frankfort-on-the-Main, as well as the docks at Nazi-held Calais, France. One British plane was lost.

Rain over the Dover Strait kept British pilots in daylight today from continuing their usual tactics of smashing at Nazi shipping, airfields and defending Luftwaffe planes.

The attack on Hanover was believed to be the heaviest of the R. A. F's night operations, bombers attacking rail lines at that important point, which links Berlin with Cologne and Hamburg with Frankfort.

Calais and the French and Belgian coasts took a heavy pounding. Watchers on the English southeast coast reported extremely heavy explosives were dropped for two hours and that the coastline across the Channel was lit by searchlights and the flares dropped by British pilots.

One bomber returning from Germany was attacked twice by a Nazi night fighter, firing cannon and machine-guns. The British rear gunner was wounded and the starboard wing set ablaze. The pilot weaved his plane in the air until he crossed the Zuider Zee and the flames eventually were blown out.

Nazi Version of Berlin Raid

Berlin, Aug. 4 (AP).—D. N. B. reported today that 25 persons were killed in the British raid on Berlin suburbs Saturday night and early Sunday. The news agency said more than half of those killed were outside shelters and urged all residents to stay in their celairs during raids.

British Fleet Reported Seen Off Indo-China

By the Associated Press

Saigon, French Indo-China, Aug. 4.—The great battleship Warspite heads an augmented British naval squadron sent to guard the Empire's interests in the Far Eastern seas, it was reported here tonight.

The reports said the 30,600-ton battleship—first British ship of her class to cruise east of Suez in many years—was seen at the head of a squadron in the Gulf of Siam. This coincided with known British measures to strengthen the land and air defenses of Malaya.

(The battleship has seen action in most major fighting of the war thus far. She led five destroyers into Narvik harbor at the opening of the war in Norway. In March, this year, she headed a victorious British squadron in the two-day battle of Cape Matapan in the Ionian Sea.)

A Japanese aircraft carrier and a submarine arrived at Saigon today and more transports were reported en route. Roads from northern Indo-China were clogged by long lines of trucks carrying Japanese troops, equipment and supplies toward the Thailand frontier.

American business firms prepared to transfer management of their local offices to French staffs and to send American employes home on the first ships leaving Saigon. About 100 Americans remain in southern Indo-China, but two-thirds of them are expected to leave before the end of the week.

Army to Test 'Vest-Pocket' Meals in Field

By the Associated Press

Fort Snelling, Minn., Aug. 4.—Condensed meals, their weight figured in ounces and including the contents of the German "courage tablets," may become the new field ration of the United States's parachute and fast-moving mechanized Army units.

Tests of the new rations under field conditions were ready to start today with a dozen soldiers from this Army post and officers playing the part of guinea pigs. If they are satisfactory, more extensive trials will be made during large scale Army maneuvers next September.

Lieut. Col. Rohland A. Isker, Quartermaster Corps, chief of the Army subsistence laboratory in Chicago, is directing the tests of the diet, which was prepared largely by Dr. Ancel Keys, professor of physiology and physical education at the University of Minnesota Medical School in Minneapolis.

A combination of the German "courage tablets," found to consist mostly of dextrose, a quick-acting, energy-building sugar, and dried foods sufficient to supply an active man's every need, composes the diet. Packaged in 12-ounce meals, the ration is compact enough to be carried in a parachutist's shirt pocket.

The soldiers, members of the military police battalion, are scheduled for a march into rough country and will get their first condensed meal at noon. A march of 15 miles will be completed before the evening meal, also a mere handful. Three such meals will break up another 15-mile march on the following day.

Then comes the laboratory work, with the soldiers reporting to Dr. Keys for thorough examinations to determine how they fared on the concentrated diet.

delivery of Russian orders.

3. Unlimited export licenses, just as enjoyed by other nations resisting aggression.

4. "Favorable consideration" to Russian requests for a share in American shipping facilities to "deliver the goods," presumably across the Pacific.

Exchange of the pledges of assistance gave unusual importance to renewal of the trade agreement with Russia. It became tantamount almost to an economic alliance for mutual defense.

Pact Itself Limited

The trade agreement itself, is of limited scope. It obligates Russia to purchase at least 40 million dollars worth of American goods annually, in exchange for "most favored nation" tariff treatment and other concessions. In practice, this has had little meaning, for Russian purchases have consistently been higher than the specified minimum.

The first trade agreement with Russia was signed on August 6, 1937. In the first agreement year Russia's purchases here were $64,000,000 and her sales here were $22,000,000. In 1938-39 United States exports to Russia were $50,000,000 and imports $24,000,000. In 1939-40 the exports to Russia were $73,000,000 and imports, $24,000,00. In the first ten months of agreement year just ended exports to Russia were $57,00,000 and imports, $22,000,000.

President Roosevelt has said that Russia is able to pay for the goods she needs, and thus is not being considered for lend-lease aid.

May Send Strategic Metals

Payment will be made both in strategic raw materials and in gold or other cash form, it is understood. Secretary of Commerce Jones revealed recently that he had discussed with Oumansky the question of taking Russian maganese and other essential minerals in return for American war supplies.

Harry L. Hopkins was believed to have laid the groundwork for the new aid formula during his recent surprise visit to Moscow.

Oumansky expressed to Welles his country's "gratitude" at the pledges of aid and asserted his confidence that "the economic assistance you refer to in your note will be of such scope and carried out with such expedition as to correspond to the magnitude of the military operations in which the Soviet is engaging."

The promise of priority for Russia was in line with the expression of support for the Soviets that Welles and President Roosevelt made shortly after the German attack began. They both welcomed Russia to the anti-Axis camp.

Mission Will Speed Aid

A Russian military mission, headed by Gen. Filip I. Golikov, has been negotiating here for supplies for more than a week and will probably help translate into actual equipment last night's promise of American aid. The Russian mission is expected to set up headquarters here similar to the British supply council.

Oumanksy made the following statement after completion of the accord:

"The popularity and prestige of America in my country, where it has always been high, will be strengthened by this new agreement.

"I consider the understanding of very great importance for the following reasons:

"First, it extends to the Soviet Union in full your fixed policy of giving all aid to countries struggling against aggression.

"Second, it creates a firm basis for the implementation of that policy.

"Third, it is certain to promote the feeling of cooperation and friendship between the two countries."

Hull Is Confident

Hull was absent from his desk at the State Department during a momentous month that saw the start of the German invasion of Russia, the Japanese occupation of Indo-China and the Anglo-Dutch-American economic reprisals, new reported demands for French bases and the sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor.

Back at work yesterday, he made the following statement of his faith in an ultimate democratic victory:

"I think that no rational person needs any argument to convince him that during the weeks of my absence the most clinching demonstration has been given of what some of us for some years have insisted was being planned. That is, that there is a world movement of conquest by force, accompanied by methods of governing the conquered peoples that are rooted mainly in savagery and barbarism.

"That situation calls for ever-increasing preparations for our national defense and ever-increasing production of military supplies both for ourselves and for those who are resisting the would-be world conquerors. On these points there should be absolute unity among the American people, in the first place, and among the other free peoples who have not yet been conquered.

"With full effort and ever-increasing production and preparation for defense, whenever and wherever such defense is most effective, a successful resistance to the present world movement of invasion and destruction can be made and, in my judgment, undoubtedly will be made. I feel very strongly that with unity of purpose, maximum effort and firm determination, the remaining free peoples of the world will win and that those who are at present the victims of the forces of barbarism can hope for the restoration of their human rights and liberties."

M. M. Thayer, 53, Agriculture Dept. Official, Dies

Marcus Morton Thayer, 53, an official of the Department of Agriculture for 27 years, died Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Francis Farr in Weymouth Heights, Mass., friends here learned yesterday.

He was chief of the Division of Business Administration of the Extension Service, and special assistant to the director.

In the World War he served in the Marine Corps and was later a member of the American Legion. He was unmarried and is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Farr, and Miss Esther Thayer, of Boston, and a brother, Paul Thayer, of Boston.

Rites in Detroit For Miss Pelham, Trustee of Shrine

Funeral services for Miss Meta E. Pelham, 85, of Detroit, Mich., a trustee of the Frederick Douglass Memorial and Historical Association which maintains the Frederick Douglass home in Anacostia as a national shrine, will be held today in Detroit. Miss Pelham died from a paralytic stroke Saturday at her home.

Twenty years ago when the National Association of Colored Women voted to pay off the mortgage on the Douglass estate and assume management of the home, Miss Pelham and the late Mrs. Nettie L. Napier, of Nashville, Tenn., led the drive to raise funds. Because the women of Michigan under Miss Pelham's leadership raised more money than any other State, she was elected to life membership on the trustee board.

She leaves two brothers, Robert A. Pelham, of Washington, and Benjamin B. Pelham, of Detroit.

Japanese Deny Clash On Siberian Border

Shanghai, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Persistent though unconfirmed reports circulated today that Japanese and Russian forces engaged in large scale fighting along the Amur River frontier of Manchukuo and Siberia during the weekend and that the Japanese suffered 1,500 casualties.

A Japanese army spokesman said, however, that such a clash was "impossible in present circumstances" especially because border demarkation was now proceeding smoothly.

How House-Approved Bill Would Affect Tax on Incomes

How the House-approved individual surtaxes would affect persons of various incomes and status is shown in the following table, and compared with the present law. In this table all income is considered earned income. Net income is income after deduction of interest payments, contributions, taxes paid and business expenses.

House Passes Huge Tax Bill; Kills Joint Return Provision

5 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, and leaving exemptions where they are.

Corporations would be subject to a surtax for the first time, at the rate of 5 per cent on the first $25,000 of taxable income, and 6 per cent on the balance.

Excess profits tax exemptions were lowered and rates raised 10 percentage points in each bracket, with collections further heightened by computing excess profits before deductions for normal taxes are made.

The present "option" of calculating excess profits taxes by either the average earnings or invested capital methods was retained, despite Administration urging that the latter method alone be used.

Temporary "nuisance" taxes of 1932 were made permanent, with new or steepened excises applied to a long list of commodities and services.

Estate taxes were started at 3 per cent instead of 2, increasing sharply in the middle brackets, with gift taxes following along at 75 per cent of estate rates.

A motion by Representative Buck (Democrat), California, to strike out the 300 million dollar joint return feature set off the fight that resulted in the committee's lone but overwhelming defeat.

Four times the question was put to a vote. Outshouted on a voice vote, Doughton called for a show of noses. The standing count was 179 to 135 for the Buck motion. Doughton asked for tellers, and this time the House voted, 197 to 139, against joint returns. A final roll call confirmed the three previous majorities and sliced joint returns from the bill, 242 to 160.

Only one more motion before passage could be made under the rules, and Representative Crowther (Republican), New York, used that to ask recommittal of the bill to recoup the lost revenue. He lost on a voice vote, and the bill was passed.

House womemn members figured prominently in the debate, with Mrs. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey; Mrs. Bolton, of Ohio, and Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts (Republicans), taking the floor to speak against the joint return.

Mrs. Bolton said the committee had "lightly side-stepped" the question of how many marriages would be dissolved by the provision, in cases where the added tax proved a "last straw." Mrs. Rogers said it was significant that "all of the churches and all denominations" were opposed to the change.

Several speakers attacked the Constitutionality of the reform. Representative Keefe (Republican), of Wisconsin, cited the "Hoeper versus Tax Commission" case in which the Supreme Court ruled Wisconsin's similar State law unconstitutional. Representative Jenkins (Republican), of Ohio, minority member of the Ways and Means Committee, said that if abuses exist in separate returns, "they should be corrected by law and not by taxation."

A woman darted between two of the trucks to catch a bus. Just as she reached it, her hat blew off, settled in the path of the convoy.

Then the Army showed its chivalry.

A convoy driver put out his hand in the wiggle-waggle that signals all the drivers behind him to stop.

Passengers on the bus cheered. The woman ran out and got her hat, smiled and waved to the gallant soldiers.

Surtaxes Tripled in Some Cases

Individual surtaxes approved by the House doubled and tripled taxes of some in the lower and medium brackets, but were modest compared with those asked by the Treasury. The 4 per cent normal tax, existing exemptions and the $400 allowance for dependents were continued. The 10 per cent special defense tax in the 1940 law was made permanent. Heads of families, unless living with spouses, would be prohibited from counting their first dependent. From individuals, the bill would raise about $829,000,000.

Excess profits levies and the new corporate surtaxes proposed in the bill would raise $1,322,900,000. Corporations could choose the "average earnings" method of computing excess profits, under which 95 per cent of average earnings during the 1936-39 period would be exempt, as at present. Or they could choose the invested capital method. This allows profits of 8 per cent on the first $5,000,000 of invested capital and 7 per cent on the remainder.

A special excess profits tax of 10 per cent was levied on the difference between the percentage earned on invested capital in the tax year and the percentage earned in 1936-39.

The capital stock tax was increased from $1.10 to $1.25 per thousand.

New Excises Imposed

Numerous new excises and increases in old ones were estimated to yield about $880,100,000. The tax on distilled spirits was raised from $3 to $4 and excises on wines, cordials and liqueurs were scaled upward according to alcoholic content.

A $5 annual use tax was imposed on automobiles and the automobile manufacturers' tax was increased from 3½ to 7 per cent.. Graduated use rates starting at $5 were levied on boats over 16 feet. A 5 per cent tax on the rate of fare was levied on rail, water, air and bus transportation, with a 35-cent exemption. Monthly telephone bills were subjected to a 5 per cent tax. Soft drinks were taxed at one-sixth cent a bottle and matches at 2 cents a 1,000. Radio stations were taxed on net time sales over $100,000, and billboards were taxed according to size.

A 10 per cent excise was laid on a long list of articles, including photographic equipment, jewelry, clocks and watches, mechanical refrigerators, sporting goods, phonographs and records, musical instruments, luggage, furs, electrical appliances, cutlery, office and store machines, optical instruments other than eyeglasses, and rubber products, not including footwear, tires and tubes or surgical equipment. Exemptions were lowered on club dues, individual cabaret bills were taxed 5 per cent and the tax on playing cards was increased from 11 to 13 cents a deck.

Roll Call on Joint Return Death

Here is the 242 to 160 roll-call vote by which the House struck from the $3,206,200,000 tax bill yesterday the provision requiring married persons to file joint income tax returns:

Assistance Requested

Shanghai, Aug. 4 (AP).—The American Chamber of Commerce at Tsingtao, Japanese-occupied North China, was reported today to have telegraphed the State Department requesting assistance to alleviate the effects of Japanese measures taken in retaliation for the United States freezing of Japanese credits.

Official American reports said that all American businesses at Tsingtao, Chefoo and Dairen had been closed as a result of Japanese-sponsored picketing. Some interferance with American business also was reported from Peiping and Tientsin.

Tokyo's Order Virtually Maroons Americans

By the United Press

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug. 5.—Hundreds of Americans and other foreigners in Japan were affected today by a government order which suspended all ship sailings to the United States, marking a new strain on Japanese-American relations.

There are 621 Americans in Japan excluding several thousand American-born Japanese.

Sailings to South America also will be suspended, it was understood, pending clarification of the attitude of the South American nations toward Japan.

[All sailings to Australia were canceled, shipping circles in Sydney learned, an Associated Press dispatch said.]

The order came as Japanese newspapers gave increasing attention to alleged efforts of the United States, Britain and China to bring Russia into the "encirclement" bloc.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi said in a dispatch from Saigon, French Indo-China, that the Japanese will fortify the French naval base on Camranh Bay as a base of operations against American, British and Chinese encirclement.

The suspension order stranded Americans and other foreigners in Japan because it now is virtually impossible to obtain passage to Shanghai. Ships are sailing from Nagasaki to Shanghai but police restrictions on travel by foreigners in Japan make it impossible to reach Nagasaki.

Reservations for passage from Kobe to Shanghai are filled for weeks ahead. Furthermore, foreigners are not permitted to sail through the inland sea adjacent to Kobe.

The suspension order included the liner Nitta Maru, on which more than 100 Americans had been scheduled to sail Thursday. Many of these Americans already had disposed of their homes, furniture, automobiles and reserve food supplies and now face a problem in obtaining necessities.

There was some speculation, in view of the fact regular sailings were discontinued, whether arrangements would be made for special transportation of nationals.

(Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Undersecretary Sumner Welles in Washington had repeatedly urged Americans in Japan to return home if at all possible.)

In connection with the food problem, Agriculture Minister Hiroyasu Ino, after an inspection tour of flood zones in Chiba and Ibaraki prefectures, expressed surprise yesterday at the extent of damage to crops. He said it was urgent at the present time for Japan to increase its agricultural output.

The Domei news agency reported that the government, at the request of British authorities, had agreed to exempt 80 British and 4 Australian embassy and consular officials from the financial freezing restrictions if similar treatment were accorded Japanese diplomats.

D. C. Probes Drive By Zeta Beta Chi

District Attorney's Office Gets Complaints On Sorority's Phone Membership Campaign

A telephone membership campaign launched in Washington by national officers of Zeta Beta Chi National Sorority, Inc., was being investigated by the district attorney's office last night.

Several new members complained that the "membership applications" which they signed turned out to be contracts to pay $42.50 to the sponsor, World Caravan Guild, Inc., and another $10 to the local chapter.

The girls said failure to pay brought duns and suggestions of legal action.

"Complaints have been made and they are being investigated," said Detective Sergt. Joseph W. Shimon, chief investigator for the district attorney. "That is all I can say at this time about the Zeta Beta Chi matter.

Reports Confidential

"If anybody feels that she has been victimized, we hope she will report the facts to us without delay. A citizen may do so with perfect safety, because we regard such reports as confidential."

The Zeta Beta Chi organization, which has national headquarters in the Woodward Building, made a telephone drive for members in May and June. The enrollees who complained said they signed an "application for membership" which expressed their desire to become a unit in the promotion of higher education, personal improvement and social progress among women. On the other side was a business-like credit rating form.

The benefits promised the new members were enrollment in the organization, a membership card, a two-year subscription to the publication, the Caravan, and the right to attend educational programs.

This cost $42.50 payable to World Caravan Guild, Inc., another $10 payable to the local chapter and 75 cents "carrying charge" for the publication.

No Withdrawal Dropped

The contract provided for a $13 down payment with the balance by installments. In the middle of the contract was this provision: "This membership shall be neither transferable nor cancelable for any cause whatsoever since immediately upon its acceptance expenses are nicurred by the World Caravan Guild, Inc."

A few weeks ago this form was replaced by one which dropped the no-withdrawal clause but added, above the applicant's signature the statement: "I have read this agreement and understand its terms."

The model local constitution provides that no amendment may be made without written consent of the World Caravan Guild, Inc.

In the model by-laws, World Caravan Guild, Inc., is given "complete supervision and control of the methods of collection of these dues or payments."

The dues are fixed at $5 for the local and, for members after the first two years, $5.50 to the World Caravan Guild, Inc.

Amendments to the by-laws must have written consent of the national sorority of World Caravan.

No Convention in Years

Every local member's dues must be paid to qualify delegates to national conventions of the sorority.

However, Mrs. Agnes Taylor Miller, 2106 F Street Northwest, told The Post last night that no national convention has been held in four years.

During this time, Eva G. Freeman has acted as national secretary. The national office reported her in Birmingham last night.

Mrs. Miller is a member of Gamma chapter, organized here in 1937 with 145 members and reorganized last year with 20 members, after which, she said the chapter conducted a successful year without calling on the national officers for aid.

Mrs. Miller said her group had not heard of the recent organizing activity here.

Literature of the Zeta Beta Chi organization did not indicate the exact nature of its relations with World Caravan Guild, Inc., except that the caravan gets $42.50 from the members in their first two years, sending them its magazine, formerly edited in Washington but now produced in New York.

Zeta Beta Chi was incorpated in Atlanta last year as a nonprofit enterprise.

Both Parties Back Dewey Aide in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Already designated by Tammany Hall for District Attorney, Frank S. Hogan tonight won the support of the New York County Republican committee and thereby had both major parties on his side.

Selection of Hogan, an independent Democrat and administrative assistant to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who is not running again, was brought about largely by the same group of fusion leaders that swept Mayor F. H. LaGuardia into city hall in 1933.

Comdr. Lawson Dies; Coast Guard Officer

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Lieut. Comdr. Charles W. Lawson, 41, assistant district engineer of the Coast Guard, died today of pneumonia. He underwent an operation recently.

A graduate of the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., in July, 1922, Lawson was widely known in Coast Guard circles and particularly for his long service in Honolulu.

Wallace Vacationing In Colorado Hills

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 4 (INS).—While President Roosevelt vacationed at sea, Vice President Henry A. Wallace, today began a two-week vacation in a mountain cabin near Green Mountain Falls.

Wallace, a native Iowan, will "rough it" in simple surroundings during the two weeks. He motored here from his native Iowa, where he spoke Thursday night, to join Mrs. Wallace, who has been staying at the cabin for some time.

Reds Feel They Can Hold Foe, Hopkins Says

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Aug. 4.—Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's Lease-Lend Act administrator, who returned to England last night following a hurried flying trip to Moscow, has reported that Premier Joseph Stalin and his army chiefs are fully confident of the Soviet army's ability to turn back Germany's third heavy offensive smash, it was understood tonight.

Hopkins, who has been in ill health for months, passed the day resting in the country following his exhausting round trip to Russia, on which he spent three and a half days in Moscow and had a number of long interviews with Stalin and other Soviet political and army leaders. The American embassy refused to disclose the lend-lease administrator's whereabouts or immediate plans. It was intimated that Hopkins already had reported to Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden.

Hopkins' departure for Washington to report in person to President Roosevelt his findings both in London and Moscow was said to be scheduled at an early date. One newspaper suggested tonight that Hopkins might be asked to delay his leaving long enough to attend a full meeting of the Churchill cabinet to outline his impressions of Russia's strength and war strategy.

Hopkins was believed to have reported that the Russians did not employ their best troops in the early phases of German attack. Now, however, every reserve in the Soviet army has been mobilized and Stalin has large numbers of first line divisions available to counter the expected third major Nazi offensive.

Soviet army men consider it highly possible that the Germans may find their attack so stalled that they will be forced to settle down into a winter campaign in White Russia and the Ukraine. This, it was believed in Moscow, will put the advantage definitely on the side of the Russians, far better trained in snow fighting than the Germans.

wish to see us become a Nazi colony."

Brooks announced that he would support the six-month extension of draftees' service provided by the Taft amendment because Administration policies have placed the country "in peril."

The Chicago Republican was loudly applauded by the galleries when he shouted:

"If it's national unity you want, remember the unity of more than 75 per cent of the people of this country in their stand against any foreign war."

From another Middle Western Republican, however, came emphatic indorsement for the bill. Senator Gurney, of South Dakota, told his colleagues, "You never know what a crazy man or a crazy nation will do when they're on a rampage."

"That's why we passed the selective service act last year and that's why we must take this action now," he added. "The Nation is imperiled and we must be prepared."

Lee said Americans who fought in the World War "really did make the world safe for democracy—for 20 years—and it might still be safe if this Nation had not followed an isolationist policy after the war."

Lee Charges Propaganda

"The only trouble with the Treaty of Versailles," he said, "was that it was too lady-like. The war should have been carried to the enemy. After this war, if Germany, the spawning-ground of wars, is left intact, there will certainly be another war."

Lee charged that German propagandists spread the idea the Versailles Treaty was "too harsh" and asserted that Nye, who had read the Senate a number of statements by prominent Britons who were critical of the treaty, "was vaccinated with the same propaganda and it took."

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, attacked the appointment of Maj. John F. O'Ryan as chairman of the new board of special advisers to the Secretary of War Stimson.

Gen. O'Ryan, he pointed out, was openly advocating American war entry in March, 1940.

"When you have a man of Stimson's age and when you have it almost commonn knowledge that he is unable to take active charge of the War Department," Clark charged, "you see that Gen. O'Ryan is going to have a great deal to do with the conduct of the department and of foreign policy."

He said Gen. O'Ryan was at one time registered with the State Department as a representative of the Japanese Economic Federation, adding, "I am sure it was all perfectly legal and I admire his frankness in registering with the department." He quoted from a radio forum in which, he said, O'Ryan had advocated fighting Germany, but not Japan.

Senator Wheeler read from what he said was a copy of a report by a "British major" on the American refense program. The report described Stimson as "very decent and pro-British" and Navy Secretary Knox as "passionately anxious for America to come into the war at once."

"Now you can see," Wheeler said, "why the British are so confident that he will enter the war in the near future."

essary travel during the weekend.

A pronounced decline in travel and great reduction in speeds were reported on Quebec highways over the past weekend, and the same was true in Montreal and Toronto districts.

Neither the Federal nor local conservation groups would venture comment on eventual effectiveness of the new nightly "blackout" of filling stations.

Although it is apparent that District authorities are receiving more cooperation from the gas station operators than they are from car owners, Maj. Snow observed:

"It is too early to know just how effective this closing program will be. We expected a buying rush at first—but this probably will not continue after people get used to the plan."

Checks to Be Made

Within the next two or three days, said Maj. Snow, checks will be made to determine progress of the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. "Gasoline Saving Time."

"We can't tell a thing," he said, "until there has been sufficient time for results to begin to show."

The same is true, he said, of the entire voluntary save-gas program inaugurated late in June. Gasoline sales reports for July (the first full month of its operation) will not be available until September 2, Maj. Snow explained.

Harry R. Wainwright, research director of the Retail Gasoline Dealers Association here, said he was watching carefully progress of the gas "blackout" plan and in the next few days will make a preliminary report to the conservation committee, of which he is a member.

Out of its 34,000 members in the District area, the American Automobile Association reported that only three "out of gas" calls were received Sunday night and early yesterday.

One Emergency Case

Except in instances of extreme emergencies, the AAA said its policy will be to tow the stranded cars to their destination. In one case Sunday night, the local club received police permission to furnish gasoline to a motorist from Pennsylvania who wanted to get home with a sick child.

As a gesture of cooperation in the gas conservation program, the Commissioners yesterday issued special instructions governing the use of municipal passenger cars and trucks. The Commissioners ordered:

That department heads have spark plugs and ignition systems on their vehicles checked and adjusted to prevent gas wastage.

That drivers be assembled and instructed in economical operations of their vehicles.

That arrangements be made to exhibit to all municipal drivers the motion picture short, "Uncle Jim Tells Them," a 12-minute film explaining how to save gasoline.

That arrangements be made to pool operation of passenger cars to the greatest practicable extent.

At the same time, the Capital Transit Co., in line with conservation efforts, announced it has petitioned the Public Utilities Commission to eliminate 91 more bus stops.

The greatest number of skip-stops will affect the Glover Park-Trinidad route D-2, the company reported. Eastbound stops will be reduced from 86 to 61 and westbound from 83 to 58 if the PUC grants authorization.

Other routes throughout the city, subject to commission approval, will come under the skip-stop program in proportion to the number of passengers served and their lengths, it was announced.

Vichy Refuses Base at Dakar To Germans

by the governor general of Dakar, Pierre Boisson. He told of an extensive strengthening of French coastal defenses.

The authorized French spokesman, reassuring the United States of France's determination to protect her overseas bases and territories against menaces "from any quarter," said no facilities such as were given Japan would be given to any other power elsewhere in overseas France.

French Indo-China was cut off from France, unable to receive defense forces and supplies, and Japan's military proposals were accepted, he said.

"But the same situation does not pertain to any other part of what is left of the French Empire, and particularly Africa," he asserted.

Strong evidence of the mounting tension between Nazi-held and unoccupied France was revealed in the Vichy regime's attitude toward Eugene Deloncle, archrightist who has come here from Paris to form a "legion of French anti-Communist volunteers" purportedly to fight against the Russians.

Fearful of Storm Troops

Admiral Darlan told Deloncle today that he will be allowed to organize and arm his "volunteers" only when it is made certain that they will be sent to the Russian front.

(It was obvious from the dispatch that the Vichy government was fearful of the Germans' creation of a large force resembling the German brown-shirt storm troops within unoccupied France ready, at any time, to seize control.)

The government apparently does not intend to permit 10,000 or 12,000 armed men to exist under the leadership of Deloncle, former leader of the terrorist rightist Cagoulards (hooded ones).

Not until Deloncle's "volunteers" reach Germany en route to the eastern front will they be permitted to have weapons, Darlan was said to have told Deloncle.

'Super-State' Feared if D. C. Is Given Vote

Congress is in the possession of "ample authority to establish a form of local autonomy and to revitalize suffrage in the District," the Senate Judiciary Committee declared yesterday in formally reporting to the Senate its rejection of the Capper-Sumners resolution.

The resolution to amend the Constitution to authorize Congress to give the District national representation and self-government was voted down by the committee several weeks ago, but a statement of its reasoning was delayed.

"Suffrage never has been taken from the District," declared the report, submitted by Senator Pat Mc Carran (Democrat), of Nevada. "It exists today as it did from 1820 to 1874 (when the city was governed by elected officials). When, in 1874, all elective offices were abolished, the vote remained untouched. Autonomous suffrage could be exercised today if offices were provided.

"Should the Congress determine that self-government is desirable for the District, this may be accomplished by an act without a Constitutional amendment."

In recommending indefinite postponement of consideration of the resolution, the committee declared national representation for the District—the right to choose representatives in Congress and to vote for President and Vice President—to be "both unwise and unsound."

National representaiton, the report stated, would "transform the District into a super-State, with all its attendant possibilities for confusion with the Federal Government."

"Under existing law, the Federal Government must contribute from the public treasury a portion of the costs of maintaining the District," the report added. "Therefore, in addition to voting for President, Vice President, and members of Congress, the District would also continue to draw on every other State in the Union for support for the newly created super-Commonwealth.

"To continue with the process of contribution from the Federal Treasury to sustain the District after it had been virtually invested with Statehood would be to invite legitimate objection from the States or to encourage a demand from the States or other municipalities that they too be supported from the Federal Treasury."

To invest Congress with permissive authority to enfranchise the District, it was stated, "would but admit of extreme pressure on the Congress to do that which we deem unwise and unnecessary."

Leahy Sells Amity In Hostile Vichy

By Taylor Henry
Associated Press Staff Writer

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Aug. 4.—The metal plate on the doorway of 114 Boulevard des Etats Unis announces: Doctor Roussaud.

The villa is distinguished from the many doctors' villas in this watering place for the halt and lame by an American flag which flies above it.

The man who works there from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. each day is—not the Doctor Roussaud—but a retired admiral of the United States Navy.

In this jam-packed resort-town-turned-capital, the humble doctor's office has become the embassy of a great power. The man who works there is Admiral William D. Leahy, Ambassador of the United States.

In this improvised embassy, the sailor-ambassador charts the precarious course of American-French relations, interpreting America to the French people, and the French people to Washington.

Defines His Job

His own definition of his job is significant. It is, he told me, a job "difficult to define as well as to carry out." Then he stated his point of view:

"To work harmoniously with Marshal Petain's government; to do what I can to facilitate giving assistance to the French people whenever and whereve possible."

Most of this work is done through contact with Petain or Admiral Darlan, with both of whom Leahy has friendly relations. This particularly true of the marshal, whose signed portrait hangs over Leahy's desk on the second floor of the Villa Ica.

"He's a charming old gentleman," Leahy remarked, "honest as the day is long."

For some time, Leahy had never seen Petain officially alone. Darlan or Gen. Charles Huntziger always was present at their meetings.

Leahy sometimes sees Petain alone socially, however. On these occasions they talk French. Leahy's French has improved considerably since he arrived in France in midwinter, and he now is able to understand everything the marshal has to say to him.

Paris Press Attacks Leahy

Leahy is on less personal terms with Darlan. When he first came to Vichy the American admiral and the French admiral used to talk as one sailor to another. Today, Leahy as American Ambassador calls on Darlan as French foreign minister and their conversation is limited to official matters.

The German-controlled Paris press—which constantly attacks Leahy as a blackmailer and crook who uses the lives of French women and children as political capital—is no help to this relationship.

They call him "the other admiral."

The attacks, which strangely enough usually rise to a crescendo when Darlan is in Paris, certainly are not intended to draw the two admirals closer together.

Leahy reads these attacks with keen interest. They are one of the best barometers of the difficulty of his task.

Being on the opposite side of the fence from the government to which he is accredited, Leahy obviously has no easy job.

It is equally obvious that the job becomes more and more difficult as collaborationist sentiment increases in Vichy circles and as American support for Germany's enemy, Britain, increases.

Popular With Masses

From Leahy's point of view, however, his personal popularity with the ordinary French people is the only gauge of the success or failure of his mission.

From that point of view, it definitely is a success.

He received no official congratulations on the Fourth of July, but hundreds of private individuals expressed to him their good wishes on the brithday anniversary of the United States.

Again, on an inspection trip covering American Red Cross centers in southern France, Leahy was widely acclaimed. On occasion, he even was called to the balcony of his hotel to receive the cheers of the crowds in the name of the United States.

Leahy is visibly moved when he talks of these spontaneous demonstrations, particularly that at Nice where crowds virtually forced him to stop for a 30-minute demonstration by thousands of people.

"My job," he insists, "is to help the French nation as much as they will let me, by interpreting their needs to America and by interpreting America's aims and ideals to them."

Africa on His Mind

This is the task that Leahy pursues in the makeshift Ambassador's office that looks more like the salon of a lady of the time of Napoleon III. On the wall are a small map of France and a huge map of North Africa.

It is obvious that Leahy often thinks about supplies for North Africa. In ordinary conversation, he frequently refers to the mission of Robert Murphy, who through Gen. Maxime Weygand has been able to keep up the work of supplying the French with necessities there.

He thinks along such lines now more than he talks about them in official conversation.

In quiet times, the admiral sees Marshal Petain on an average of once every ten days. But in times of international stress such as the present he sees the marshal much more often. When the question of Japan in Indo-China was being settled, for instance, he saw the marshal two times in three days.

When Admiral Leahy goes calling at the government offices, his first secretary, Freeman Matthews, goes along as interpreter. Even today the admiral speaks French less fluently than he understands it.

Interpreter at Meeting

Before the meeting, Leahy gives Matthews a rough draft of what he intends to say. At the interview, Leahy talks to the marshal in English, and Matthews interprets; then the marshal replies in French.

But Frequently, before Matthews is finished translating the marshal's thoughts into English, Leahy raises his hand and starts his reply.

A full report of each such interview must be sent to Washington. Matthews prepare the first draft of these. So well do the admiral and veteran diplomat understand each other that Leahy's changes are never a question of toning down the statement, but only of occasionally strengthening the phraseology.

In fact, Leahy runs the embassy pretty much in the same way that he ran some of the most efficient ships of the United States Navy in the career that led to his reputation as one of the toughest chiefs of naval operations in American history.

In the lackadasical diplomatic life of Vichy, most of the embassies and legations take off two or three hours for lunch—but not the Americans. The whole staff is back on the job an hour after they knock off at 12:30. And they get to work at 9 a. m. sharp.

Leahy's own day begins at 7 a. m. on the dot.

"I've been getting up at that time all my life," he smiles. "I'm too old to change now."

Leahy eats "as near an American breakfast as I can get." This usually consists of a soft-boiled egg, bacon, toast and "real" coffee.

Coffee from Puerto Rico

"I've tasted this national coffee once," he said, "and once was enough." A mixture of second-rate coffee, chicory, malt and only the mixers know what else passes for coffee in Vichy today.

"Fortunately," the admiral added, "I've some friends in Puerto Rico who keep me supplied with real coffee—it's the best in the world, you know." (Before coming to Vichy, the admiral served a term as governor general of Puerto Rico.)

The admiral takes his exercise mainly in the hour's walk to and from his office twice a day. Of a Sunday, he and Mrs. Leahy take a walk in the park along the Allier River.

Although he is an ardent golfer, the Admiral has not had a chance to try the exceptionally good courses of Vichy.

Guests at his frequent entertaining are mostly members of his own staff, the Latin-American diplomats with whom his relations are extremely good, and the ministers of Egypt and Turkey, for whom he has a high regard.

His table is considered one of Vichy's best, because his food comes from America, and his chef is one of the best. The dining room and drawing room of the small villa where he lives open out on a large garden.

Even when he has guests, Leahy gets to bed on time. Someone always makes a signal to leave before the clock strikes midnight.

Leahy's health is reflected in his sparkling eyes, although, like most people who have eaten Vichy food for several months, he suffers occasional touches of liver trouble.

President Vetoes Road Bill, Warns on 'Porkbarrel' Tactics

Vetoing a 320 million dollar road funds bill, President Roosevelt yesterday issued a warning to Congress against making a pork barrel out of defense appropriations.

The Chief Executive said he could not approve the measure, which would have authorized 125 million dollars for improvement of strategic highway networks, because Congress stipulated that the money be apportioned pro rata among the States, while Mr. Roosevelt requested only 25 million dollars to be spent at his discretion, where it was needed.

Presidential vetoes of large fiscal bills are a rare legislative event and the roads bill was the largest authorization measure he has refused to sign during this session of Congress.

Authorizations Listed

The bill would have authorized 150 million for construction of roads giving access to military and naval reservations and defense plants; 125 million for improving the strategic highway network; $25 million for damages to roads as the result of military maneuvers; 10 million for building "flight strips" along highways to permit emergency landings by military planes, and 10 million for advance planning.

The strategic network improvement program would have authorized $487,500 to be spent in the District, $833,715 in Maryland and $1,644,069 in Virginia.

The House and Senate had upped the President's original request for 125 million to the final total of $320 million.

Objects to Parking Provision

In a message sent to Congress in his absence, the President said that apportionment of the highway improvement money would "entirely disregard" defense needs.

"In fact, it is quite possible that the most critical deficiences in some areas may not be corrected, even with the sum authorized in this bill," he said.

The President objected also to a provision in the bill for off-street parking facilities, on the ground that such expenditures of Federal money would not be proper.

He also took exception to provisions for authorization of 25 million to reimburse local communities for highway damages resulting from Army maneuvers; the recall of retired employes, notwithstanding the Civil Service Retirement Act, and the unlimited detail of employes as students in technical schools at the expense of the Federal Government.

Truck Crash Wrecks Carnival Carrousel

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Aug. 4.—The merry-go-round broke down in a big way in Thurmont early today.

When driver of a truck carrying a carrousel to a carnival at Blue Ridge Summitt reportedly dozed at the wheel, the truck overturned, scattering imitation horses, camels, etc., over the main street of Thurmont.

Blue Henry, owner of the merry-go-round, ordered the pieces removed to a nearby field where he said an attempt will be made to put them together again.

AN AMERICAN COMPANY SERVES AMERICA

AMERICAN owned, American operated, and using American materials, even operating its own American steel mill, The Timken Roller Bearing Company has served the nation in war and peace for forty-three years.

The Timken Bearing is an all-American product used by all American industry; and its peace time profits have been reinvested in the business—in America—so that tremendous facilities have been built up that can now be used against potential enemies.

On tanks, on trucks, on planes, on ships—on virtually everything that moves in a modern, high speed army or navy—Timken Roller Bearings make possible fast, frictionless operation. And behind the front line of production, these bearings give new power to giant steel rolling mills, to machine tools—and speed to the railroad locomotives and cars that are keys of defense.

Anti-Communism At Auto Union Conclave Wins

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The first vote to divide the convention disclosed strong anti-Communist sentiment among the 1,000 delegates today at the sixth annual convention of the United Automobile Workers, affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

By a margin estimated at three or four to one, the delegates defeated an attempt to force the convention to seat ten delegates from Local 248, of West Allis, Wis., which has been under fire for alleged Communist leadership since its 79-day strike last winter tied up vital defense work at the Allis-Chalmers plant.

The first brush between the two factions came when the convention was considering a partial report of the credentials committee. Chairman Elmer Wilkerson's report omitted mention of Local No. 248, because, it was explained later, the committee was still hearing testimony that the union's constitution had been violated in the election of convention delegates from the local.

Majority Attacked

A minority report by three members of the credentials committee, read to the convention by Jack Wilsie, attacked the majority of the committee for failing to seat the Allis-Chalmers local for an "insignificant violation" of the U. A. W. constitution. The constitution provides that at least one week must elapse between the nomination and election of convention delegates. It is admitted that the Allis-Chalmers local nominated and elected its delegates at one meeting.

The minority of the credentials committee argued that the majority was standing on a technicality to deprive 8,000 Allis-Chalmers workers of representation. Ed Hall, former vice president of the U. A. W., urged the convention to vote immediately to seat the Allis-Chalmers delegation.

Motion By Frankensteen

Victor Reuther, a younger brother of Walter P. Reuter, head of the union's General Motors Division, argued that the minority report was out of order since the credentials committee had not yet taken any formal action. Richard T. Frankensteen, director of the U. A. W.'s organization drive in the aircraft industry and cosponsor with Walter Reuter of a constitutional amendment to bar Communists and Nazis from all union offices, offered a motion referring the Allis-Chalmers matter to the credentials committee to be reported on tomorrow. The vote resulted in an overwhelming defeat for the allegedly pro-Communist faction.

The fight will be renewed, therefore, tomorrow morning.

Earlier, delegates roared their approval when President R. J. Thomas said, "I personally favor material aid to Great Britain, China and Russia, but a want it understood when I say that, it is not an indorsement of the Communist Party."

He added, however, in clarification, that he did not want "any reverting back to the days of Homer Martin (deposed president of the union) who took the position that every one who disagreed with him was a member of the Communist Party."

Alexandria Skyway Studied

A proposal for an elevated highway over the Alexandria waterfront, to serve as a traffic bypass for the Mount Vernon Boulevard, will be presented soon to Alexandria city officials, it was stated yesterday by John Nolen, jr., planning director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The projected skyway, similar to the West Side Highway over the Hudson waterfront in New York City, has been approved by the commission, the Public Roads Administration, and the United States Engineers Office, Nolen said. It would run from the traffic circle north of Alexandria to Hunting Creek, south of the city.

He added that it had ben informally discussed with Alexandria officials and that formal conferences on the skyway would follow soon.

The project has been studied by the Park and Planning Commission for several months, Nolan said, and they are now engaged in preparing a prospectus as a basis for future discussion.

He emphasized that the skyway was not being proposed for immediate construction, but for a time "when and if it can be built and when and if it can be justified."

"It would not only relieve the traffic burden on the Mount Vernon Highway," he said, "but would probably stimulate the commercial development of the Alexandria waterfront. The two projects have been planned to harmonize."

Scale Down War Offices, Roosevelt Asks

President Roosevelt has written a Senate appropriations subcommittee asking downward revision of plans for construction of a 35-million-dollar War Department building in Arlington County, it was learned yesterday.

The President's letter to the subcommittee, which either today or tomorrow is to take testimony of Federal officials opposing the project, follows his agreement last week that original plans for the structure, approved by the House, should be drastically modified.

Officials objecting to the project were understood to have outlined to the President problems involved in daily transportation to and from Washington across the Potomac River of approximately 35,000 Federal workers, as well as the need for larger-scale housing and highway improvements in Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

Since the conference at the White House with Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Harold D. Smith, Director of the Budget, the Commission has been joined by the Fine Arts Commission in opposing the undertaking.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, chairman of the subcommittee, yesterday conferred with Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, who headed the House subcommittee that recommended House approval of the project.

Adams declined to discuss points raised in the conference. He observed that the War Department's stand in favor of putting its now scattered offices under one roof seems to be well taken. He added, however, that he is keeping an open mind on the question.

"I haven't anything to say," he replied when questioned about the President's letter.

Funds for the building were carried in the House-passed, eight-billion-dollar supplemental defense appropriation bill.

A. Sinsheimer, D. C. Store Aide, Dies in Baltimore

Adolph Sinsheimer, 63, of Baltimore, merchandise manager at S. Kann Sons Co. for 45 years, died yesterday at Johns Hopkins Hospital after a short illness.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Sinsheimer was a member of the Elks and the Masons in that city. He also belonged to the Baltimore Phoenix Club and the Suburban Golf Club.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Hortense Sinsheimer; a daughter, Mrs. Louis Rosenbush, jr.; and three sisters, Miss Helen Sinsheimer, Mrs. Jacob Haas, and Mrs. Jeanette Baer, all of Baltimore.

Swallowed $100 Bail, Fails To Show Up

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Aug. 4.—A $100 bill allegedly swallowed by Anthony Haen last Friday is still missing and its owner, William Barry Butler, is of the opinion that it is gone for good. Haen appeared in Yorkville court today after a three-day stay in Bellevue Hospital and failed to produce the bill although, he was told by Magistrate William A. Farrel to "cough it up" for bail.

Charged with petit larceny, Haen, 42-year-old watchmaker, denied he had used the banknote for free lunch while in a bar and grill with Butler, and was held for trial.

The tragedy, according to Butler, occurred at 3 a. m. on Friday while he and Haen were sipping a few friendly drinks.

Butler, a traveling jewelry and clock salesman, had just returned from a successful sales trip and was in a mood for celebration. With a slightly theatrical flourish, he produced the banknote and placed it tenderly on the bar. Before he could say "Tom Collins," Haen reached for it, he told police, and rolled it into a ball.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

More Color Than Ever To Rainbow the Screen

Producers Step Up Technicolor Features; 'The Bride' Arrives at the Met. Today; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

THE SCREEN, it seems, is rapidly recovering from its color blindness. It was pointed out here not so long ago that during the past few years the annual output of Technicolor positive print footage has increased from five million-odd feet to a round 80 million feet—and I hope I have my memory on straight. This year it will hit a new high mark.

BETTE DAVIS

According to present plans, there will be a total of 23 feature pictures in Technicolor released by seven producing companies during the 1941-42 season. This is five more than during the season of 1940-41 and 12 more than in 1939-40. The spectrum has whacked itself up something like this: Paramount, seven features in color; Twentieth Century-Fox, four; Warner Brothers, RKO-Radio and Monogram, three each; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, two, and United Artists, one.

Among these 23 gorgeous gelatins will be three full-length feature cartoons.

If we live long enough, and this burst of color appreciation keeps up the way it is going, we still may see the day when all pictures will be executed in natural color—as they ought to be in the interest of complete realism. Anyhow, we're going to stay in there and keep swinging in that general direction. Not that it means anything.

The tenth and final "Summer Festival" program of the season will be presented in the National Sylvan Theater, on the Monument Grounds, tomorrow night at 8:15, when the Washington Players will act out Will Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," under the direction of Denis E. Connell and assisted by the Washington Civic Orchestra and the Alice Louise Hunter Dancers. The stellar resident cast will be headed by Maurice Jarvis, Thomas M. Cahill, Christine Irish, Ralph Wiener, Eugene Kressin, William Morrow McGhee, Adele Whiteside McNaughton and Yerby Pannill. With another fair break in the weather, this prodigal program should attract another of its 10,000 al fresco audiences.

Eddie Plohn's wire-haired Jo-Jo has accepted the invitation to appear in the Pyramus and Thisbe interlude, provided he gets star billing, the star dressing room, a personal dresser and adequate advance publicity. Jo-Jo hasn't been reared in the National Theater for nothing.

And Also Unexpectedly

"The Bride Came C. O. D.," the Warner Brothers desert delirium, celebrating Bette Davis' penetrating encounter with a cactus plant, will arrive as per title and practically "cold" on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater this morning for a continuance of its downtown run. One gathers from this sudden announcement that even in society Blondie somehow missed the large gathering at which she was supposed to be guest of honor. There are both the "fors" and the "againsts" in the matter of the screen's foremost tragedienne—if that is what she is—turned slapstick and farcical comedienne. This column is among the former. "The Bride Came C. O. D." is a shade obvious and strained now and again, but in the large view—what with James Cagney, Stuart Erwin, Harry Davenport, Eugene Pallette, Ed Brophy, Jack Carson and the rest there is punching and puncturing—it is a pretty far cry from a dud as the saying goes.

Anyone who by some chance may have missed "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," will have his last chance to make up his back work at the Little Theater this week. "Mr. Chips" will be given his last goodby. The print secured by the Little for this engagement is the only one extant. After this farewell farewell, it will be permanently retired.

When a heavily stamped envelope, stenciled "Air Mail" in large, purple capitals all over its front, arrives from the Walter Wanger studios in Hollywood—like the one dated August 2, for instance—we are pretty apt to open it first in skimming over the day's mail. That is what we did. Since it contained nothing else, Mr. Wanger must have been mailing us a sample of the California climate. Since "no news is good news," we are glad Walter is doing so well!

One-Good-Turn-Etc. Note

Wait 'til he gets our envelope of Washington climate in reply!

HEDDA HOPPER

When Love Is Young

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 4.—No, Judy Garland didn't get a royal welcome when she returned with her bridegroom, David Rose. Studio's very upset, and I don't blame them. Of course, nothing yet has substituted for love in bloom. But these studios' build up babies into very important pieces of property, then along come much older, wiser, smooth-talking salesmen to sell them on the idea of Lohengrin.

JUDY GARLAND

Of course, the one who started all the kids thinking of matrimony was Deanna Durbin. Nobody yet knows whether her marriage will hurt her box office or not. But the quality that these young girls like Daanna, Judy, Gene Tierney and Kathryn Grayson inspired in an audience was a protective instinct. Now that they have husbands, that feeling is gone. You can't take a child who doesn't belong to you and spank her, and the producers can only hope the the public won't.

Since the tragic death of Coach Howard Jones and Jimmy Stephenson, Hollywood's saying, "Who's next?" Stephenson was headed for the top after his performance in "The Letter." He was just about to begin another fine part in "King's Row." He leaves a widow, a 1-year-old son, Peter, and quite a family in England. And this was his first heart attack.

It looks as though Dick McKenzie, general director of the American Legion national convention, which is to be the week of September 15, in Milwaukee, will have quite a lineup of stars back there. Bob Hope and I are already set for the dinner on the 18th; Darryl Zanuck will be among the guests of honor, and they're hoping for Mickey Rooney, Rudy Vallee, Dorothy Lamour, Ann Sheridan, Carmen Miranda, Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Deanna Durbin, Dennis Morgan and Spencer Tracy.

Now that Jack Moss, who's a whiz-bang, has joined up with Orson Welles, I wonde if he'll continue making deals for Gary Cooper. He always has . . . If Orson Welles signs up with that beauty product, he'll have to scare the so-and-so out of America with a powder puff!

Elizabeth Bergner is now making a picture here called "Paris Calling." England called in vain to have Miss Bergner finish the picture she started there, but she wouldn't go back. . . . I love Pola Negri's remark when helped off the boat by immigration officials: "I belong to my public." If I wanted to be a bit sharp, I might add, "What public?"

If Lili Damita and Errol Flynn had been divorced every time they've had a row, there wouldn't have been enough money left in the exchequer to pay for the new baby. I'll believe the divorce when it's been signed, sealed, delivered, and tied up with a pretty pink ribbon.

C. U. Players Triumph in Barry Drama

By Nelson B. Bell

Once again the student enrollment of the speech and drama department of Catholic University has responded to the inspiration and met the challenge of one of the professional theater's most brilliant young stars. The eight youthful players assembled by Father Gilbert V. Hartke to support Miss Julie Haydon in Philip Barry's deeply and, at times, abstrusely psychological drama of "Hotel Universe" last night performed their arduous duties with the intelligent grasp, poise and dramatic surety of veteran actors.

"Hotel Universe" presents no simple chore for any cast. A drama of the subconscious, it accomplishes through what might be termed a process of psychoanalytical mental flashbacks what the conventional play of incident and action achieves by working back through the years in terms of physical experience. A group of characters representing all degrees of frustration are gathered on the terrace of a former small hotel, overlooking the sea at Antibes, France, now occupied by a strangely intuitive old gentleman and a daughter who has absorbed something of his perception of what is genuine and what is false in life. As the individual perplexities become more and more acute and more unfathomable to their victims, this calm, understanding and helpful Stephen Fields guides each of his daughter's guests back to the mental period in which he or she made the wrong decision that has clouded a lifetime. More fantasy than fact—although the problems are genuine and heavy ones—this strictly cerebral adventure is played continuously in one two-hour act, without intermission.

Here, as has been said, is an undertaking in sustained mood, tempo and "atmosphere" that might well test the caliber of any group of players. Last night's met it with extraordinary competence.

Players Accorded Ovation

There is no quick passage of events in "Hotel Universe," only a modicum of physical "action" and no such flow of comedy as might classify it otherwise than as a profoundly experimental and exploratory excursion into the imaginative and the obscure. It is all the more to their credit, therefore, that last evening's cast of nine was able so unfailingly to rivet the attention of a capacity audience that accorded it an ovation at the fall of the curtain.

The gentle, ethereal and almost elfin role of Ann Field is admirably suited to the delicate person and talents of Miss Haydon. She played it with a simple and quiet charm that was splendidly set off by the more robust and emotionally excitable performances of Mary Finnerty, as the wife who was only a mother; Agnes Ehrhardt, the girl who wanted to dream her way to happiness, and Marion Reardon, the successful actress whose triumphs turned to ashes in her grasp. Hugh Franklin, as the most bitter of the victims of their own mistakes, portrayed the character of Pat Farley with subtle and cynical forcefulness, with Leo Brady a particularly facile Tom Ames, and James Graham an alert and enlivening Norman Rose. Anthony Messuri, in the illuminating role of Stephen Field, revealed a versatility in modulation, facial play and pantomime that ranged from moments of poetic beauty to periods of stormy violence, lending both ponit and power to the author's purpose.

By no means the least of the virtues of this final production of the season at C. U., so skillfully directed by Walter Kerr, is the beauty of the setting and lighting effects provided by Ralph Brown. "Hotel Universe" will be continued through Saturday night and should be seen by every lover of notable achievement in the theater.

RADIO DEPT.: Backstage at one of the Rudy Vallee program rehearsals, Richard Mack—producer of the programs—called to his secretary: "Have you got John Barrymore's home phone number?" . . . "Yes, I have," she answered . . . "Well give it to him," Mack replied. "He wants to phone his home."

JOHN BARRYMORE

SOCIAL NOTES: Mabel Boll, the Diamond Queen, who has been most fortunate in collecting gems these many years, was introduced to a lady who rented the house next door . . . "It's nice, meeting one's neighbor," said Mabel. "And please don't be hesitant about it—any time you have guests and run short, just send your maid over for a cup of sapphires."

SPORTS DEPT.: Paul Lukas, star of "Watch on the Rhine," is the theater's most inveterate tennis player. He and George Coulouris play every day. And no matter where he travels, Lukas always manages to play a set of tennis . . . In Detroit he and Dennis King played on Edsel Ford's court . . . During the final volley, Lukas barely reached the ball, and could only lob it over the net. King rushed in, and smashed it back—so fast, that it hit Lukas' back . . . "Ach, Dennis," Lukas reproved him, "This is not Vimbeldon!"

REALTY DEPT.: Recently Eleanor Roosevelt entertained some guests at Hyde Park. She decided to show them the President's new Dream Cottage—and they followed her, while she led them to the spacious grounds . . . Mrs. Roosevelt took them inside the house and showed them the tremendous, sprawling rooms. "Well, this is the Dream Cottage," she stated . . . "Mrs. Roosevelt," said one of the guests, "all I can say is that it takes a heap of house to make a cottage."

DRAMA DEPT.: Molly Picon, who starred in the Yiddish theater for many years, before she came to Broadway, sat in Sardi's and reminisced of the veterans she had known—the Adlers, the Tomashefskys, etc. Molly then left the restaurant, and enter the cab of Abe Domashefsky, the hackie who always is stationed in front of Sardi's . . . Molly asked him: "How do you spell your name—with a 'D,' or a 'T'?" . . . "With a 'D,'" sighed Domashefsky. "If it was with a 'T'—I'd be inside Sardi's every night, instead of outside."

LOCAL NEWS: Senator Tobey wants Rex Tugwell to appear before the Senate Committee on Territories, for examination—before Tugwell assumes his post as Governor of Puerto Rico . . . Larry Adler, whose supply of harmonicas has been curtailed because of the war, is experimenting at M. I. T., hoping to find a harmonica which will last him more than two shows . . . Arch Obeler, who signed a producer-director-writer contract with Twentieth Century-Fox, will have Mark Hellinger as the producer of his first picture . . . Felix Ferry has signed John Kerby's band for a straight one-year contract at the new Beach Club

FINANCE DEPT.: Chamberlain Brown, the producer, is operating a summer theater upstate. He wired a New York representative for the actors he wanted. In return he received a wire asking him to designate his top salaries . . . Brown sent this replying wire: "Taylor Holmes, $200; Bram Fletcher, $175; Grey Glenson, $45; Miller Tye, $35" . . . Western Union refused to send this wire. They thought Brown was placing bets on horse races.

TRAVEL DEPT.: In Washington some of Harry Hopkins' friends were discussing his trip to Moscow . . . "Do you think Stalin can keep him there a while?" one of them asked . . . "The best way for Stalin to keep him there a while," replied the other—who knows Hopkins' pleasures—"is to build a race track in Moscow."

ILLUSTRATED SECTION:: Last Tuesday afternoon Brian Aherne and his wife, Joan Fontaine, completed their 3½-day flight from Hollywood to Philadelphia, in a dual-control plane. They made the trip because Aherne was scheduled to be the Philadelphia Orchestra's narrator last night, at the Robin Hood Dell . . . Reporters and camera men greeted the Hollwood couple when their plane landed at the private field outside the city limits—and they fussed about the glamorous screen couple . . . "After all, boys," said the surprised Aherne, still seated at the controls, "after all—we're not the Lindberghs" . . . "That's right," said the Philadelphia Record's photographer, focusing his camera, "so how about a shot with you holding her hand and helping her out of the cockpit?"

The Boss Sees Red

Hollywood, Aug. 4 (INS).—Red Skelton is set for life as a comedian, as far as M.-G.-M. is concerned. "Whistling In the Dark" did it and gave Red a chance to compete with Bob Hope and the other top comics. He and Ann Sothern will be starred in "Dubarry Was a Lady," one of the most important properties owned by this company. Of course there is nothing new about Annie. She's been going strong since her first "Maisie" movie, but Skelton is new to the fans. Although very well known on the stage he has yet to make a place for himself in the affections of moviegoers.

RED SKELTON

So sure was Nicholas Schenck that they had something in Skelton that he suggested he be costarred with Ann in "Dubarry Was a Lady" just as soon as it is possible to get it ready for the screen.

The role of Charles De Gaulle cries for Charles Boyer or Jean Gabin, both of whom are Frenchmen with sympathetic leanings toward Free France. Well, William Rankin has written the life story of De Gaulle in "No Drums, No Bugles" and great interest is evidenced at several studios. With all the demand for biographies, the story of De Gaulle's patriotism should be very popular. Rankin has done very well the past month. He wrote "Cheyenne," sold it to Howard Hawks and Samuel Goldwyn and ten days later it was sold to Walter Wanger at a profit of 20,000. Then he and his former wife, Eleanor Griffin, sold M.-G.-M. "Money in the Bank," supposedly for Mickey Rooney.

If Ronald Colman accepts David Selznick's offer to play Edward Rochester in "Jane Eyre," it will be a complete departure from the suave, charming roles Colman has always played.

U. S. Begins Scrap Iron Investigation

Justice Department Acts on Henderson's Complaint of Monopolistic Practices

The Department of Justice and the Office of Price Control and Civilian Supply yesterday jointly announced that an antitrust investigation was beginning immediately into alleged monopolistic and price-boosting practices in the iron and steel scrap industry.

Henderson said the practices he complained of "encouraged the hoarding of iron and steel scrap and thus seriously shortened an already reduced supply."

The investigation, which Acting Attorney General Biddle said would be conducted by both the antitrust division of the Department and the FBI is the first to be undertaken under a cooperative arrangement between the Department of Justice and OPACS, to avert undue price rises.

Asks Special Grand Jury

In a letter to Biddle describing the situation, Henderson urged that it be given priority of investigation and that, if appropriate, a special grand jury consider the problem.

Henderson said he understood that about 15 large iron and steel scrap brokers supply all the steel mills with about 90 per cent of their needs. Through secret subsidizing of certain scrap dealers, sometimes as many as 100 or more, a single broker has, in some instances, achieved a monopoly on the entire scrap supply in a single region, he alleged.

The price chief added that this control had been used as a way to enhance scrap prices and that the secretly maintained subsidies enabled certain dealers and brokers to impose scrap on the consumer at excessive prices.

FBI Already Busy

"Such a dealer or broker has thus been able to create a structure which permits arbitrary control over price, manipulation of scrap supply and degradation of its quality. Furthermore, the control thus exercised through these combinations has, by inviting the expectation of increased prices, encouraged the hoarding of iron and steel scrap," he concluded.

Biddle replied that he had authorized the two Justice Department arms to begin an investigation immediately. It was understood that FBI agents already had begun their study in several cities.

Kenny's Driving Career . . .

Curb Looms On Installment Bank Credits

By Nicholas P. Gregory

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

President Roosevelt is considering the issuance of a proclamation under the Banking Act of 1933 to curb installment credit as an inflation antidote and to curtail purchases of automobiles, refrigerators, radios and other household appliances which are made of steel and other defense materials, it was learned yesterday.

The action was agreed upon, it is reported, at a White House conference last week between the President, Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, and Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Prior to this conference, Representative Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, and chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, had told newspapermen that the original draft of the price control bill had a provision, under the Banking Act of 1933 giving President Roosevelt powers to curtail instalment credit. However, this was dropped from the final draft of the measure introduced in both Houses last Friday.

Could Order Curbs

The President, through the Federal Reserve Board, would place curbs on the credit issued to finance companies, which in turn issue credit to buyers of automobiles, refrigerators and other household appliances, classified as "luxury" items. With regard to large finance companies operated by the automobile companies and which, as a general rule, do not borrow from banks, the President may designate them as banks and require them to comply with the provisions of the National Bank Act.

Under the circumstances they will have to comply with the requirements of the Federal Reserve Board. These companies will be subject to the banking provisions only through the emergency.

The credit curb will not only reduce the threat of inflation and alleviate the shortage in defense raw materials, but may result in larger purchases of defense bonds.

Protection to Farmers

Meanwhile, the Banking and Currency Committee, meeting in executive session to consider the Administration's price control bill voted to postpone hearings until 2 today. Chairman Steagall emphasized that no attempt will be made to rush the legislation to the House floor before inauguration of some three-day recess periods, possibly late this week. He also indicated the possibility of increasing the permissible maximum prices when he was asked whether the committee had any plans to provide for minimum as well as top prices of farm products. Parity of 110 of the 1909-1914 price level has been set in the bill as a ceiling for farm products.

However, the farm bloc, which already received a sop in the form of no wide ceiling powers for the President on farm products, now is reported to be demanding that a bottom should also be set. Steagall said a minimum provision would be unnecessary but then added that "we aren't through with the matter yet—we may extend still further the limitations to protect farmers."

British Lose Minesweeper, Trap Nazi Ship

London, Aug. 4 (INS).—A loss and a gain for the British navy were announced by the admiralty tonight.

The loss was the sinking of the British minesweeper Snaefel by "enemy action."

The gain was the interception by British naval patrols of the 5,522-ton German freighter Frankfurt, which tried unsuccessfully to run the blockade with a valuable cargo of nitrate. The Frankfurt had left Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, June 29.

(The N. B. C. in New York heard a London radio broadcast reporting that the Frankfurt had been scuttled by her crew when halted by British warships.)

Morgenthau Urges Cotton Stores Be Sold

Secretary Morgenthau, irate at Senate "farm bloc" attempts to support the price of cotton by "freezing" Government-owned stocks, urged yesterday that the Commodity Credit Corporation sell its 6,000,000-bale supply "now, when there is a demand."

The Treasury Secretary denounced as "wicked" a Senate-approved measure, now in conference, that would forbid the sale of Government-owned lint for the duration of the European war.

Openly defying Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed Smith), Democrat, of South Carolina, who sponsored the "freezing" measure as a rider to a House-approved bill, Morgenthau told a press conference:

"If we don't sell this loan cotton now, at a time when the market will take it, we are going to be awfully sorry some day."

Short Crop Threatened

Morgenthau declared that it would be especially "wicked" to freeze the United States cotton stocks now, inasmuch as the Nation faces one of the shortest cotton crops in its history this year.

The Agriculture Department meanwhile, announced that the new parity loan rate—the minimum return which the Government assures to cotton farmers—would be increased 5 cents a pound this year.

The new loan rate of 14.02 cents a pound was fixed to conform to recent legislation calling for loans at 85 per cent of the parity price.

The cotton parity price is 16.49 cents a pound for August 1, a term that refers to the level at which a farmer would have the same buying power in term of other commodities that he had in the five years before the World War.

Few growers were expected to apply for the loans, however, because the market price is above the loan rate at present. The loans are made available to growers who cooperate with acreage restrictions to permit them to store their crop instead of having to sell it at reduced prices.

Pleads for Cooperation . . . . .

Morgenthau's blast at the "farm bloc" attempt to support cotton prices was contained in a plea he made for voluntary cooperation by labor and farmers to avoid inflationary price rises.

Legal requirements specify that none of the Government's lint may be sold at a loss. The Government must recover full investment, including agricultural adjustment payments. In addition, there is a limit of 300,000 bales per month on sales the Commodity Credit Corporation may make and of 1,300,000 bales a year.

The Government has invested a total of $361,000,000 in the 6,150,000 bales of cotton that it owned, as of May 31.

Government experts also contend that, even if the C. C. C. liquidated all its present cotton stocks, the inelastic nature of the world cotton market would force the Government to buy back in a few months the cotton that it might dump on the market now.

Plane Parts Firm Held Balky In Labor Row; Mediators Irked

By Alfred Friendly

Post Staff Writer

Defense Mediation Board officials yesterday expressed concern at what they interpreted as apparent unwillingness of the Marlin-Rockwell Co., makers of essential airplane ball bearings, to accept board recommendations for settlement of a long-standing labor dispute.

The company, located at Plainville, Conn., was the scene of a C. I. O. United Auto Workers strike on May 27. Workers returned to their jobs on June 9, following certification of the case to the board. Principal issue was a demand for a 10 cent an hour wage increase, which the company granted to 950 male employes, but gave only a 5 cent an hour raise for 150 women workers.

Meantime, to "advertise" another labor dispute, 8,000 striking A. F. of L. electrical workers in New York announce that the lights at the center of the "Great White Way," in Times Square, would be turned off for 30 minutes tonight.

Partial Blackout

During the "blackout," only store and street lights will remain burning. Switches on all advertising signs and theater marquees will be pulled at 8 p. m., however.

Alarm over the trend of affairs at the Marlin-Rockwell Co. was noted yesterday when the concern criticized as inaccurate a report of Harry Shulman, sterling professor of law at Yale University, which the Mediation Board accepted as its own findings of fact and recommendations. It called for the full 10-cent raise for women workers.

Board officials indicated that the company's attitude appeared to be similar to that recently shown by the Western Cartridge Co., Alton, Ill., which refused to enter into a bargaining contract with an A. F. of L. union until it became clear that the case was about to be sent to the White House with a recommendation for Government occupation of the plant.

The Marlin-Rockwell Co., whose orders carry the highest priority rating of A 1-a, reported net income after taxes and depreciation last year of almost $2,500,000. Its earnings were up by 9 per cent in the first quarter of 1941. The wage issue in dispute would mean an added pay roll of almost $27,300 annually.

The board panel on the case and Prof. Shulman will meet with company representatives to discuss the report this week.

In the Midwest, A. F. of L. unionists at four Army ordnance plants were ordered back to their jobs yesterday by their officials after a weekend "holiday" which a union chief described as due to misunderstandings.

The workers walked out after being notified that their former double pay for overtime would be replaced by time and one-half pay. On Sunday, however, John Coyne, president of the A. F. of L. executive council for the building trades department, said the workers would be back on their jobs in compliance with the recently negotiated stabilization agreement making time and one-half the uniform overtime rate.

Edwin S. Smith 'Unfit' for NLRB A.F.L. Council Says

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today accused Edwin S. Smith of "bias, unfairness and prejudice" and said he was unfit to remain a member of the National Labor Relations Board.

In a statement released by President William Green at a press conference, the council said:

"The record shows that Mr. Smith has been largely responsible for the bias, unfairness and prejudice which until recently characterized many of the Labor Board's decisions and permeated its administrative set-up."

Smith, whose six-year term on the board expires August 27, has been the target of A. F. L. criticism that he was partial to the rival Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Building Code

Some of the difficulties under which the District government operates are well illustrated by current efforts to obtain a strictly modern building code. By the Act of 1878 the Board of Commissioners was given broad powers to regulate construction for residential and business use in Washington. But in subsequent years Congress whittled down that authority by enacting local building regulations of its own. And when the District attempted sometime ago to work out an up-to-date building code it found a number of obsolete statutes cluttering its path.

The Commissioners, in adopting a new code a month ago, are now seeking legislation to clear away these outmoded statutes which would prevent that code from being fully effective. For example, it is necessary to overhaul the law on fire escape requirements. At first the Commissioners meekly sought to modify the hard and fast (and now obsolete) rules laid down on this subject by Congress. Enactment of this bill would have left with Congress the obligation of changing the fire escape law every time new building methods call for new safety requirements. It would have seriously restricted the Commissioners' authority to prescribe future building regulations, and it might easily have invited further encroachments upon their meager powers.

It is a matter of good fortune for the local community that that bill has now been discarded in favor of a measure giving the Commissioners authority, after hearings have been held, to promulgate regulations as to fire escapes. Local authorities are far more competent than our national legislature to handle problems of this sort. And they are in a position to order adjustments whenever desirable instead of waiting years for Congress to act. Even this bill limits, perhaps unwisely, the type of building to which fire escape requirements may be applied. It would doubtless be more satisfactory to leave the entire matter to the discretion of local authorities.

Prompt enactment of the modified bill, or a still more liberal measure, is needed to permit effective regulation of the intensive building activity now going on in the District. Meanwhile the Commissioners ought to make clear that they will vigorously exercise the power sought for protection of the community. The fight for stronger local government here cannot be won if the Commissioners are inclined to dump into the lap of Congress controversial issues within their own jurisdiction, or if they shrink from exercising in the public interest any new powers granted.

Guns And Butter

The problem of price control is to make such control contribute to swift and maximum defense. That means that the effort must be directed so as to make our economy yield more guns and less butter. For the war need—the aid program and our own defense—is too great to permit us to have both. But we are not heading for such a contribution if price control should result in the indiscriminate establishment of price ceilings for a great variety of non-essential goods intended for civilian use. That would simply promote their production and thus the diversion of productive energy needed for war goods. Accordingly, it may actually be desirable to permit prices of certain goods in the luxury or semi-luxury class to rise. That is one way of cutting down their consumption and therefore their production without increasing basic living costs. For necessary articles of food and clothing, of course, sharp increases in prices should be avoided. And if such price increases occur because of an absolute shortage of supplies, the remedy lies in rationing at fixed prices set to yield fair profits to sellers.

So far the efforts to control prices of civilian goods have covered very few articles and no prime necessities. For instance, Mr. Henderson is trying to keep automobile prices from rising, despite increases in wage and materials costs. But such prices (as well as silk prices, on which he is about to clap price ceilings) do not affect basic living costs. What do affect living costs are the prices of farm products, on which Congress is constantly raising price ceilings by legislation. As we have repeatedly said, the price administrator undoubtedly needs more and better defined authority over prices. But as to his efforts at regulating prices, the control have been unsystematic for a war economy. In his price policy he seems to be aiming merely at control of profits, which is the function of the fiscal and other departments of Government, not his.

Why The Delay?

The slowness of Congress in legislating for some of the vital defense requirements of the Nation is again illustrated in the sluggish progress of the property requisition bill. A War Department bill designed to permit the seizure of machine tools, stocks of aluminum, civilian aircraft and other equipment useful to the Army and Navy in this emergency was sent to Congress two months ago. Yet it was not till Monday that the House Committee on Military Affairs got around to the filing of a report on the substitute bill which the Senate recently passed. The measure is not likely to reach the President's desk for two or three more weeks. Valuable time has been lost, and some of the materials which the Army and Navy sought have probably been put to other uses long ago.

In part this delay is chargeable to those executive officials who sought power to requisition "property of any kind or character" that might be used for national defense, with no further limit on their discretion. The request for such an unreasonable grant of authority aroused criticism and opposition that would not have been lodged against a properly safeguarded bill. We hope the reaction of Congress has taught the War Department that extravagant bids for power are likely to defeat their own purpose. But the fact remains that properly safeguarded requisition powers are urgently needed by defense officials and that Congress is moving at a snail's pace to provide them.

Only minor changes have been made in the revised bill by the House Military Affairs Committee. As it stands, then, it is not open to any of the persuasive objections raised against the original bill. The President could take over equipment, supplies and munitions for defense whenever he might find the need to be "immediate and impending," but only after trying and failing to secure the desired equipment by voluntary contract. In all cases "fair and just" compensation would have to be paid. Property requisitioned and no longer needed for national defense would have to be returned to the original owner if he would agree to pay a fair price for it. The President would have to make semiannual reports to Congress on operation of the act and his powers under it would expire on June 30, 1943.

In its present form the bill involves no new principle. Similar powers were granted to the President during World War I, though in piecemeal fashion. A year ago Congress recognized the necessity of taking over plants that refuse to produce for national defense. Last May it authorized the President to require priority for defense contracts. The requisitioning of materials already produced is a less drastic but no less essential step. It would be foolish, indeed, to say that a Government which may take private land to make a public park must not commandeer other property needed to give us national security.

It is six weeks since President Roosevelt wrote to Chairman Reynolds of the Senate Military Affairs Committee: "I know that a people who have agreed to draft themselves into military service will not hesitate to approve any draft of their own equipment and property which is necessary for defense." Undoubtedly he expressed the view of the great majority of Americans. Why, then, is there still so much hesitation in getting this simple measure on the statute books?

Tartness On Taxes

The reply of Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee to the President's belated tax recommendations was pardonably sharp. With the completed tax bill before the House, and ready to be voted upon, the President's last-minute intervention was most unprecedented.

Evidently Mr. Doughton and his colleagues were especially irritated by the unexpected recommendation for a broadening of the tax base. Mr. Doughton says that several committee members, including himself, were inclined to favor a broader tax base, as they should, if there is any fiscal statesmanship left. However, representatives of the Treasury strongly opposed any reduction in personal exemptions, and their position influenced the committee's action. Acidly the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee added: "I am surprised to learn that your views are antagonistic to those expressed so emphatically by the Treasury as the representative of the Administration. The committee at times found it impossible during the course of its hearings to reconcile the testimony of different officials representing the Administration."

This is a well deserved rebuke which the President might well take to heart. For if he had come out strongly for politically unpopular proposal to broaden the tax base when the committee was in the throes of framing a new tax bill, he might have turned the scales in its favor. As it is, the Administration must accept a large share of the responsibility for failure to incorporate this essential reform in the bill which the House passed yesterday—a reform which the feebleness of the price control bill and the beginnings of inflation make more than ever necessary. So it is to be hoped that the President will promptly repeat his recommendation when Congress again looks about for new revenues. Conscientious legislators have good reason to be shocked at the casual manner in which the President put forward recommendations that would have necessitated rewriting a tax bill to which the Ways and Means Committee has devoted several months of study.

Tukhashevsky's Plan

The Red army, says Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, "surpasses all previous opponents in fighting temper." This is a handsome and perhaps deserved compliment. In the last six weeks the Russians have displayed superb resolution and a willingness to fight to the bitter end even against overwhelming odds. But sheer physical bravery—of which others, notably the British and the Greeks, have displayed in abundance—is only one factor contributing to the unexpected slowing down of the German blitz campaign in the east. Another factor, the importance of which we are just beginning to appreciate, is the Soviet familiarity with German military tactics. German strategists, many of whom got their training in Russia in the twenties, when the activities of Germany's professional army were strictly limited, inevitably left their mark upon Soviet military thinking. The Germans were perfectly aware of this and apparently, in spite of or because of the close relations between the military staffs of the two countries, never thought too highly of Soviet military ability. Least of all did the Germans credit the Soviets with sufficient ingenuity to work out a tactical plan that would dissipate the drive of a German attack, should there ever be one.

It is too early to predict how successful Soviet tactics will prove, but it is at least clear that Russia's dictator is tremendously obligated to Marshal Tukhashevsky and his collaborators, whom Stalin "liquidated" in the purge of 1937. For it now appears that it was Tukhashevsky who drew up the unique Soviet defense system which has been giving the Germans so much trouble. Taking advantage of the terrain and built in circular fashion like the spokes of a wheel, the system is reportedly designed "to absorb the enemy like a sponge." In other words, the marshal was one of the first to appreciate the consequences of the German advance wedge technique, which was later to be phenomenally successful in the west, and strove for an effective way of isolating such wedges and chewing them up. He was executed before the plan was completed but as of today the Russian fortifications are essentially his creation.

It may be that the German advance is now delayed partly because of Tukhashevsky's wisdom and partly because of the Soviet belief that this is no time to hold back reserves of tanks and planes. The Germans have made much of the fact that the Soviets are constantly throwing huge quantities of new material into action. Obviously, the Nazis hope that Soviet replacements will prove inadequate—as may indeed prove to be the case. For from the Nazi viewpoint the combination of the Tukhashevsky fortifications, sufficient Soviet material and an indomitable fighting spirit on the part of "the mad Russians," may spell a long drawn-out, possibly catastrophic military adventure.

WORDS FOR TODAY

The gentle rains of England that fell on English sod
Were little rains and tender, that went in silver shod:
The thin gold sun of England fell on field and meadowland
Glittering bright upon the eye and warm upon the hand.

The rain that falls on England now is bitter rain, and steel:
The ground on which it pours is scarred, and foreign to the heel.

England's sun is filtered through a veil of lowering cloud,
And over England's fields the sound of shrick-
ing lead is loud.

But English hearts are beating fiercely, bravely,
as of old:
English courage flowers where English air is cold.
And English ears are listening in a dream to little rains
Falling on the countryside, on meadows, trees and lanes . . .

Gasoline Blackout

I am making the statement that if Mr. Ickes' plan is carried out there will be more gasoline used than under present conditions, and am listing a few facts to prove this statement. There are thousands of large trucks and semi-trailers operating from the peninsula of Florida through Southeastern States to the Eastern markets. The majority of these trucks prefer traveling at night because it is cooler; some are carrying perishables that arrive in better condition by night traveling, but the main factor is that by night hauling they make better time by not having congested traffic to contend with. Avoiding this, they use less gasoline. Some of these trucks have tanks that will carry them through the night, but the majority don't have, and these extra tanks are unlawful in some States. The closing of service stations at night will throw thousands of these large trucks on the road in the daytime. This will slow down traffic in general, congesting more trucks with automobiles, causing all to use more gasoline.

Mr. Ickes' statement that by his action consumption will be cut 30 per cent is ridiculous. Everyone knows that all motorists in 12 hours can spare a few minutes to fill their tanks; but what they won't have time for is lubrications, washes, oil changes, polishes and labor services, that are so essential in operating a service station successfully.

It is a known fact that there are over a million more barrels of gasoline on hand than at the same period a year ago. By the time this oversupply is exhausted pipe lines may be installed or speedier transports can be arranged. If petroleum products production is threatened, then let's go about it in a sensible way and not a destructive one.

Mr. Ickes also said that employes working night shifts would be put on day shifts. This is partially true because approximately 50 per cent can be used in the extra daytime rush, but the other 50 per cent will be laid off because they have been working because of long hours and not because of the amount of work to be done.

Every true American is behind President Roosevelt and our Government 100 per cent in any way that is helpful to our country or national defense, but when a plan that throws thousands out of work, puts hardships on filling station operators, and accomplishes the adverse to what is wanted, it is time for some one to voice their opinion that is the same as the majority of American citizens.

I am not up on statistics enough to make definite statements, but I am positive that Mr. Ickes' plan is impractical and positively will work adverse to what is wanted.

I am working at a filling station, earning about a tenth of the money that I did in Florida before my business failure, but it is a living wage and I am proud of it. There are thousands who will be out of work due to night closing. We would all gladly sacrifice a job if we were aiding our country in this hour of needed sacrifices, but let it be a worthy and sensible one.

Lindbergh, Potential Asset

After reading all this chatter about our one-time hero "Linbergh" I think it's high time it came to a stop as there are plenty of others in this country we should be spending our time on and doing something about.

Not taking a man who has done so much for the country in promoting the movement of good flying. We will be building such men as he and many more like him before we are through.

He is a man of brains and good foresight and if put alongside of his critics and attackers he would be ten times more valuable for our country. F. B. H.

Sacrificial Quixotry

I know a good many real patriotic Americans—not the flag-waving type but those who mix a bit of thought with their patriotism—who are getting plenty fed up with a large part of this defense hokum. I'm with them.

Let's get away from this sacrificial quixotry—like aluminum collections and gas station curfews. Stop to think for just a few minutes—it really won't take long—and you'll realize the meaningless of that sort of hoopla.

Take the aluminum collection. Millions gave away their pots and pans in the name of defense. They were under the illusion that the aluminum would be used to build airplanes. But were they fooled! The aluminum will be used to make more pots and pans. Ask the Army. The Army will tell you the aluminum cannot be reclaimed from these pots and pans in the quality necessary for airplane production. There wouldn't be enough resilience in the material.

So what happens? The OPM sells the pots and pans back to the aluminum companies, which melt them down and make more pots and pans. The patriotic Americans who have given away their cooking utensils must buy more to cook the dinner. So they do. And what do they get? The same aluminum they have given away in the name of defense, at higher prices.

And take the gas station blackout. What does it accomplish? Just this: It enables oil men to make more money, because they are able to cut off just about one-third of their personnel. No wonder the idea originated with them, as Ickes admits. It's the answer to one of their greatest problems—overhead. And several thousands of filling station attendants are being thrown out of work. The oil men deny this, naturally, but just go to any Washington filling station that used to stay open all night and ask the attendant. He will tell you a third of the station's force has been "laid off."

Admittedly, the aluminum collection and the gas curfew have their favorable effects. They bring the public's attention forcibly to the fact that everybody must make sacrifices in this emergency. We thoughtful patriots make no issue there. That's fine. Everybody must make sacrifices, and the sooner everybody realizes it, the better.

But . . . Why, in the name of everything reasonable and just, can't our sacrifices count for something?

MAURICE DABNEY.
Washington, August 2.

Canada And England

I am an Englishwoman by birth, but an American by marriage, so permit me to compliment Mr. Denis-Courtney on his very capable and explanatory letter in answer to Mrs. Charles Ed. Russell's equally unfair remarks on Canada's aid to Britain.

I always read the letters to the editor in your newspaper, because in them I acquire, in a condensed form, a diversity of opinions; and while I claim to be fairly intelligent, a letter like Mrs. Russell's makes me stop and wonder.

There must be many who might be prejudiced by reading such remarks and who would not be fortunate enough to see Mr. Courtney's letter, so it is easy to see how such propaganda can influence many to resent the very fair decisions of our Government. M. I. G.

A Higher Wisdom

Some of us have been wondering if there was ever in this Nation's history a period of greater need for wisdom and guidance than at present. "The Christian Statesman" calls our attention to the fact that the Continental Congress appointed days for national humiliation and prayer. Within a period of seven years five such days were appointed by the Continental Congress. On July 20, 1775; May 17, 1776; December 11, 1776; May 3, 1780, and April 1, 1782. On May 17, 1776 the call contained the following: "That with united hearts we may confess our sins and by a sincere repentance and amendment of life appease His righteous displeasure and through the merits and mediation of Jesus Christ obtain His forgiveness."

Have we become so self-righteous that we need no higher wisdom and power than our own today?

It seems to many of us who have noted the debates in Congress as well as the wide differences of opinion throughout our Nation that above all other considerations we need unity right here in our United States. Let the mud-slinging in Congress cease. It is below the dignity of our Congress.

Remember that motto of earlier days, "United we stand——divided we fall," and with it a picture of a snake with its fangs ready to strike its foe and by its side another snake cut into pieces.

I believe there is no person on earth today who has sufficient wisdom to know what is best for this Nation and the world in the present crisis. But God knows. He used men who called on Him in earlier years of our history to form a government far superior to any on earth then or since and when we repent of our sins of omission and commission He will hear and answer our appeal for the needed wisdom at this time. May we not unitedly do so.

"More things are wrought through prayer than this world dreams of."

Suffield, Conn., July 31.

Labor And Democracy

Without labor, democracy would be a total failure, and yet labor is abused and is denied its full rights to bargain on an equal basis with capital. If democracy is to survive and is to be extended, then we shall have to strive for industrial peace by giving added bargaining power to labor, not only in time of peace, but also in time of war. There would be, I feel sure, fewer strikes today at defense centers, if labor had as much bargaining power as capital. Collective bargaining is the best way to cure the unjust imposition on labor.

There are today in 59 of our American cities millions of manual workers with families of two children or more, whose pay is far below $1,200 a year. It is estimated by the experts that a worker with a family of two small children needs at least $1,500 a year for a bare subsistence budget, which would not provide some of the simplest comforts. Industrial peace is democracy in full force, and to this end let us work as Americans and as democrats! HARRY DANIELS.
Washington, Aug. 1.

Isolationist Motives

"National Socialism alone is destined to liberate the American people from their ruling clique. . . We shall succeed in making the new political and social order the universal basis of life in the world. . . . I guarantee that at the right moment America will exist as our strongest supporter to take the stride into overseas space." (Adolph Hitler, 1934.)

Is the reason that the isolationists do not think Hitler has any design on the United States due to the fact that they would like to assist him in this undertaking?

The Post Impressionist

Woolen Diary

There is something basic about knitting that forms a common bond among women of all time. It's a little like intuition in this way, being so exclusively feminine and all that. Or you might classify it loosely as feminine instinct—if it weren't for the psychological purists behind every bush.

Anyway, whatever the source of the drive you must have noticed a great many needles in action, purling, casting off and what not in a national rhythmic time beat to the slogan "Keep 'em flying." It is woman's age-old response to human need, symbolized by skein and needles in much the same way that a sword or cannon is symbolic of man's reply to national threat.

Hardly anyone just knits. It is the sort of activity that has to team up with something else to round out the fullness of its flavor. It goes particularly well with radio, and the patter of gentle rain on the window doesn't do the combination any damage.

It is an excellent complement to casual visiting; figurative and physical yarns take to each other with a remarkable show of affinity. "She-said-and-I-said" takes on a verbal analogy to "Knit-two-and-purl-two;" and before you know it you are in the midst of some plain and fancy "ribbing."

There are a few super-women who can read and knit at the same time doing full justice to both. This however is not a feat for the novice.

No lecture hall is quite complete and full functioning without here and there the steady rhythmic motion of flying needles and a sweater a-borning.

Now and then knitting goes on apparently as a single activity, without any of its usual accompaniments. It is then, in reality that it reaches its high in subtle complement—composing distracted thoughts. When the daily routine bristles with every shade and grade of irritation known to mortal beings sweet refuge may be found in knitting. There is something so orderly and purposeful in the way a stitch depends on the one preceding and supports the one following it restores your touch with reason and brings you to terms with a tangled world.

Like other specialized activities knitting has its own vocabulary with its particular in-group quality. Initiates cast on and purl and rib with a keen sense of their secret order. Casting off, by the way, is not the rejective thing that it sounds. It is in fact the final high point of achievement in the whole process of knitting a garment, the pleasant business of removing with a ceremonious sort of special stitch the finished product of many odd moments. The ritual is usually climaxed by a little sigh of achievement and some such remark as "Well, that's done." Or "Whew!"

The garment as you hold it up and examine it with a gently critical eye is vastly more than a mere sweater or scarf or helmet. It is in a way a little segment of your personal diary. The first even, rather tight rows reflect the tense earnestness of your resolve at the beginning to be satisfied with nothing less than uncompromising perfection. A little further on you see in a slightly bulging looseness a record of the family debate that evening when you undertook to defend the proposition that the world is growing better despite all evidences to the contrary.

Daily to-and-from bus rides stand out in a fairly regular pattern of fuzzy imperfections. You can even distinguish the various points on the route by their particular effects on the stitches. A small stretch of meticulous evenness reflects the slow progress of the bus through heavy city traffic, the interval of getting under way. A gradual, irregular loosening chronicles the long curve in the road just outside the city where the traffic speeds ahead with considerable rocking from side to side according to the lay of the road. The emphatic bumps at the top of the hill have yielded a daily quota of split stitches, inexpertly corrected later by "doubles."

Quiet coolness of late afternoons on the porch stand out in rows of defensive evenness as a solemn statement that you have some skill when circumstances are not too unfavorable.

Despite a few inept phrases, so to speak, in this woolen journal of odd moments you feel a certain pride in it. Folded with its best section on top it looks like a fairly creditable contribution, and you are determined to turn it in at headquarters with a becoming show of dignity.

You begin to feel a little doubtful as you glance around at the garments on exhibition. There is a machine like perfection in their monotonous regularity. You try to rise above your misgiving by reflecting that as a personal record these smart examples are singularly devoid of interest. Then you remember that no one asked for a personal record, that well knitted garments are the immediate objective of this particular organization.

The Lady-in-Charge accepts your offering and unfolds it with brisk irreverence. "Very nice," she says impersonally, and adds, "Would you like to send a message with it?" she thrusts a little ticket toward you bearing the printed legend: "This garment knitted by——, Address——, Message——."

After some heavy concentration I wrote "Yo-hoo," but that looked feeble and inadequate after all I'd gone through. I finally decided to reinforce it with "Keep 'em flying."

The Fateful Decision Of Petain

IT IS not necessary to explain to any intelligent Frenchman that America has a direct and vital interest in the fate of the French Empire. The surrender of Indo-China has brought this country to the verge of war in the Pacific. The surrender of the African Empire would threaten the security of the Western Hemisphere and enlarge very greatly the scope and the probable duration of the conflict in the Atlantic. A surrender in Africa would cause an irreparable break between America and Vichy. It would mean that the destruction of the Vichy regime had become a necessary part of the destruction of Hitlerism.

LIPPMANN

For the surrender of northwest Africa would not only violate the solemn pledges of Marshal Petain, thus proving that the Vichy regime is not to be trusted in any agreement or political relationship, but it would contribute indisputable proof that the Vichy government had been captured by men who had invested their lives and their fortunes in a Nazi victory. Much that Vichy has done has been explained on the ground that Marshal Petain has a noose around his neck. But what was done in Syria, what might be done in Africa can never be explained in that way.

THE NETHERLANDS are also occupied territory and Dutch soldiers are also prisoners of war and the Dutch people on the continent are also at the mercy of The German army and of the Nazi Party. Nevertheless, the Dutch Empire stands firm and nothing Hitler threatens to do to the Dutch in the occupied territory causes the Dutch in the free world to think of surrendering. Belgium is an occupied country, her King and her army are prisoners of war, her people subject to all the indignities and reprisals of the Nazi conqueror. But the Belgian Empire overseas continues to be at war with Hitler.

There is nothing that Hitler can do to Frenchmen which he cannot do also to the Dutch and the Belgians. Therefore, it would never be possible to accept any explanation which said that Marshal Petain had to break not only the original alliance with Britain but that he had also to violate his own personal pledges to the world. If Africa is surrendered, it will not be because there is no other choice, but because there have prevailed in Vichy the men who wish to help Hitler win the war.

THERE was never less reason than there is at this moment for the surrender of French Africa. A case can be made out for the surrender of Indo-China on the ground that there are no French forces there capable of resisting Japan and that Britain and America did not deem it expedient to make the occupation of Indo-China a question of war and peace. But no such case can be made out for the surrender of Africa.

For with Germany engaged in the great Russian campaign, Hitler's activity in the whole Mediterranean Basin has subsided. He is in no position at this time to send motorized divisions into Africa. He has had to let the Italians languish in Libya, he has to stand by and see the British reinforce Malta for offensive operations against the communications between Italy and Africa. Against the resistance of the British fleet alone, not to speak of what the French fleet could contribute, it is not at the moment conceivable that Hitler could land any considerable force for the invasion of Africa. Thanks to the Russian army and thanks to British sea and air power in the Mediterranean, and with the help of the very substantial support which America could and would give, the French Empire can in fact be defended against Hitler. If it is not defended, though Marshal Petain is pledged to defend it, it will be because the men of Vichy prefer a Hitler victory to the independence and the honor of France.

THERE are obviously Frenchmen who have staked everything on a Hitler victory. A man like Laval could hardly expect to survive and prosper in a liberated France; as a matter of fact he knows and says that his own life is forfeit if Hitler is defeated. Men in this position have been in full control in Vichy. The surrender of Africa would place them in full control and all Frenchmen who participated in the surrender—the whole Vichy regime—would thereafter have as much reason to fear a Nazi defeat as Hitler, Goebbels or Himmler themselves. For in the eyes of true Frenchmen and of all the free peoples they would have committed an unpardonable act of treachery.

Thus they would force France first into war against the Allies and friends of France, and then as the Nazi occupation begins to crumble under the impact of the world-wide coalition that has now been formed their treachery would inexorably provoke a civil war within France. For the liberation of France would then require not merely the expulsion of the Germans but also the total destruction of the Vichy regime.

MARSHAL PETAIN made one tragic miscalculation a year ago when, believing that the war was over, he refused to fight on from Africa. The war was not over and the forces aligned against Germany today are immensely greater than when he made his erroneous decision.

That error could be retrieved today by adhering loyally to his own pledges. If the pledges are broken, when the situation is so favorable to honoring them, Marshal Petain shall not only lose the French Empire to Hitler for the duration of the war, but he will prolong the war perhaps for years—inflicting infinite suffering upon the bodies and deep misery upon the souls of his people.

Fateful Japanese

Tokyo, Aug. 4.—Considering herself confronted, according to the official Domei agency by the "Einkreisungspolitik" of the A. B. C. D. powers—America, Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies—to which she expects a standing for the Soviet Union to be added soon, Japan is speeding up and expanding the total mobilization of the nation for total war.

Mobilization which embraces not only the military forces but also the whole political, economic, industrial and social structure, is being effected by imperial ordinances drafted by the cabinet planning board and other competent authorities approved by the National Mobilization Council under the authority of the general mobilization law passed by the Diet.

MORE THAN a dozen such ordinances, now in preparation for the plenary session of the Mobilization Council, scheduled for August 8-9, are expected to be promulgated soon. They will mobilize labor, capital, industry, agriculture, producers and consumers in a war economy which is controlled by the government but is directed by the country's best business brains.

According to leading Japanese spokesmen, mobilization is necessary because the A. B. C. D.-S powers are lining up to frustrate Japan's divine mission of liberating the nations of greater East Asia from the shackles of European and American capital and from their own "ignorance," which makes them misunderstand Japan's lofty intentions. And while spokesmen have put responsibility for any disturbance to peace in the Pacific on the A. B. C. D.-S powers, all voices are becoming very pessimistic that such a disturbance can be avoided.

Nevertheless, elated over the peaceful occupation of French Indo-China where Japanese troops were received with all diplomatic courtesies, where the French authorities provided them with the best buildings and best barracks, all Japanese spokesmen insofar as they are permitted to reach the public, declare that Japan has no choice but to march onward until the lofty goal which is now taught children in the schools, is attained.

IN THIS CHORUS was heard today a voice with a slightly different nuance. The voice belongs to Retsu Kiyosawa, a noted political commentator who, writing in Chugai Shogyo, a leading business paper, in the form of an open letter to Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, calls for the "mobilization of one of Japan's leading assets, namely, the national reputation of Prince Konoye to overcome the present diplomatic crisis."

Never in her long history, Kiyosawa declares, has Japan been encircled by such a combination of powers as today and he flatly lays responsibility for the crisis on Prince Konoye himself, telling the premier that he has one peculiarity, namely, the "magnanimous indifference characteristic of the court nobles of Kyoto, in which point lie your excellency's demerits."

Nevertheless, Prince Konoye's reputation is such that Koyosawa calls on the premier to:

"1. Collaborate with Toyoda Foreign Minister Vice Admiral Tijiro Toyoda), stake your life as the head of the government on that.

"2. Clarify Japan's grand mission, its objective in terms well understood to the world, so there will be no room for misunderstanding."

SUCH A REQUEST can be understood only against a background of Japan's political setup. And, though Kiyosawa's own wording partakes of all the vagueness peculiar to the Japanese language, his general drift seems clear. Admiral Toyoda, he says, was placed in the foreign office in the midst of the crisis to carry out unshakable national policies, but since the nation knows little of the precise nature of his foreign policy it would be illogical to bank on the nation's support of that policy.

Therefore, Kiyosawa urges that Admiral Toyoda will certainly need the unconditional support of Prince Konoye whose reputation and popularity equals that of the great statesmen of the Meiji era because whatever Admiral Toyoda may try to do, he "may encounter opposition at home and abroad even in the small circle of the foreign office itself."

"Your excellency," says Kiyosawa, "must make the responsibility of the foreign minister your own responsibility."

Only by complete unity between the premier and his foreign minister Kiyosawa points out, were diplomatic crises mastered in the past. And, he cites two examples. The first is the collaboration and mutual correction of each other's views by Premier Prince Hirobumiito and Foreign Minister Count Munemite U. Matsu, following the Sino-Japanese war in 1894-5 which induced Japan to revise the peace treaty and give up the Liaotung Peninsula when confronted by the overwhelming strength of the triple alliance of that time, consisting of Russia, Germany and France.

THE SECOND is the complete support Premier Prince Taro Katsura gave Foreign Minister Jutaro Komura when the latter was confronted by military opposition and exposed to popular indignation because he consented to the Portsmouth peace that ended the Russo-Japanese war but which the Japanese at that time felt robbed them of the full fruits of victory. Today Japanese commentators frankly admit that when the treaty was signed the Japanese forces had exhausted their ammunition while the Russians had rallied for a counter-attack which had it been undertaken might have resulted in a different outcome of that war.

As regards to clarifications of National policies, there are many observers here, both foreign and Japanese, who feel that the greatest danger in the situation lies in the fact that neither side has explained them fully; that the Anglo-American camp, in particular, never definitely stated what the exact point is beyond which Japan cannot go without getting into war.

As a result by reason of her own expansionist forces as well as opportunities presented her, Japan is bound to continue testing resistance, especially since until recently the Japanese were under the impression that Great Britain was willing to adopt the same appeasement policy to Japan that tempted Hitler on his course. Until the world is definitely informed what the United States and Great Britain consider as a cause for war, Japan cannot stop herself nor can any Japanese statesman present the case to his own people, especially to the most active elements of the nation.

MEANWHILE, Japan continues to be haunted by the encirclement specter. The newspaper Yomiuri, in a dispatch from Hanoi, lists the following as the principal items in the A. B. C. D.'s program:

1. The United States is to spend $40,000,000 constructing airfields in various places of southwestern China, including Chungking, Kueiyang and Kumming.

2. Great Britain and the United States will detail 600 planes to these airfields.

3. America and Great Britain will furnish 200 pilots, and Russia 100.

4. The construction of a railroad between Russian Siberia and Lanchow is to be accelerated.

As regards to the statement by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox that Japan has one-and-one-half years oil supply on hand, the Yomiuri says that way of thinking is pretty old by now. It points out that there is plenty of oil on the island of Saghalien in the north, and the Netherlands East Indies in the south; and it says there is Burma which produces 1,000,000 tons annually but about which the British are keeping very quiet.

In view of the situation, especially the attachment of Japanese ships in American ports, the Nitta Maru canceled its scheduled sailing for San Francisco August 7, leaving a number of Americans wishing to return here, stranded. They include four assistants in the American Embassy at Moscow. The plight of would-be travelers is all the greater because it is virtually impossible to reach even Shanghai, where better shipping facilities are available.

Hitler Rules Japan

By Charles N. Spinks

German Diplomats Are Fifth Columnists

(This is the third of a series of five articles depicting in documented detail the a-range hold the Nazis have obtained on Japan. The author, an authority on the Far East, was until recently managing editor of Japan News-Week, American weekly published in Tokyo, and on the faculty of the Tokyo University of Commerce.)

THE WHOLESALE ABUSE of diplomatic immunity has been a major contribution to the success of the Nazi fifth column which now overruns Japan like a plague of locusts.

This device expedites undercover activity and espionage by the German Embassy staff, 250 strong, shielding them from police interference. It covers illegal exchange transactions and the smuggling of cheap Japanese yen from Shanghai in the diplomatic bag. It enables the Nazis to bring into Japan bales of propaganda material, some of which is reshipped to the United States and South America by Japanese vessels.

And, in addition to the things done under the veil of diplomatic immunity, the undercover work of the Embassy is supplemented by the equally undercover activity of a number of German commercial firms.

THE NAZI import-export firm of Illies & Co. is a nerve center of fifth column work. Its general manager, R. Hillman, collects contributions and dues from other German firms. In his espionage and subversive manipulations, he is (or was) assisted by another company representative, Paul Wigand, formerly of the German Imperial Navy and minister of interior.

Another astute operator and fifth column stalking horse is Kurt Meissner, of the L. Leybold Shokwan, German trading house, who came to Japan in 1905. He has a profound knowledge of the Japanese language and is well known for his Oriential studies, an ideal personality for approaching Japanese. Meissner and Gen. Ott, the German Ambassador, are two of the handful of foreigners who enjoy membership in the most exclusive restaurant-club in Tokyo, the Hoshigaoka Saryo at Sanno, which frequently provides the locale for Nazi contact-making dinner parties.

The Nazi fifth column, working in collusion with the Japanese home office, has already weeded out from Japan most non-Nazi Germans, respectable men like Dr. Kurt Singer and Hans Binkenstein who refused to cooperate with the Nazis. More recently, the fifth column has turned its attention to other foreigners, capitalizing on the acute Japanese spy complex.

EARLY in 1940, Nazi snoops and informers were partly responsible for the arrest and imprisonment of James R. Young, I. N. S. correspondent in Tokyo, who had attempted to expose the malignant activities of Dr. Walther Pausch and Reinhardt Schultz of the Hitler Youth Movement, special agents from Berlin whose duty was to foment agitation against a number of anti-Axis Japanese writers.

The fifth column's real triumph, however, was the celebrated spy scare of last summer which resulted in the arrest of a score of prominent British subjects and in the mysterious death at police headquarters of James Cox, correspondent for Reuters.

This spy scare was primarily a diversion to distract attention from Nazi Fifth Column meddling preparatory to the signing of the Tripartite Alliance. The foreign-owned English language press, some of the more independent Japanese dailies and a number of prominent Japanese had begun to call attention to this undercover work. Moreover, the secret mission of Dr. Heinrich Stahmer, high Nazi official from Berlin then in Tokyo to expedite the conclusion of the alliance, was becoming a too frequent subject of discussion for Fifth Column comfort.

THE anti-British spy scare was a tremendous success. It silenced all further comment on Nazi operations, and the Japanese press taking its cue, was immediately clamoring for action against the British "Daigo Retsu" (Fifth Column) in Japan!

That this piece of political subversion was basically the work of the Germans there can be no doubt. The affair was engineered through Nazi contacts with the Kempeital, in charge of enforcing the military secrets law under which the British were arrested for their alleged espionage activity. The day before the arrests were made one of the German Embassy's go-betweens inadvertently revealed the plot to the writer, who refused to believe it. Even the metropolitan police had no knowledge of the arrests until the death of Cox three days later broke the story.

Spy scares have proved a perfect red herring for the Nazi Fifth Column. Britain, and more recently the United States, are the scapegoats. Every month articles appear in the Japanese press and periodicals on the subject of British and American espionage in Japan. The authors are frequently associated with patriotic societies and other groups having close relations with the Nazi Fifth Column. These hair-raising accounts are intended to keep alive the diversion created by the spy scare of last summer.

ABUSES of diplomatic immunity provide the funds wherewith these and other Fifth Column activities are financed.

Diplomatic immunity simplifies the importation, without customs inspection, of such espionage apparatus as small portable short-wave radio transmitters, photographic equipment, sounding instruments, range finders, apparatus for forging Japanese official seals, documents and passes, and even firearms and hand grenades.

It also makes possible the purchase with cheap yen and the removal from Japan without official permit of vast quantities of luxury goods which Japanese can no longer buy.

YEN SMUGGLING has proved a ready-made racket to finance Fifth Column work in Japan. Japanese currency is officially pegged at around 4.20 yen to the United States dollar. This, in Japan. In the free exchange market of Shanghai, however, the Japanese yen, fighting against convertible Chungking currency, sinks to its real value, anywhere from 10 to 20 yen to the American dollar. But such exchange operations on a large scale soon raised havoc with the domestic money market; and the Japanese government, seeking to prevent much-needed foreign currency from being diverted to the pockets of Shanghai brokers, banned the importation of Japanese currency, except for a mere 200 yen.

The diplomatic bag of an embassy or legation, however, enjoys diplomatic immunity, regardless of its contents, and the Germans and Italians thus found a cheap way to take care of embassy expenses.

Millions of yen have been smuggled in from Shanghai, because the Fifth Column requires enormous sums.

A notorious Indian terrorist, an exile in Japan where he long assisted the promotion of an Indian Nationalist Movement and now a go-between for the German Embassy, revealed that the Fifth Column spent close to 80,000,000 yen in the first year of the European war.

THE FIFTH COLUMNISTS also buy up large quantities of "Zeitakuhim," luxury goods, which Japanese, regardless of their wealth, are now prohibited from purchasing. Just before returning to the United States, the writer went to a well-known silversmith in downtown Tokyo to purchase a silver cigarette case. The back of the shop was piled to the ceiling with heavy packing cases ready for shipment abroad, addressed to the German Embassy.

Bought in Japan with cheap yen smuggled from Shanghai, such goods are sold abroad to give the Germans foreign exchange.

Last fall three Nazi diplomatic couriers arrived at Tsuruga. Their luggage amounted to 22 metric tons. Besides the usual bales of propaganda material, there were several cases containing short-wave radio transmitters. By the same method, firearms and even hand-grenades have been brought in for the use of armed patrols which guard the German Embassy night and day.

SHORT-WAVE radio receivers require an impossible-to-get permit from the Japanese authorities and transmitters are absolutely banned. But Nazis have no trouble in owning both. The German Embassy is equipped with a powerful transmitter, and there are dozens more scattered over Japan, concealed in the homes of Fifth Columnists and even in their automobiles.

Their purpose is to assure communications with Germany, among Fifth Columnists throughout Japan and the Far East, and with German raiders in the Pacific. Thus far, however, they have been put to the most sparing use, for the Nazis have relied wherever possible on Japanese communication facilities. Yet there may be a time when the Japanese will be unable or unwilling to assist the Germans, or when it will be advisable to transmit information entirely by German-controlled stations.

THE INTERRUPTION of communications across Siberia as a result of the Soviet-German war is one such contingency. So would be a rightist revolution or military coup d'etat when all communication with the outside world would be temporarily suspended.

And finally, if Japan goes to war with the United States, the Fifth Column will require its own communication facilities.

Fair Enough

A Motto To Combat Hysteria

IF I had to select a second-string national motto real quick, to supplement "E Pluribus Unum," my effort would be a common, low-down Americanese phrase that was current in the sport business 20 years ago and probably was tossed off in the heat of argument around the old Garden or the pioneer by some such rough-and-tumble wit as the late Leo Flynn, Will McCarney or Jimmy (Square Guy) Johnston. Mine would be "keep your shirt on" and I hereby propose that the same be worked into one of our ephemeral three-cent issues from the Post-office Department, stamped on a special two-bit piece, rubber-stamped on the postal cancellations and stenciled hither and yon over the country.

PEGLER

A backward glance over the last two and a half decades reveals that we have gone through several mass manias or periods of hysteria and that we did not realize at the time that we were more or less nuts. The last war undoubtedly was one of these fits but anyone is dishonest who now takes a second guess and berates Woodrow Wilson or the British or French or that vague, shapeless faceless monster known as the international banker for making monkeys out of the great, free American people with their high average degree of intelligence and education. Granting that the American people are as intelligent as we all insist we are and assuming that the time and money spent on dousing our young with learning has produced results, it is absurd to think now that we can shift the blame for any vast popular folly to any individual or external influence. A perusal of the debates, a review of the insulting abuse of our hospitality by the German and Austrian governments, a recollection of the arrogance of the German Kaiser and the long-forgotten but authenticated bestialities of the German armies and the German administrators of conquered country then, will explain why the American people went whooping to the war. Whether it was wise to take that course is debatable but the fact cannot be denied that the sentiment of the people was overwhelmingly angry and mixed with idealism or nobility. Possibly a shrewder way would have been to hang back and arm to the teeth somewhat as Wheeler, Lindbergh, Nye and the rest are proposing now, but we didn't. Nobody who thought we should do that could get a hearing or even escape mob action or solemn, legal prosecution for saying so.

IN FLORIDA we saw frantic men and women trading sheets of paper which stood for little 50-foot or 100-foot strips or acreage plots of dreary, bug and snake infested land, and parcels that were not land at all but sea-bottom. They schemed, hustled, connived and gypped one another in a frenzy of greed and speculation and drove up prices so high that anyone could see that actual or potential value of the land or sea-bottom, itself, bore no more relation to the trading price than existed between a blue chip in a gambling joint, intrinsic value, five cents, and the $50 that the bug-eyed client cheerfully paid for the same in stacks of 20. The Florida boomsters were nuts and some of them knew they were but hoped to cash in before the terrible realization spread through the whole pack, "we're nuts." And everybody turned sane and sorry at once.

Chicago had a similar but less widespread spell of lunacy and then we all went crazy in concert, except me and four or five others out of the whole country, over stock mark speculation. I knew it was lunacy early in the game thanks to a casual experience one sunny winter day in Florida when a man who had been a newsboy, then a fight promoter, stopped in at a broker's office, ordered some stock, sunned himself a couple of hours on the beach and, returning to his hotel, stopped again at the broker's to sell at a profit of a thousand dollars. I told him he was nuts and he said I was but he has held no pair since the market exploded and I haven't seen him since to ask who's looney now.

WE went nuts about golf and country-club life, and crazy over liquor to the extent that the adult, responsible citizens would haggle and traffic with the lowest criminal vermin in the land to obtain a case of poisoned hootch mixed in some dirty cellar and would drool and carry on like imbeciles over the beauties of a label when they knew it must be counterfeit.

We are not less sound than other peoples. The Germans can drive themselves to mass slaughters which cancel their pretense to civilization but, unlike us, they never mix chivalry with their madness and always kill in utter selfishness. The French are capable of all the horrors of mass gut-letting when they let themselves go and the memorable general strike in Liverpool showed that once the restraint is off, the British are dangerous even to themselves.

I CAN TELL by my letters that our people are boiling slightly or anyway simmering when they should be thinking on several subjects.

But this is no time to come to a boil in our domestic affairs and I propose that every public meeting be opened with the admonition from the chairman, "keep your shirt on."

Swift Action Strengthens Philippines for Emergency

By the Associated Press

Manila, Aug. 4.—Swift consolidation of Philippine armed forces under Lieut. Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur, commanding the United States Army in the Far East, was augmented today by steps designed to strengthen domestic preparation of the islands for any emergency.

Announcement that the Philippine Air Corps hereafter would be known as the Air Force of the Far Eastern Command was followed quickly by action of President Manuel Quezon in authorizing promotion of 52 Philippine army officers, including three to be colonels.

The advisability of stationing guards at all oil tanks and other fuel storage facilities to prevent sabotage was considered by the Civilian Emergency Administration. Two thousand additional constabularymen will be moved into Manila, bringing the total in this area to 4,000.

(President Quezon recently warned eight socialist mayors that stern reprisals would follow any disloyal actions by their followers. Officials are concerned over the possibility that hostilities might precipitate socialist attempts to gain control in Districts of central Luzon where they are strongest).

Manila's recent blackout, the practice evacuation of a slum district Sunday, the mining of Manila and Subic Bays, incorporation of Philippine forces into the United States Army and heavy reinforcements of the latter, especially the air arm, have combined to emphasize the seriousness of the situation and to give evidence that the islands will be fully prepared.

Sortavala, Claimed by Finns, Port for Ancient Monastery

Sortavala on the north shore of Lake Ladoga, reported captured by the Finns, is in the territory which they ceded to the Soviets last year. The Finns claim not only to have recaptured the city, but to have advanced along the lake shore southeast to Tuulos.

"Finnish volunteers fought in this same region in 1919, when aiding the Karelians against the Russians," a bulletin from the National Geographic Society says. "At that time a small army of two battalions followed the lake shore through Tuulos on to Aunus, but were driven back by Russian naval forces on the lake.

Once Pilgrim Mecca

"Sortavala was largely destroyed by Soviet forces in the war against the Finns, in January of last year, when the Soviets advanced upon the town with artillery and bombed it from the air. It normally had a population of some 5,000.

"Sortavala was the debarkation port for the famous islands monastery of Valamo, where monks of the Greek Orthodox Church began in the tenth century the erection of their religious colony now capping the islands with domes, belled towers, and golden crosses. The hooded monks long operated lake steamers transporting pilgrims from Sortavala through the fiordlike maze to the island shrines, some 20 miles to the south.

"The harbor of Sortavala is reached through many island channels. The town is well connected by rail and motor highway with all important Finnish cities and with Finland's extensive canal, river and lake transportation system. But it is more important as an education center than for its industries, mostly sawmilling and plywood.

"Though founded more than three centuries ago, Sortavala has wide, straight streets, for the most part. Modern four-story buildings are replacing one-story wooden structures. Stone for the public buildings comes from nearby quarries which also supplied material for many of Leningrad's buildings.

"At Tuulos, where some of the Finnish-Axis forces were last reported, the lake shore is low and sandy. There are no offshore islands and the harbor of the small town is insignificant. The lake yields salmon, lake trout, whitefish, perch and other varieties. This Karelian town depends mostly on water transportation, since it has only a highway connection with the distant Murmansk railroad, and that highway is difficult a part of the year."

Berlin in Range of New, Fast British Fighter Plane

By the United Press

An Airplane Factory Somewhere in England, Aug. 4.—From this factory are zooming jet black, 330-mile-an-hour speedsters known as Beaufighters to provide a double headache for Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe in the long winter nights ahead.

The men who fly the night skies say every one is 20,000 pounds of "dream"—with a wallop.

These formidable new night fighters will do double duty—provide the Royal Air Force the protection for long-range bombers which it has been seeking and deal death in defensive bouts with German raiders over Britain.

Has 1,500-Mile Range

The Beau is an all-metal, midwing monoplane capable of flying 1,500 miles without a stop (Berlin is 580 miles from Britain) and possessing a top speed in excess of 330 miles at 14,000 feet, where it really counts.

Nestled in the wings and fuselage are four 20-millimeter cannon and at least six Browning machine guns. The plane is powered by two Bristol Hercules air-cooled engines developing 1,400 horsepower each, and its maneuverability is astounding.

For months designers have been laboring to develop a fighter plane, especially a night fighter, suitable for escorting R. A. F. bombers on long flights to Germany—a lack which has been one of the great problems of the British aerial offensive. Now they believe they have the answer.

If production at this particular plant is any criterion, there soon will be enough of the speedy craft to ride herd on a mighty bomber armada. And there are several other factories producing the same plane.

As fast as a fighter is produced, it is rolled onto the testing field for a tryout, then off it roars to a fighter airdrome for front-line action.

Ministry Gives Details Of New Plane

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—The ministry of aircraft production disclosed today that the R. A. F.'s Bristol Beaufighter carries the exceptionally powerful armament of four cannon in the fuselage and six machine guns in the wings.

Other details released for the first time:

It is an all-metal midwing monoplane with a nominal top speed of more than 330 miles an hour at 14,000 feet, carrying a load of 7,200 pounds, including oil and armament.

It is powered by two Bristol Hercules 14-cylinder 111 engines developing 1,400 horsepower for the takeoff. It has a nominal range of 1,500 miles, carries a crew of two and is "designed and equipped as a formidable long-range day and night fighter."

It has an all-over weight of 21,000 pounds, wing span of 57 feet 10 inches and length of 41 feet 4 inches.

One of its features are two hatches in the underside of the fuselage, which, when released, create a dead air region for the crew's emergency parachute exit.

$15,000,000 Spent On New Phones

Boom town Washington's nerves are a million miles of cabled telephone wires.

In the hands of 5,500 employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. lies the job of vocalizing the orders of Government and thus speeding up the national defense effort.

Consider a typical day for these workers and for the citizens of the Nation's Capital, where there is approximately one phone in working order for every two residents.

At Eighteenth and G Streets Northwest a crew of five men are unrolling a cable and pulling it into the State Department to relieve the pressure of increased calls there.

In the central offices in the 700 block of Twelfth Street Northwest, George Ferber, of 1217 E Street Southeast, is splicing and testing 3,030 new wires.

Nearly 200 operators are handling their share of the daily average 24,000 long-distance calls—calls which have almost doubled in number since last year due to the shift into high gear of the country's defense effort.

But these are only a few of the linemen, operators, office employes and specialists who are at work—as they are at work every day—because in the words of Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., "We have a tradition of service to the Nation which is a living thing."

Fifteen million dollars is being spent in Washington this year by the local company for new telephone construction and equipment. It represents an investment of some eight million dollars more than the amount of equipment which was in service here when the United States entered the war in 1917.

Local calls have increased to 1,800,000 daily—a growth of some 400,000 over this date last year. Installation work is up 75 per cent.

The increase of new telephones in the Washington area in the first seven months of this year has passed that of the entire year of 1940—something of a "defense year" itself. To meet these demands the company has added more than 1,000 employes to the pay rolls in the last year.

With the increased burden of work, it is reported, service has not slowed down. In the last few weeks, the service time on long-distance calls is said to have been lowered to less than five seconds.

Around the telephone company buildings are posters declaring, "All Out for National Defense!" The workers won't deliver orations on that subject. Instead, they are working it out in their own way.

FASHION FORUM

By Jane Driscoll

In this column, to appear on this page weekly, The Post Fashion Editor will answer inquiries concerning personal problems of dress. Write her for fashion advice.

Late Summer Chic

"WHAT should I wear on a late August vacation back to my home town?" This question has been asked this fashion editor by several correspondents who do not want to buy new fall outfits yet, but who want to look smart for home goings.

My advice is to plan one good looking outfit. You will want to look your best for luncheon, teas and afternoon calls. If you make one first impression of smartness, you are likely to carry that picture through the rest of your costumes.

Choose the best looking dress you have in your wardrobe—preferably a dark one—and build around it. Select chic fall accessories to liven the dress and give you that ahead-of-the-season look.

New gloves and a large handbag in a dark accessory color that you can wear all fall and perhaps into winter, are wise choices. The most important item, however, is a new hat. Try one of the brimmed varieties. The trend is toward brims that point right out in front. Some have forward dips and many have very shallow crowns. You might even select one of the profile shapes that reveal only half a face. If you wear black well, it is the best color choice for early fall.

To Minimize Legs

One woman writes that her legs are large in proportion to the rest of her body. She wants to know if she is the type that can wear the new colored stockings.

In general, any woman may wear colored hose if they do not emphasize her legs. However, beauty experts insist shapely legs are needed to wear colored stockings successfully. But in some instances, colored hose may even minimize the legs when worn in the proper shades. If they are the same color as the dress they may call less attention to the legs. Not so, however, when they contrast with the dress and match some other part of the ensemble. Stockings that match furs are also less noticeable. As for black stockings, so much in vogue now, it should be noted that the sheer ones look white on the legs.

'Football' Shoulders

Another query concerns padded shoulders in fur coats. One woman who purchased a new fur coat with generously padded shoulders wants to know what she should do about them.

My suggestion is to do nothing about padded shoulders, unless they are of the extreme variety. While rounded shoulders are the vogue, there is still padding in them because it makes a more flattering silhouette. If you feel yours are too exaggerated, however, take your coat to a competent furrier and merely have a little of the padding removed.

Black Suede Shoes Give Autumn Touch

Black suede shoes—to give that touch of autumn to your end-of-the-summer outfits—are fashion's newest note. Fashion scouts tell us that suede shoes are striking a new high this season. They take on unique trimming, such as bright colored platforms, bindings, bows and buckles; or they stay sweet and simple in the classic tango-style pump.

Actress Mary Martin, right, shows how to combine your dark accessories and black suede shoes with a light beige wool afternoon suit. She chooses simple shoes to contrast with the "strictly new" effect of her dress with a double drape at the throat and waistline.

Below, we see the long and short of the "heel" story for fall. Taking the country by storm are low-heeled black suede town shoes with binding and platform in red. Below that, is the more formal version of the black suede sandal with thong-binding, platform and buckle in red.

In the two black suede versions shown here note these things: bright colored decorative trimming, platforms back and going strong and low heels, striking a new "low."

Widow Can't Meet Expenses on Small Annuity, Because Her New England In-Laws Urge All Their Friends to Lean on Her While Seeing Washington

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a widow, aged 39. My late husband, a New Englander by birth, was well known in a certain restricted circle. His mother and sister—still living in New England—are carrying on in the family tradition. Mrs. X was a well-known educator in her youth, and is now enjoying (as the result of earlier labors) an adequate retirement income. Miss X is very active in her chosen field and is compensated, in personal glory, for what she is denied in the way of salary.

At my husband's death I was bequeathed a small annuity, which, if carefully managed, is adequate to give me the necessities of life. Which brings me to my problem. Both Mrs. X and Miss X (who live on small incomes) adore saying to their friends: "Do look up John's wife when you get to Washington. She will be delighted to take you around." And they expect me to be ready, at all times, to act as hostess, chauffeur and tourists' guide to any of their acquaintances who come here.

They expect me, too, to live in a "respectable" apartment, maintain a cheap car and to appear well groomed—which latter is a problem in itself, due to rising prices. And when it comes to feeding these locusts, I am stymied. To make matters worse, some time ago I indorsed a note for one of my girlhood friends and, also, underwrote some purchases made by her son, who is my godchild. This friend later died, leaving no estate, and her son is now in the Army. Which means that I am paying off the note, plus his debts, in addition to meeting my regular expenses.

So how can I prevent this influx of guests from back home? And what, if anything, can an untrained woman do that would yield enough income to take care of these extra-curricular expenses? I believe I have most of the social graces, and might make an excellent hostess. But who wants one? My typing is atrocious. I am greatly in demand as a volunteer driver, but that means providing the gasoline and wearing out tires at my expense. So that's out.

I have resigned from all clubs, including my college club, which I enjoyed immensely, and my music is limited to the radio. My clothes are of the Early American scarescrow mode, and every month I just get a little farther behind. If you have any helpful suggestions, I shall be undyingly grateful. GRISELDA.

Outwit Parasites By Going to Work

DEAR GRISELDA: The all-around solution of your problem will be found in going to work at a salaried job. Even a small earned income probably would more than cancel out those monthly payments you are obliged, unfortunately, to make on behalf of your deceased friend and her draftee son. And, as a "business woman," you would have the unarguable explanation as to why you cannot spend your days playing hostess, chauffeur and guide to a never-ending stream of New England visitors to the Nation's Capital.

In the meantime you might have your name taken out of the telephone directory, supposing it is listed there; and seek what refuge you can, from thoughtless intrusion, in a "silent" number. Hearsay acquaintances will be less likely to "look you up" if denied easy conversational access to you by telephone. And there is always a chance that those who fortify themselves with your address and telephone number, before heading toward Washington, may lose track of the notation somewhere in transit.

Also, while shopping for a job, it would be well to allocate a generous portion of your days to national defense or war relief work, so that when loafing out-of-towners bring themselves to your attention, you can be at once "delighted" to hear from them, and "terribly sorry" not to be able to show them around, because of your committee work, student courses, assistant-to-the-assistant volunteer contributions, etc., in imposing detail. You may give them the sophisticate's cordial "rush act" by insisting that you "simply must see them while they are here," and "will they please have tea with you tomorrow at 5, on the Washington roof—it's centrally located—" because you are "sure to be free then, and the view is delightful."

If they cannot fall in with your plan, so much the better. That ends the matter. And if they have alternative suggestions, such as would consume a day, an afternoon or an evening, plead previous engagements, or the fact that you are "up to your ears, alas, in this volunteer work you are doing," and retiring at 9 p. m. nowadays, on doctor's orders. It is your prerogative to be (as someone has said) "ruthless but not rude" in protecting your limited resources against careless exploitation by virtual strangers. It is not commendable—indeed, it is inexcusably foolish and pretentious—for you to bring yourself to the verge of want by "putting on a show" merely to oblige your in-laws' desire to curry further favor (at no cost to themselves) with their neighbors and friends.

It is time to acquaint your in-laws, cheerfully but pointedly, with your situation of "genteel poverty." When you write to them, dwell on the rising costs of living; your mounting determination (inspired by necessity) to find employment; your dismay at not having been able to "do more for the So-and-Sos, when they were here"; your vanishing wardrobe with its Gibson Girl flavor, etc., etc. Mention the curfew on gasoline sales, remarking, that it is okay by you, since you have been using your cahe less and less, anyway, owing to the extravagant operating costs. Speculate on the possibility of getting rid of it, and using the trolley cars in future. Keep them reminded that you have difficulty "making both ends meet," even as they have, on their small incomes.

Now, as to what kind of work you can find to do—my advice is to take that question to Dr. Marjorie Shearon, president of the Women's Occupational Council of the District of Columbia. You may interview her any Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Room 110, the American University Building, at 1901 F Street Northwest, where she presides over weekly meetings of the Women's Job Clinic, an organization she brought into being nine months ago to help women 35 years of age or older find the salaried jobs they are qualified to handle.

Between 50 and 100 women have attended the weekly meetings during these months—and I heard Dr. Shearon report last week that one-third of the total roll call of job applicants has secured employment under Clinic auspices. Incidentally, Dr. Shearon recommends Sidney Edlund's book, "Pick Your Job and Land It," as an invaluable guide and stimulant to the job-hunting older women. The retail price of this book is $3, although it may be obtained through the Clinic for $1.80. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Defense Crisis Will Bring Out Attic Reserves

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

LOOKS LIKE we'll all be digging in the attic for old things to use again, what with industry shifting its gears to turn out defense materials instead of peacetime luxuries.

The finest of rayon yarns are needed for making parachutes. The long staple cotton is going into staunch duck. What wool we will have available will be needed for uniforms. In the case of many important fibres the problems won't be so much a matter of lack of raw materials as it will be production complications—all the men and machines will be too busy working on Government orders to consider civilian merchandise that we can do without. As Leon Henderson put it succinctly recently—the party is over as far as spending is concerned.

Attic Trunks

But American women are not going to be too upset by that—at least as far as home decoration is concerned. We're ingenious . . . we're energetic . . . we're resourceful. And we have an awful lot of stuff in those attic trunks—relics of the days of plenty.

We will make those faded old slip-covers "do" by dipping them in the dye pot and achieving a lovely subtle color that may well have a more interesting tone than when new. We'll tint old curtains instead of buying new ones and we'll make hooked rugs out of old wool scraps and braided rugs out of old cotton fabrics . . . the same things our grandmothers did when faced with the same sort of necessity. We'll probably make pieced quilts too—not for pastime but from need—before the emergency is over.

How to Save

Where our own attics and efforts can't replace things the defense program needs, then we shall have to learn to curtail and makeshift. Electricity may become an economy spot . . . not only because power is needed for other things but because supplies of certain metals used in making sockets may be threatened. Our shining aluminum kitchenware may become a pleasant memory—know what we'll use instead? Cast iron pots and pans—the two things expected to be plentiful. Of course nothing is really better for cooking than cast iron and much of it now has a chromium wash that makes it easier to look at and easier to keep. Pyrex is versatile and abundant . . . you can get tea kettles, double boilers, frying pans and all sorts of other cooking things of glass. And woodenware is coming back into its own . . . wooden mixing spoons and mashers and bowls.

Grape Juice Shrub

MRS. Grace F. Hiehle, 3423 South Dakota Avenue Northeast, is a creator of new ways to use old favorites. Recently Mrs. Hiehle won an award in a national contest for a new idea on using canned or bottled fruit or vegetable juice. She has sent me the winning recipe—Grape Juice Shrub—to pass on to The Washington Post readers. This is a delightful food for the hot weather that is gripping Washington. Here is her recipe:

Grapejuice Shrub

Combine 1½ cups young raw beets (grated) with 2 cups raspberries, ½ cup sugar and 4 cups water. Bring to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Let simmer for 10 minutes. Strain through a fine sieve and let cool. Add 2 cups grape juice, ½ cup lemon juice and 1 quart carbonated water and serve in tall glasses. Half fill the glasses with chopped ice, fill with shrub and garnish with whole raspberries and serve.

Clean Out the Ice Box

The hotter the weather, the more important is cleanliness of the refrigerator. Spilled foods should be wiped up immediately to avoid molds and bad orders. Left-overs should not be left too long. In addition to day-to-day care of the refrigerator there should be a complete weekly cleansing with lukewarm water. Shelves, cube containers, vegetable and egg containers should be included in the weekly wash-up.

Turn Nerves Into Charm

NO WONDER she thinks she's "going crazy," for she's beset by vague aches and pains, by fits of depression which friends tell her, are all imagination.

The victim of "nerves" is often misunderstood. Indeed, she often misunderstands herself, not realizing that frayed nerves are as real as a broken bone—and deserving of as much care and sympathy.

If you're the high-strung type you're apt to throw yourself into everything you do, exhausting valuable nervous energies. If only you'd know how to go easy! Your extra dash of dynamite might make you extra charming, much more so than placid types.

Be a miser with your energies. Don't let yourself be a slave to the daily round. Take a day off, spend the morning in bed. Next time you get wrought up over some worry, break the tension with physical activity—a walk.

Wise, also, to see if you're harboring any of those "complexes" that the psychiatrists say are behind so many of our nervous ills!

In our 40-page booklet, "How to Avoid and Overcome Nervous Troubles," a noted psychiatrist explains causes of "nerves," advises on spending your energies more wisely. Discusses "nerve" symptoms such as indigestion, headaches.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "How to Avoid and Overcome Nervous Troubles," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, New York, N. Y. Write plainly 109 West Nineteenth Street, your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Capes Will Be Smart

Hollywood, Calif.—Howard Shoup complains that just when he is getting in the mood for summer clothes he finds himself deluged with predictions for fall. Howard refuses to comment on the fall picture other than to say that clothes will be casual, that russet and navy will be a good color combination, and that every smart girl will wear a cape.

Eyes Require More Care as Age Advances; They Are Index to General State of Health

By Ida Jean Kain

BAGS UNDER the eyes are not always a joking matter. When the condition persists, you not only should have your eyes examined by an ophthalmologist, but should have a thorough physical examination to check your heart, blood pressure and circulation, as well.

This opinion is taken from an article by Dr. LeGrand H. Hardy, assistant clinical professor of ophthalmology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, which was published in "Neighborhood Health" by the Department of Health of New York City.

Symptoms Show in Eyes

For the person of 30 or thereabouts, the warning is: "Evidences of organic disease or age changes in other parts of the body become increasingly evident in the eyes (diabetes, kidney disease, hardening of the arteries), and it is in this age group where we most frequently encounter the semi-dilated pupils with sluggish reactions characteristic of increased pressure inside the eye—chronic simple glaucoma."

Some of the more dramatic changes are the normal concomitants of advancing years. Others, which might go unnoticed by the individual, may be signs of serious trouble. Only a competent eye physician can make the differentiation. As the best safeguard to vision, it is suggested that a careful and complete examination be had at the age of 40, with periodic routine examinations from then on.

From the same source, it was learned that granulation of the eyelids is to be attributed to eyestrain, chronic infection, or bad diet. With reference to diet, all the essential food elements are needed, for the eyese reflect the state of general health.

When Eyes Are Bloodshot

When the eyes are bloodshot and strained, it is helpful to bathe them in warm water followed by a dash of cold. The benefit is similar to that derived from taking a warm shower followed by cold to relieve fatigue. The eyes also may be massaged gently, up and around.

If the eyes are sensitive inside, relief can be obtained by bathing with lukewarm salt water. If the congestion is in the lids, it is better to have the water cold—room temperature or lower.

And don't be too prompt to pooh-pooh the beauty tip of resting with pads of cotton, saturated in some cooling liquid, placed over the eyelids. Our authority seems to approve the idea. The pads may be saturated in a salt water solution—one teaspoon of salt to one pint of boiled tap water. Or, to give an extra sensation of [illegible], a few drops of camphor may be added to the boiled water.

Cotton Continues 'Round the Calendar

Cotton enters the third lap of its year-'round fashion race with a fanfare of bright colors in deep hues, eye-appealing designs, and a diversified range of fabrics, reports the Cotton-Textile Institute.

Newest development lies in corded fabrics and gabardines that simulate corduroy but are lighter weight. One with the soft texture of corduroy but the weave of a gabardine, "Gaboroy," is being used in men's sportswear. Corduroy itself is featured in all ribs and is seen in mix-and-match outfits for fall vacationists, accessory sets, top-coats, suits for college girls, and children's wear.

Lipstick Tricks For Sophisticate

If you're the sophisticated type and don't mind wearing the extreme, try these sophisticate tricks with lipstick—or rather, with two lipsticks. We saw Lupe Velez experiment, and the effects are wonderful to behold. Choose two lipsticks, in blending colors, apply one on top of the other; or accent the tip you want to widen with the brighter of the two tints. You can also use two shades to narrow your mouth, using the darker as an outline.

But don't do all this if you are striving for the natural!

Luxembourg Rulers To Attend Reception

Affair Will Be Given Friday Afternoon By the Minister and Mme. Gallais In Honor of U. S. Consul George P. Waller

By Carolyn Bell

Jolting Washington rudely—but, oh, how willingly!—out of the social doldrums will be the reception Friday afternoon to be given by the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais. Furthermore, the reception, to quote from the engraved invitation, will be "in the presence of T. R. H. the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg and the Prince of Luxembourg."

With the crowned heads of Europe turning up in this Capital with astounding regularity one might expect Washingtonians to become a bit blase—but such is not the case. They are looking forward with interest to greeting the almost-shy Grand Duchess who reigned over the tiny country of Luxembourg. She visited here early in the spring but was whirled about at strictly official functions and residential society was unable to assuage its curiosity about her. Tall and slim, the Grand Duchess is extremely soft spoken and the mother of six children.

The party Friday afternoon, which will be from 5:30 until 7, is in honor of George Platt Waller, Charge d'Affaires and Consul of the United States to Luxembourg from 1931 to 1941. Mr. Waller celebrated his tenth year of service in this little principality by returning to the United States to report. He arrived Friday aboard the West Point which carried many refugee Americans.

Prime Minister To Arrive

Also arriving Thursday with the royal party will be the Prime Minister of Luxembourg, Pierre Dupong, who has been making his headquarters in Canada. He only recently returned to Canada from London by clipper. He spent six weeks in London.

This reception will be the first party of its kind the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais have given together since their arrival in this country. Last winter the Minister entertained at a stag affair in celebration of the Grand Duchess' Charlotte's birthday anniversary.

It also will be the first time that Washington society, as a whole, has had a glance at the new legation headquarters, 2200 Massachusetts Avenue. Known as the old Mary Stuart place, the residence of gray stone is a well known Washington landmark.

Also arriving aboard the West Point on Friday was the United States Minister to Sweden, Frederick Sterling. But unlike his fellow diplomats he was "on leave," did not have to come to Washington to report, and so has gone straight to Cherry Neck, the residence Mrs. Sterling bought this season at Newport.

Mrs. Sterling In New Home

Mrs. Sterling, who is the daughter of Mrs. John R. "Ma" Williams, arrived in this country sometime ago but has been in New England most of the time. Mr. Sterling has had many posts in Europe—making him an especially valuable man at this time. But like all hard worked gentlemen he needs a rest—and luckily is getting it for a short while. Since being assigned first to Petrograd in 1911 he has been stationed outside of Europe only twice—once in Peking and once in Peru. Before being sent to Sweden he was Minister to the Irish Free State and Minister to Bulgaria and to Latvia and Estonia.

The Newport house, which Mrs. Sterling purchased from Mrs. Wortham James, is on Ocean Drive. It should be in apple pie order by this time for Mrs. Sterling left early in the season to whip the place into shape for her husband's arrival. Of French provincial design, the house is surrounded by a wide lawn dotted with trees and closed in by a brick wall.

Another recent arrival—this time from the Orient—is the Rev. Francis A. Cox, of St. John's University, Shanghai, China. He has joined Mrs. Cox who has been with her mother Mrs. William Moncure since March when she was forced to leave China. At present she is in hopes the State Department will relent and let her return to the Orient with her husband in the fall.

At present the Coxes and Mrs. Moncure are making their home on Ashmead Place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Moncure, jr. The younger Moncures are traveling in the West. They are visiting in California, Yosemite and Yellowstone Park. With them is Mrs. Moncure's daughter, Cornelia Claiborne.

MISS CHRISTINE VIRGINIA STACY

Miss Stacy To Wed Oct. 1

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Stacy, of Silver Spring, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Christine Virginia Stacy, to Dr. John Alden Swartwout.

The wedding will take place on October 1 at the Calvary Baptist Church, and the Rev. J. Wesley Loftis will officiate at the 8 o'clock evening ceremony.

Miss Octavia Marshall will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Carolyn Lacy, Miss Juanita Morris, Mrs. Howard Rees, Miss Mildred Stacy, Mrs. William Stacy and Miss Dorothy Loftis. Austin Swartwout will be best man for his brother.

Yolanda Alfaro Is at Cape May

Senorita Yolanda Alfaro, daughter of Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, former President of Panama, is spending some time at the Admiral in Cape May, N. J.

Ensign H. C. Maddux, of the Hotel Martinique in Washington, is spending a few days leave at the Admiral in Cape May.

French Attache Takes Bride

Guillaume Georges-Picot, counselor of the French Embassy, and Madame Georges-Picot returned from New York yesterday morning where they had been to attend the wedding of her sister, Mrs. Nina Ekaterina Schlaepfer.

Mrs. Schlaepfer was married Saturday morning in the Church of St. Vincent de Paul to Henry Pierre Leon Barbeau, of New York, assistant financial attache of the French Embassy. M. Georges-Picot gave the bride in marriage and his wife was her sister's only attendant. Jean Rondeau served as best man.

A wedding breakfast was held after the ceremony at the Hotel Pierre and a larger reception was given Sunday for the newlyweds by Mme. Jean Rondeau at her home in Darien, Conn.

Thomasons Announce Birth of Daughter

Lieut. and Mrs. C. Temple Thomason, U. S. A., announce the birth of a daughter, Joan Temple, on Tuesday, July 22, at Walter Reed Hospital. Lieut. Thomason is on active duty with the Air Corps.

Mrs. Thomason is the former Miss Catherine Elizabeth Dennis. Both are graduates of the University of Maryland.

Munnikhuysens Are Hosts To Mrs. Drum

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Henry D. F. Munnikhuysen have visiting them at their apartment at the Dresden Mrs. Munnikhuysen's daughter, Mrs. James Hunter Drum, who, with her 6-year-old son, Dickie, arrived in Washington on Saturday from their home in Fort Benning, Ga. They will be here for a month or more while Capt. Drum is on maneuvers.

Mrs. Drum is the former Miss Betty Ainsworth Burke, who made her debut in Washington some seasons ago. She and her mother will leave Thursday to spend the weekend at the Munnikhuysen's country estate, Stockdale, near Bel Air, Md., where the General will join them for a brief visit. The party will return to town on Monday and some time later in the week Gen. and Mrs. Munnikhuysen will entertain at dinner for Mrs. Drum.

Tomorrow Mrs. Drum and her mother will motor down to Gibson Island to be luncheon guests of Mrs. R. G. Willse, of Baltimore, at the latter's summer cottage at the resort. Mrs. Munnikhuysen returned to town only a few days ago after a visit to the United States Military Academy at West Point, where she was the house guest of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Eichelberger. Gen. Eichelberger is the superintendent of the Military Academy.

Later in the month Mrs. Munnikhuysen and Mrs. Drum will be off for a few days' shopping trip to New York.

Mrs. Tellman Is in Rhode Island For the Summer

Mrs. E. H. Tillman is now in Jamestown, R. I., where she will be at the Hotel Bay Voyage for the remainder of the summer. She will return this fall to again make her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. William Calhoun Stirling.

Dr. and Mrs. Stirling and their debutante daughter, Miss Margheritta Stirling, hope to get away from town soon for a brief vacation at a nearby seashore resort.

Luncheon Honors Mrs. Slaughter

Mrs. Clayton Slaughter, whose husband is affiliated with the Maritime Commission here, was honored at a luncheon on Saturday given at the Army, Navy Town Club, by Miss Carol S. Fries, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries.

Guests included Mrs. Ralph Chase and her house guest, Mrs. Linwood Zinn, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. August Larson, of Quantico, wife of Capt. Larson of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. W. Theodore Pierson, sister of the hostess. Miss Fries, who recently returned to Washington after a year in Eugene, Oreg., where she attended the University of Oregon, is connected with a Washington firm in the capacity of interior decorator, a subject in which she has specialized for several years.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MR. AND MRS. Archie Cary Randolph, jr., were the guests of honor at a buffet supper party Sunday night given by Mrs. Edward Shirley Turner at her home, Goodstone, near Middleburg. Guests included intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph, who are here visiting his father, Dr. Archibald Cary Randolph, at Grafton, near Upperville. Mr. Randolph, who is a pilot with Eastern Air Lines, will be here until after August 10. Mrs. Randolph and their young daughter, Rebecca Ann Dulany Randolph, will stay for a longer visit and Mr. Randolph will commute from Washington. Mrs. Turner had supper served from a long table in the dining room and guests sat about the lawn where small tables had been arranged.

Mrs. Turner will leave this month to return to Miami Beach, Fla., to join her husband, Edward Shirley Turner, who is a pilot with Pan American Air Lines, between Miami Beach and Havana.

Mrs. H. Gwynne Tayloe, jr., this evening will leave Middleburg, where, with her young daughter, Polly Anne, she has been visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Littleton, jr., to join Mr. Tayloe, at their home in Lake City, Fla.

MRS. HUNTER de Butts, will entertain members of the Fauquier and Loudoun Garden Club tomorrow afternoon at 3:30, at her home Nordley. There will be a talk on "Herbs and Their Uses," a showing of vegetables and a showing of gladioli. Tea will be served to the guests after the meeting.

Two announcements that have come from Watertown, N. Y., recently are of much interest in this part of Virginia. One is from Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Hannahs, announcing the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Gilbert, to Lieut. Owen Beall Knight, United States Army, on Thursday, July 3, at Watertown. Lieut. and Mrs. Knight are at home at Lancaster, Mass., where he is stationed.

The other is from Dr. and Mrs. Murray MacGregor, announcing the marriage of their daughter, Mary Kneass, to Lieut. John Shanklin 3d, United States Army, on Wednesday, June 18, at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Lieut. and Mrs. Shanklin 3d are at home at 137 Sterling Street, Watertown. Beall Knight and "Jack" Shanklin, both graduates of V. M. I., Lexington, Va., have numbers of friends in this part of Virginia, where they frequently visit.

THE PAST WEEKEND was a gay one in Middleburg, for on Saturday about 1,200 men of the Antitank Battalion, Twenty-eighth Division, rolled into the village from Indiantown, Gap, Pa., en route to the A. P. Hill Reservation, near Bowling Green. They camped for two days on Burrland Farm, near town. They had many visitors at camp and nearly all of them visited Middleburg Saturday night and Sunday. Col. J. C. Rosborough, commanding officer, and his staff were the guests of honor at a cocktail party and a dance on Saturday evening at the Red Fox Tavern, given by a large number of residents of the community.

Col. and Mrs. William Clifford headed the welcoming committee and others serving included Col. John C. Butler, Col. and Mrs. Milton McCoy, Maj. Turner Wiltshire, Capt. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, jr.; Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, Mayor Courtland H. Smith and Mrs. Smith, Daniel C. Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Littleton, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skinner, Mrs. Raymond Belmont, Miss Elizabeth Mayo Atkinson, Miss Barbara Iselin, Miss Winnifred Maddux and many others.

Pitney–Bradley Engagement of Interest Here

Of wide interest in Washington is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Barbara Bradley, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., to Shelton Pitney, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Shelton Pitney, of Morristown, N. J. The engagement was announced by the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Ernest R. Adee, of Tuxedo Park. Mr. Pitney is the grandson of Mrs. Manlon Pitney, of this city, and the late Associate Justice Pitney, of the United States Supreme Court.

Miss Bradley is the daughter of the late Francis B. Bradley, of Convent, N. J., and the late Mrs. Lothrop M. Weld. She attended Miss Hewitt's classes, was graduated from the Shipley School and studied at Bryn Mawr College. She was introduced to society at the Autumn Ball at Tuxedo Park and at a dinner dance given at the Ritz-Carlton, New York City, in 1939.

The wedding will take place in Tuxedo Park next month. She is a member of the New York Junior League and of the Colony Club. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bradley, of Convent, and a great-granddaughter on the maternal side of Gen. Louis Fitzgerald, former commander of the New York National Guard. Her sister, Miss Geraldine F. Bradley, was a debutante last year.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy and last June from Princeton University, where he was a member of the Cottage Club. He is the great-grandson of Henry C. Pitney, vice chancellor of New Jersey. On his mother's side he is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. James Carrington Brown, of Baltimore.

Jayne Tapping, Lieut. Hunt Are Married in California

Lieut. and Mrs. Richard Coulter Drum Hunt are on their wedding trip and following it will live in Bremerton, Wash., where Lieut. Hunt's ship, the U. S. S. Colorado, will be for some time. The marriage of the former Miss Jayn Allen Tapping took place on Saturday in Beverly Hills, Calif. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watson Goodrich Tapping, of Beverly Hills. Lieut. Hunt is the son of Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, of this city, and Edgewater, Md.

The ceremony took place at All Saints' Episcopal Church with the Rev. William B. Fleetwood officiating. The church was decorated with a profusion of Easter lilies, gladioli and carnations. The bride wore the wedding gown of her grandmother, Mrs. Edgar John Tapping, of Milwaukee. It was fashioned of heavy cream moire and made with a tight bodice trimmed with rare lace. The full skirt fell into a long pleated train and two panels of lace formed the front of her skirt. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of pearls. She wore an heirloom necklace of pearls and diamonds. Her bouquet was of stephanotis, carnations and white orchids.

Mrs. William Robertson, of Westwood, Calif., served as matron of honor. She wore a pink satin gown with a matching halo hat and a pink shoulder length veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of blue water lilies tied with pink satin ribbons. The remaining attendants were Mrs. Helen Tedford, of Coronado, Calif., and Mrs. Walter Terry Jenkins, of Honolulu. They wore blue chiffon gowns and matching halo hats with veils. They carried pink water lilies.

Capt. Manly Lamar Curry, U. S. M. C., was best man, acting for the bridegroom's brother, Frederick Drum Hunt, who is now in Shanghai serving as United States Consul. The ushers were Timothy Goodrich Tapping, brother of the bride; Lieut. Daniel Harrington, U. S. N.; Lieut. John A. Collett, U. S. N.; Lieut. Walter T. Jenkins, U. S. N., and Lieut. Eugene Tatom, U. S. N.

The bride and bridegroom left the church under the traditional arch of swords. A large reception followed in the gardens of the Beverly Hills Hotel. Mrs. Tapping, who received with the couple, wore a beige lace gown. Mrs. Condon had chosen a pale blue gown with a lace bodice and silk jersey accordion pleated skirt. Also in the receiving line was the bride's aunt, Mrs. John Camp Van Dyke, of Milwaukee. She wore a green and white printed frock.

When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride wore a brown gabardine suit and matching accessories. Lieut. Hunt was graduated from Severn School, Md., and the United States Naval Academy, class of 1930. He was manager of the football team at the Naval Academy. He is a member of the Society of Cincinnati and Aztec Club 1847.

Alcenia White To Be Feted on 90th Birthday

Mrs. Mabel White Hubbel, chairman of child hygiene for the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be among the hosts at a family reunion this afternoon in honor of the ninetieth birthday of her mother, Mrs. Alcenia E. White.

Mrs. White, who makes her home with Mrs. Hubbel at 4606 Quarles Street Northwest in the winter, is spending the summer at her country home in Landover, Md., where the party will be held from 5 to 8 p. m.

Mrs. White's three sons, Winfield, of Washington; Albert, of Landover, and Morris V., of Dodge Park, Md.; six grandchildren and one great-grandson, Richard Spencer Fitzgerald, five months old, will attend the party.

Mrs. White, still active, does her own housework and dressmaking and assists her daughter with knitting and sewing for the Red Cross. A native of Washington, Mrs. White in her childhood lived in the Southwest section and recalls Civil War soldiers camping near her home.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

Mrs. Stuart A. Rice, chairman of placement, Central Volunteer Bureau, District Defense Council, in her spare time from that work has concentrated on a little placement problem in her own yard.

She and her husband, who is assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget, have been setting out rhododendron plants in the rock garden of their home, 2865 Beechwood Circle, Arlington, after carefully transporting them all the way from North Carolina.

Mrs. Rice went down to Asheville recently to make an address at the convention of her sorority, Theta Upsilon, and Dr. Rice drove down to make the return trip with her. When they discovered a crew of workmen cutting a new road, they immediately investigated the rhododendron outlook—and found that numerous small plants were being uprooted. Carefully the Rices accumulated several dozen of the plants and hurried home to get them in the ground.

Although Mrs. Rice expects a long wait before they bloom, at least she and her husband have done an earnest job of advantageous placing.

GIRLS' CLUB OUTING—The Georgetown branch of the Girls Club, which has been flourishing steadily since its opening last week, will have an outing Wednesday—forerunner of a series of excursions roundabout.

Girls who have permission of their parents will go on a swimming trip which has been arranged at Glen Echo, Mrs. Victor Rotnem, director, said.

TRIP TO CANADA—Mrs. Charles G. Lueck, publicity chairman for the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., is taking a two weeks' respite from her duties on a trip to Canada. She headed for Parry Sound, Ontario, where she says, "the golf and fishing are extra special."

Oportunity House Benefit to Present Academy Players

Players from the Academy of the Theater, under the direction of George Vivian, will present the entertainment at the garden party to be held Saturday evening in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, 2949 Macomb Street Northwest, for the benefit of Opportunity House.

Among the one-act playlets will be an incident of the World War, a futuristic sketch and a Chinese drama. In addition, there will be readings from Macbeth and from Romeo and Juliet, and an exhibition fencing match. The program will start at 8 p. m.

The players will be Mrs. Isabelle Creer, Frances McKelvey, Shirley Huddleston, Theresa Parker, Thomas Cronk, Robert Anderson, William Irish, Leonard B. Sussholtz, Harvey Fitton, George Vivian, Shirley Wolfson, Suzanne Cooper, Lillian Baringer and Eugenie MacDonald.

Mrs. Seal to Entertain Group of Pen Women

Mrs. Edward R. Seal, vice president of the District branch, National League of American Pen Women, and general chairman of creative groups, will entertain chairmen of these groups at her home, 3363 Eighteenth Street Northwest, tonight at a meeting to plan activities for the coming season.

The discussion will include the contest in creative work, for which Mrs. Larz Anderson offers $100 in prizes.

Zonta Club to Hear Commissioner Mason

Guy Mason, new District Commissioner, will speak on "Women in Defense" at the luncheon of the Zonta Club at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Florence Sindell will give the foreword to the program.

New Girls to Hear Talk

Dr. Winifred Richmond, consulting psychiatrist at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, will speak on "Emotional Adjustment" at 8 o'clock tonight at the Y. W. C. A. in a lecture series designed to help newly arrived girl workers with problems of settling in Washington.

Club to Honor Miss Monroe

Miss Lucy Monroe, concert soprano, will be honored with a tea by the Newspaper Women's Club from 5 to 7 p. m. today at the clubhouse, 1604 Twentieth Street Northwest.

Dupont Hotel Residents Ask Mills Apologize

A telegraphic petition signed by 45 residents of the Dupont Circle Hotel yesterday called upon Representative Mills (Democrat), of Louisiana, to make public apology for striking a witness last week during House Public Building and Grounds Committee hearings on circumstances surrounding the Government's leasing of the hotel.

Referring to the altercation between Mills and George Reedy, spokesman for hotel tenants, the telegram, sent to Speaker Rayburn, declared:

"We feel that such conduct is not befitting the dignity and impartiality a member of the United States Congress should exhibit, and feel that Mr. Mills should make a public apology from the floor of the House for his unconscionable act."

V. Valta Parma, a tenant of the Dupont, who made public the telegram, declared that the Government has ceased moving into the building pending the outcome of hearings to be resumed before the committee at 10 a. m. today.

Ellen Woodward to Give Radio Talk Tomorrow

Mrs. Ellen Woodward, member of the Social Security Board, will discuss vocational opportunities in the field of social security, in Federal, State and private agencies, on the radio program of the Business and Professional Women's Club at 3:15 p. m. tomorrow over WINX. She will be interviewed by Mrs. Miller Hickerson of the club's publicity committee.

The club's "at home" will be held at 5 p. m. tomorrow at the Silver Bowl, Connecticut Avenue and R Street Northwest.

Vice President's Son Enters Army as Buck Private Select

Robert Brown Wallace, 23, son of the Vice President, will be inducted into the Army tomorrow as one private among 130.

WALLACE

Young Wallace, who recently completed graduate studies in biology and nutrition at the University of Wisconsin, will leave for the Richmond induction station early tomorrow morning from the old National Guard Armory, Sixth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

Vice President and Mrs. Wallace had expected to be present to bid their son goodby, but, it was said, business carried Mr. Wallace to the West. William E. Leahy, local director of Selective Service, and Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding the Washington Provisional Brigade, will be on hand tomorrow to witness departure of the group of 130.

The District Board of Appeals issued a report yesterday on its July 31 meeting. Of 15 registrants asking that their classification be changed, from available for immediate military service: Eight were retained in their original classification; two were returned to their local boards for additional information; one conscientious objector was referred to the United States Attorney, and four had their classification changed because of necessary occupations.

Occupations listed as necessary were: An acting chief clerk in the navy yard, a statistical clerk in the War Department; a motor transportation commission agent and an employe of the navy yard.

$822,100 Allotment To Complete D. C. Airport Approved

Presidential approval of an additional allotment of $822,100 for completion of the Washington National Airport was announced last night by John M. Carmody, Federal Works administrator.

The funds, representing savings and recessions under PWA programs of former years, will go to the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Work to be done under the allotment will consist of completing taxi strips between the main runways and the terminal building, grading, fertilizing and gress seeding the field, completion of service roads, providing new parking areas for approximately 1,800 cars, and completion of air-conditioning.

80th Division Veterans to Meet

A number of members from Washington are expected to attend the twenty-second convention of the Eightieth Division Veterans Association at Fredericksburg, Va., beginning Thursday, according to Rush S. Young, of 1414 South Oakland Street, Arlington.

The division association is composed of members chiefly from Virginia, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania and has met annually since the World War. The opening session will be at 8 p. m. Thursday, following various committee and executive council sessions. On Friday there will be a grand parade, endng at the National Cemetery, and election of officers will be on Saturday.

A military mass and sightseeing expeditions are planned for Sunday.

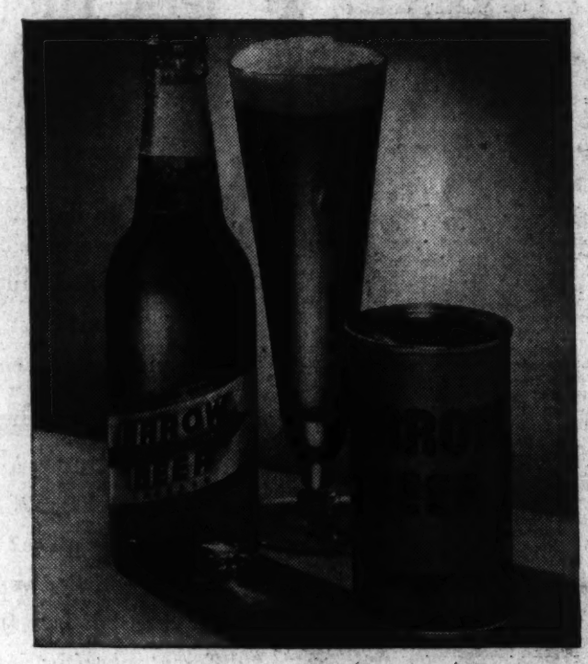
Too many broths

spoil the cook!

In all walks of life you find that men, musicians, bridge-builders, brewmasters have achieved their greatness by sticking to one thing. Just as too many cooks spoil the broth, so will too many broths spoil the cook.

Arrow Beer's great brewmaster Fitzgerald cannot believe that he can make two best beers. Making two means sacrificing one at the expense of the other. And that means selling a fine beer at one price and a not-so-fine beer at a lower price.

Brewmaster Fitzgerald refuses to believe that a man's beer-taste changes just because the size of his pocketbook changes. He does believe that concentrating on one quality—one standard—one beer—is the direct line to a great beer.



And Arrow has added no quality to the bottle that will subtract from the quality of the beer in that bottle. When you buy Arrow Beer you buy the best we can brew—and our best can't be beat. Money can't buy a finer beer.

No one can buy better hops or better malt than Arrow buys. No one can call on greater brewing skill.

If you haven't tried Arrow Beer, don't wait any longer! Give yourself the special pleasure of drinking an extraordinary beer at the ordinary beer price.

Temporary Census Aides May Get Full Rating

The 7,500 temporary Census Bureau employes may be given an opportunity to acquire full Civil Service status.

Yesterday a conference was held in the Commerce Building where the proposal was explored. Attending the meeting were Census, Commerce and Civil Service officials. Commerce officials were pushing the plan. They have been working on it for weeks and frankly they don't know how it can be done. Some argue that the President has the power to bring the employes under the merit system while others insist legislation is necessary.

Census hired 16,000 employes on the condition that their jobs were temporary and that they would not acquire full Civil Service status even though they were all taken from Civil Service registers. Now, however, 2,500 have been separated. These 2,500 had the lowest efficiency ratings.

The separated employes, or most of them, have gotten defense jobs through the emergency replacement list and under the executive order of a week ago they will be given a chance to win merit status. The best employes are retained at Census and denied status as a penalty for being good workers. "The merit system," a Commerce official said, "wasn't planned to work in that way. Now our job is to try to right the wrong by bringing all Census employes under the Civil Service system."

Join in Common Plea

OPM and OPACS use much of their energies to fight each other but now they have gotten together on a common problem—the shortage of man power. Both key defenses agencies need business specialists, economists, and accountants, and need them badly. Civil Service tests have been or will be held for the jobs. William Knudsen, OPM chief, and Leon Henderson, OPACS boss, have issued a joint statement in which they urge people who know practical business operations to join the Federal service.

Howard Gray, chief of Interior's Bituminous Coal Division, is a very sincere official. When his boss, Harold Ickes, called on Interior employes to save gas for national defense, Gray was among the first to volunteer. Gray lives on his farm near Leesburg so he quit driving his car to work and started to use the bus. The other morning the bus ran out of gas and Gray finally reported an hour and a half late for an appointment with the Secretary.

General Accounting Office is hiring 150 persons who passed the recent accountant and auditor test. It will bring them in as junior clerks and pay them $1,440. The clerks will be put through the accounting training course and they will be promoted to junior auditors. Civil Service registers haven't been set up yet but the commission has given GAO the names of persons who have passed the test from under-quota States. GAO will hire another 100 after the register is set up. Many of the new employes will be placed in the new defense section that is handling defense contracts and the like.

Patent Office has been losing so many of its employes to defense agencies that officials are considering a ban on transfers. It's also probable that the Commerce Department will be compelled to request deferment of some Patent Office employes who are likely to be called into the military service. To date, the department has refused to ask for deferments. Most of the patent examiners are engineers and with the acute shortage of engineers the Patent employes are getting bigger and better offers elsewhere.

The file clerk exam will be given on August 27 . . . OPACS began to move into the new temporary building across from OFM yesterday. The building was completed in record time. Construction was started on May 26 . . . Expert Control will take over OPACS's old offices . . . GAO is hiring card-punchers separated from Census. It is looking for comptometer operators with Civil Service status.

3 Silver Spring Brothers Refuse Vacation Rather Than Miss Publishing Newspaper

GOING TO PRESS—The Kindness brothers—Thomas, 11; Ronald, 13, and Gordon, 15—at work on their weekly newspaper which they publish at home, 601 Thayer Avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

Summer camps or vacation trips mean nothing to the Kindness brothers, three Silver Spring students. To them summer is just time off from their books to promote the success of their weekly paper.

The lads, Gordon, 15, who attends Montgomery Blair Senior High School; Ronald, 13, and Thomas, 11, pupils at Takoma-Silver Spring Junior High, refused the offer of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman G. Kindness, for a camp vacation.

"This would mean neglecting the paper and we don't want to skip any issues," Gordon remarked.

At their home, 605 Thayer Avenue, the brothers publish the Silver Spring News, which includes community news items, personals and advertising. They have been putting it out for a year and a half without missing a week. A corner of the basement in their home houses a small office. In it are a mimeograph machine, typewriter, files and papers. Every Wednesday night the boys are busy running off 250 copies, their present circulation, of an eight-page tabloid.

Success the Hard Way

It wasn't always so easy for the boys. Their first issues took hours of work for then they didn't have the mimeograph and had to set type by hand.

The News then consisted of two small pages. When advertising increased and expenses were cleared, the brothers increased the sheet to four, six and finally eight pages. The paper's circulation reaches to distant lands. Mr. and Mrs. James Kindness, of Aberdeen, Scotland, grandparents of the bothers, and relatives and friends in Australia, England and Canada, receive the papers by mail.

Delivery is made by foot and bicycle mostly by Thomas. Gordon is the editor. He gets the news and ads. Ronald helps with the printing.

All profits from the project go into the office treasury toward improvements. The boys are clearing expenses and are able to earn enough through their business to keep themselves in spending money.

Goes After Business

Unlike most publishers, Gordon finds business is better in the summer than other seasons. "One reason for that is that I have the time to go after it," he said.

Five years ago, Gordon was inspired to be a newspaperman while working on the school newspaper at the East Silver Spring Elementary School. At the Takoma-Silver Spring High School, he began the Class 7-C bulletin issued once a month. Later he became a member of the staff of the Trotter, official school publication. The Trotter has won prizes at contests in New York.

Mrs. Galloway Named Girls' School Head

Mrs. Rachel Galloway, 63, a former teacher in the District public schools, yesterday was nominated by the Board of Public Welfare as superintendent of the National Trainnig School for Girls on a temporary, 3 to 6 months basis.

Mrs. Galloway, who some years ago was a supervising principal of Negro schools in nearby Maryland, was selected to organize and plan a program for the local institution, which, after September 15, will house Negro girls exclusively.

Conrad Van Hyning, acting welfare director, said the board asked Mrs. Galloway to accept the nomination although she was not a candidate for the position.

Since 1925, she has directed the Settlement School at Croom, Md., an institution maintained by the Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Galloway is a graduate of the Miner Teachers College here and has wide experience in working with delinquents.

She will replace Miss Anne Q. Andruss, who has headed the National Training School for two years. Miss Andruss, said Van Hyning, will be transferred to one of the city's white institutions.

At present, said Van Hyning, there are seven white and 66 Negro girls in the school. Some of the white inmates, he said, will be paroled and others will be transferred to other institutions.

The welfare board postponed nomination of a successor to Otto Cass as director of the public assistance division. Cass has been named superintendent at Blue Plains, but the board said it wanted more time to consider applicants for his post.

Injuries in Fight Fatal to D. C. Man

Homer Jenkins, 50, of 4408 Georgia Avenue Northwest, a wounded World War veteran, died in Walter Reed Hospital last night from pneumonia, as a result of injuries suffered in an altercation July 25, according to police.

Police questioned a neighbor, but later released him in the custody of his attorney for appearance at a coroner's inquest.

House Group Considers D.C. Gas Tax Today

A House subcommittee is scheduled to decide today whether District gasoline taxes are to be raised 1 or 2 cents a gallon to finance a large-scale highway improvement program.

A major factor in the subcommittee's decision undoubtedly will be Secretary Ickes' edict of last week calling for a voluntary "blackout" of District gasoline stations after 7 p. m.

In an executive sessions members of the subcommittee, headed by Representative John Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, will seek to determine from the testimony of District officials what effect the move to curtail gasoline consumption will have on tax yields and whether it may be necessary to defer the $44,300,000 program indefinitely.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director and author of the program, has been asked by the subcommittee to present two plans for carrying it into effect, one plan to be based on a 1-cent increase and the other on a 2-cent boost.

Society Attends Airport Restaurant 'Informal' Opening

With floodlit runways forming a setting unique for a world capital of war-torn 1941, Washington National Airport's streamlined restaurant had its "informal" opening last night—"informal" because of the legal tangle involving beverage permits. When the jurisdictional controversy is settled, a gala evening is planned.

Nonetheless, Washington's official and social sets were on hand for the premiere of the large, blue-gray room, three of whose sides are of clear glass overlooking the airfield. The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones were at a table, while Representative Louis Rabout, of the House Appropriations Committee, had dining with him several of his associates on the committee, including Representatives John N. Kerr, Butler B. Hare, Vincent F. Harrington, Robert F. Jones, Harry F. Beam, Albert N. Carter and John M. Houston.

Woman Driver Injured as Auto Hits Bridge

AUTO SMASHED—Spectators view wreckage of auto which creshed last night into a support of the Taylor Street Bridge. The driver, identified by police as Mrs. Lois Burns, of 3811 Grammercy Street Northwest, was taken to Casualty Hospital, where her condition was described as "undetermined," but "believed to be serious." Police said she was driving alone in the car

Efforts Fail To Halt Loan Bill in House

D. C. Committee Opponents Lose In Move to Take It Off Calendar

An intra-committee fight over the District's small loan bill developed yesterday and before the battle was over opponents of the measure as now written came within a single vote of recalling it from the House calendar.

In the same session, the House District Committee voted to report favorably bills to strengthen the District's habitual criminal and vagrancy statutes—two moves recommended by its Police Investigation Subcommittee. Approval of the habitual criminal bill came after lengthy debate among committee members over severity of one of the provisions of the measure.

The committee voted six to five against recall of the small loans bill—a measure that has been on the House calendar since early in June and on which action has been repeatedly delayed—after Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, declared:

"Let's get a uniform rate for Maryland, Virginia and the District. I am getting interested in this bill."

Bill Called "Bellyache"

Schulte called the committee's attention to the fact that interest rates permitted by the bill on loans of $500 or less amount to 24 per cent a year, or 2 per cent a month. Legal small loan rates in Maryland and Virginia are 3½ per cent a month.

"I think a cloud of suspicion is over this committee on this bill," declared Representative Thomas D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland. "I am in favor of killing this bill right now. It's been a bellyache ever since I have been on this committee."

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, pointed out that the present District small-loans law is inoperable because the interest rate—1 per cent—is too low to permit companies to operate profitably, and that without legislation the small borrower will continue to obtain funds through concerns operating just over the District line.

"That's his lookout (the borrower's)," said Schulte. "I have been told that if the present law is strengthened, it will be all right. I am against letting these shysters get 24 cents out of every dollar a poor man borrows for medicine. Here we are making a legitimate business of gouging. Not for me."

After Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech declared that a borrower without security "hasn't a Chinaman's chance" of getting a loan under existing District law, Schulte moved that the bill be withdrawn and rewritten to provide interest rates on a sliding scale from 2 to 1 per cent, as proposed by Representative Harry Sauthoff (Progressive), Wisconsin.

"Insane and Stupid . . . Action"

"It's insane and stupid to take this kind of action," protested Dirksen, contending that the bill should be called up for House debate on the next District day, Monday, when amendments may be offered from the floor.

"This committee has been stupid before," countered Schulte.

Before the committee acted on the bill, Shulte called its attention to a financial report of a small loan company one of whose officers was paid a $125,000 yearly salary and a bonus of $30,000.

Representative Harris (Democrat), of Arkansas, and Representative Russell (Democrat), of Texas, both former prosecuting attorneys, protested as overly severe a provision of the habitual criminal bill which would make mandatory maximum sentences for second-offenders. Both objected that mitigating circumstances sometimes develop in second-offense trials.

"I am not in favor of doing anything that will hinder the police," Harris declared. "I am speaking for the man who may be caught the second time under mitigating circumstances, who is going to have to suffer the maximum penalty of the law the same as the habitual criminal."

A jury, contended Russell, knowing that a compulsory sentence will be unfair, will refuse convictions.

"In the lesser felonies," he stated, "it is not the severity of punishment that deters crime and the criminal, but the certainty of punishment."

Pointing out that habitual criminals frequently are not apprehended until they have committed several offenses, Representative Sauthoff declared:

"I haven't any time to waste on these fellows. If I had my way, I'd put them away for keeps. One of those fellows is worse than a tiger. There's no mark of identification on him."

"Quibbling While Rome Burns"

"I am not a lawyer," began Schulte. "You're living in a city that is different from any city in the United States. You are dealing with a criminal element here because the pickings are good. The police are begging for help. We are quibbling while Rome is burning . . . We are contributing to the criminal element in the District. Saturday night was one of the damndest nights in town. You ought to ride with these police sometime."

Housebreaking is a felony and it might involve stealing a piece of bread," said Dirksen. "I hate to see a law defeat itself by overseverity."

The committee agreed to report out the bill with the understanding that amendments meeting the objections of Russell and Harris will be drafted by Keech and submitted with the bill when the measure is taken up in the House Monday. Russell cast the only dissenting vote.

The vagrancy bill, described by Harris as "much more necessary than the previous bill," was approved unanimously.

Policeman Kills Man

SHOOTS ALLEGED ASSAILANTS—Policeman Donald R. Webber (right), who last night shot and killed a man and critically wounded the victim's brother, makes an official report to Lieut. C. H. Lutz, of the Thirteenth Precinct. The shooting took place in an alley behind 2304 Fourteenth Street Northwest, when, according to police, the two men attempted to wrest Webber's service revolver from him. (Story, Page 1.)

'Tip' of Boy, 15, Investigated In Simon Death

Police were continuing efforts last night to establish the truth of a "tip" from a Negro inmate of the Industrial Home for Boys at Blue Plains as to the identity of the murderer of Dr. Heinrich Simon.

Dr. Simon was attacked in "a little dark street" in the vicinity of Seventeenth and Church Streets, Northwest, sometime during the night of May 5 and died the next morning at Garfield Hospital. He mumbled the phrase about the apparent place of his attack to his wife before he was taken to the hospital sometime after his arrival at his home, 1815 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, in a taxicab. The driver of the cab said he found Dr. Simon standing in a daze at the Church Street corner at about 2 a. m., May 6.

Last week, according to information divulged by the police yesterday, a 15-year-old boy reported that one member of a gang of white boys had told him of assaulting and robbing Simon. This occurred, according to the police, when the youth, who had information of depredations committed by members of the gang, had asked one of them for $1 on the day after the murder. This, he said, was given to him, together with the information that it had been taken from a man named Simon.

On Friday of last week, it was reported, Detective Jack Frost, of the Third Precinct, and Detective Fred Rawlinson, of the Homicide Squad, confronted the boy accused by their informant, at the National Training School, to which he was committed in June on the charge of stealing an automobile. With them was their informant and three other boys known to belong to the gang.

The accused boy at the National Training School, it was reported yesterday, denied any connection with the case. At the same time it was reported that on two occasions he gave different accounts of his actions that night.

With these meager results from the "tip," which Acting Chief of Detectives Ira E. Keck said were insufficient as basis for taking the case to the grand jury, the police were nevertheless continuing their efforts to get at the bottom of the story.

It was recalled yesterday that three members of the gang, one of whom was involved in last week's "tip," had been questioned by the police early in June in connection with the Simon case, but had been cleared at that time of any connection with it. Police had believed they were members of a gang who roamed the streets attacking elderly men.

Of this trio, one is said now to be in California; another, after the theft of a car, was released by the Juvenile Court in the custody of his parents and is said to be in Georgia, and the other is the boy now in the National Training School here.

Randolph Offers Bill to Modernize District Fire Law

A bill to modernize the District's fire safety law and representing a compromise of the views of District fire officials and the Washington Building Congress was introduced yesterday by Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee.

Drafted by Representative Harris (emocrat), of Arkansas, whose special subcommittee held hearings on the measure, the bill would give the District Commissioners wide latitude in determining what kind of safety devices should be installed, but requires their installation in structures of certain sizes.

Various kinds of fire escapes and other devices, to be determined by the Commissioners, would bre required in a building other than a private residence, that is either three or more stories, or more than 30 feet, in height. Municipal fire alarm connections would be mandatory for buildings of three or more stories where hte floor space exceeds 35,000 square feet.

Trade Group Demands APU Be Retained

Any effort to abolish or decrease personnel of the police Accident Prevention Unit or to remove from duty the 13 police schoolboy patrol coordinators will meet united opposition from the Board of Trade traffic committee, it was announced yesterday.

The group met in special session at O'Donell's Restaurant to discuss the propsals—both of which grew out of the recent Congressional police investigation—and adopted resolutions of protest.

The committee also went on record against the suggestion of Commissioner John Russell Young that an officer below the rnak of inspector be placed in charge of the Accident Prevention Unit.

It was unanimously agred that to eliminate or even reduce the accident investigatjon force would be a "step backward" in the city's fight against highway deaths and injuries.

Speaking in behalf of the unit which he established and commands as traffic supervisor, Inspector Arthur E. Miller said that if its strength is reduced, "it should be eliminated altogether, because it couldn't operate.

Miller Wants More Men

"The men," Miller declared, "would lose interest and you can't have efficient enforcement work if that happens. Instead of reducing the A. P. U., immediate steps should be taken to build it up."

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the American Automobile Association division here, citing data to show that the unit had "proven its worth," also agreed that more men should be added.

Miller explained that before the unit was formed, less than 25 per cent of accident causes were known. He added that police now know the causes in 91 per cent of the mishaps and remedies are constantly being applied.

The inspector said, contrary to recent charges, that his men "don't merely ride around the streets and wait for an accident to happen."

To emphasize his point, Miller reported that during the first six months of this year members of his unit made some 4,000 arrests—and half of them involved infractions in which there was no accident.

Work on the A. P. U. also was lauded by M. O. Eldrige, assistant director of traffic, and Capt. Milton D. Smith, commander of the police traffic division.

Eldridge Cites Benefits

Eldridge said his department "is doing things we have never been able to do before" as a result of information furnished by the accident investigators. He said 250 drivers' permits were suspended last month on recommendations of squad members.

Capt. Smith told the committee that "every modern police department should have an accident investigation unit" and praised the work of Miller's group.

Suggestions that 13 policemen now assigned to schoolboy patrol work be assigned back to regular 'beats" met with particularly bitter comments by committee members.

Figures were presented showing that not a child was killed or injured last year going to and from school and that in 1925—the year before the patrol system was adopted—19 youngsters were killed, as against 7 in all types of motor accidents last year.

"It would be a tragedy," said Cleveland, "to remove these police coordinators. They save scores of young lives every year through their supervision of the city's 4,000 schoolboy patrolmen."

D. C. Police Efficiency Probe Opens

McCarran Confers With Maj. Brown; Hints at Shake-ups In Some Bureaus

Chairman Pat McCarran of the Senate District Committee yesterday began a survey of the efficiency of Washington's law-enforcement machinery by summoning to the Capitol for a conference Maj. Earnest W. Brown, Metropolitan Police superintendent, and the District Commissioners.

The conference was held behind closed doors, but McCarran made it clear that he was considering reorganization of at least some branches of the city government responsible for the city's crime record.

Attending the conference, in addition to Maj. Brown, were District Commissioners John Russell Young and Guy Mason, Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, and a representative of the district attorney's office. Renah F. Camalier, Senator McCarran's adviser, also sat in on the discussion.

The police survey, McCarran said, is intended to develop whether the city police force should be turned over to a police commissioner with plenary powers, as proposed in a bill introduced by Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, or whether control should remain in the hands of the District Commissioners.

Also to be explored, the Senator said, is feasibility of a "plan" for policing the city with an organization "comparable to the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Regardless of the form of police administration evolved, McCarran declared that his mind is made up on one point—there can be no divided police responsibility.

The conference immediately followed announcement by Camalier that, in conjunction with the Senator, a study is to be made of the whole problem of reorganization of the District government with key officials of the reorganized municipality to be elected by Capital residents.

"Confused and Chaotic"

Camalier described the present city government as "confused and chaotic," with a multitude of boards and semi-independent agencies operating without direct supervision of the Commissioners.

Under consideration, he declared, is a plan for grouping many of these agencies under a single administrative head. It might be possible, he added, to reorganize the municipality along the lines of the Federal Government with functions grouped in departments such as labor, welfare and safety. Economy as well as improved efficiency are the primary reorganization aims, he said.

McCarran intimated that, in view of the Capital's long list of unsolved crimes, he might favor selection of a highly trained expert from without the department to succeed Maj. Brown, who is expected soon to retire as chief.

He added, however, that he would not want to see the practice perpetuated; that in normal circumstances the chief should be selected from within the department to offer encouragement to ambitious officers. Members of the conference, he reported, are divided on the question.

McCarran declared himself in favor of establishing a police training program similar to the FBI Police Academy, "but belonging to the District specifically."

Though he said he had studied the report of the House Police Investigation Subcommittee, had found it complete in most respects and expected to make full use of it in his own survey, McCarran disagreed with the subcommittee's recommendations in at least one particular.

The subcommittee urged abolition of civil service requirements for police promotion. McCarran said he not only believed Civil Service Commission examinations should continue to be a requirement for advancement, but that members of the department should be made to take the tests at regular intervals.

Further "round-table" conference with officials on the police and other governmental problems will be held "from time to time," McCarron announced.

It is something less than perfect football weather, but before the month is out, 80,000 fans will be sitting in a stadium watching what is pretty close to the perfect football game. It is, of course, the annual affair at Chicago between the College All-Americans and the champions of the professional league, in this case the Chicago Bears.

POVICH

Every year the battle between college football's best individuals and the champions of the pro league is supposed to be a test of the two types of football, but actually it is nothing of the sort; merely a rousing football game between two fine teams. The college squad has not had time to be developed as a cohesive unit, and the older pros do not attain in late August the physical condition they gradually acquire by October.

On the college squad will be at least a dozen lads who are already under contract to join professional teams after the game, and for them the battle at Chicago will be a foretaste of what they can expect in the pro league. The tackling of the pros is not as reckless, but fiercer; the blocking is better and the passing is more skillful.

Sammy Baugh Learned About Pros

Sammy Baugh, for instance, was one of the College stars, in the 1937 game at Chicago. It was his farewell game as a collegian, inasmuch as he was due to join the Redskins after the battle. Baugh learned in that game what to expect in the pro league. He tells the story:

"I was carrying back a punt, when something hit me. My teeth rattled. I was hurt all over. Nobody in college had ever tackled me that hard. I looked up to see who could tackle like that and I saw Buckets Goldenberg of the Green Bay Packers. He was kind of grinning and helping me up off the ground. As he gave me his hand he was saying, 'this is a heluva way to make a living, ain't it Sammy.'"

The college boys have on occasion, beaten the pros in the All-Star game, and that is understandable enough. They round into condition quicker than their older opponents who average three to four years older. Ed Justice of the Redskins used to describe the effects of age on football players this way:

"In college, I could play a football game on Saturday and be rarin' to go again on Monday. After my first year as a pro, I didn't recover from those Saturday bruises until Tuesday. The next year, I wasn't in shape again until Wednesday. This year I'm not ready to play until the next Thursday and that's the way it affects you when you get older. The college boys can take it better."

The All-Star game is the proving ground, usually, for the lads about to be inducted into the pro ranks and as a rule the men who star for the college team in that game attain fame as pros. Sammy Baugh, Tuffy Leemans and Bill Osmanski are the outstanding examples of fellows who did well in the All-Star game and went on to be big-shots in pro-ranks, but there is one notable exception.

Pros Always Have Perfect Alibi

In the All-Star game of three years ago, the colossal flop of the All-American lineup was Whizzer White. He could do nothing right that night and he left the game with boos from the fans ringing in his ears. He hadn't justified his press notices. But White went on to be one of the finest of all the pro players.

It always struck this department that the pros have a perfect alibi whenever they lose to the college stars. Except for minor concessions to the pro rules, the game is always played under college rules. That fact forces the pros to rearrange much of their offense; no passing the ball forward within 5 yards of the scrimmage line, for example. The pros are thus handcuffed to a great extent. Many of their plays are founded on the license to pass the ball from any point behind the scrimmage line.

This month's game carries a special significance in that the college boys will be up against the famed T formation of the Chicago Bears which laid waste to the Redskins by a 73-0 score last fall. How the colleges will combat it as practice by the team that specializes in the T formation is something for Head Coach Carl Snavely and his staff of assistants to work out.

Snavely yesterday was appointed head coach of the college team for the game in deference to his illustrious record with last fall's Cornell team. Snavely will be remembered as the coach accused of signalling Cornell's plays from the bench in the defeat of Ohio State. How come nobody ever called that one a signal triumph?

Foxx Returns With a Bang, Red Sox Win

JIMMY FOXX

Celebrates With Homer In Ninth as Mates Win Out Over A's, 7 to 6

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 4.—Jimmy Foxx celebrated his return to active service today by clouting his sixteenth home run of the season, giving the Boston Red Sox a 7-to-6 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in the series opener.

The ailing first baseman climaxed a great Boston comeback, after the Athletics scored five runs in the second inning, by belting Bump Hadley's first pitch in the ninth for the circuit.

The Red Sox had tied the game in the eighth when Stan Spence, pinch hitting for pitcher Mike Ryba, doubled to right. Dom DiMaggio walked and Pete Fox singled, sending Spence home with the equalizer.

Micky Harris started on the mound for Boston, but couldn't get through the second. Singles by Dick Siebert and Chapman, Hal Wagner's double, two walks and Tabor's error led to Harris giving way to Ryba, who was greeted by Benny McCoy's two-run single.

Youngster Wins Sixth In 17 Days

Erickson Hurls Well, But Loses to Spree In 3d Inning; Crespi Beaned in Practice

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Ernie White, 24-year-old rookie ace of the pace-setting St. Louis Cardinals, pitched his sixth victory in 17 days today, turning back the weak-hitting Chicago Cubs for a 4 to 2 triumph.

The young fireball southpaw allowed the sixth-place Cubs to reach home only in the fourth inning and nobody reached second base after that. Babe Dahlgren opened the fourth by drawing a walk after two were out. Clyde McCullough singled and Lou Stringer scored both runners with a long double to left field.

Thereafter the Cubs had to be content with three scattered singles, White striking out a total of eight batters. The decision gave him a record of 13 wins and 3 losses for the season.

Paul Erickson, another fast ball artist, went the distance for the Cubs and also pitched masterful ball except for the third inning when the Cards scored all their runs.

Starts Big Rally

White himself started the assault with a single to center and Eddie Lake walked. Terry Moore forced White at third, but Harry Hopp singled to score Lake. John Mize followed with a single, scoring Moore. Stringer booted Enos Slaughter's grounder, Hopp scoring and Mize going to third on the potential double-play ball. Jimmy Brown sent the fourth run home with a single. Erickson struck out Martin Marion and Gus Mancuso grounded out.

Erickson allowed only four singles after that decisive splurge and fanned ten batters for the full route.

Crespi Hit in Face

Lake went to second base today on short notice when Frank Crespi was hit in the face by a batted ball in pregame practice. The Cubs were forced to make a last-minute change when Center Fielder Charley Gilbert collapsed in the clubhouse shortly before the game started, Augie Galan replacing him.

Dr. John F. Davis, Cub physician, said Gilbert was suffering from a combination of heat and nervous exhaustion. He added Gilbert would remain overnight in Illinois Masonic Hospital.

Crespi was taken to the same hospital, where an examination disclosed a deep bruise under his left eye and along the left side of his nose. The results of an X-ray examination will not be known until tomorrow.

The Cardinal youngster was struck by a line drive off the bat of Lon Werneke, who was knocking fungo flies to the outfielders.

Cooper, Baker Crack World Motor Marks

By the Associated Press

Picton, Ont., Aug. 4.—Jack (Pop) Cooper, 62-year-old Kansas City driver, roared to two world records today and both he and Frank Baker, of Saranac Lake, N. Y., shattered Canadian marks in the Prince Edward Yacht Club Motor Boat Regatta.

Cooper cracked the world mark for 91-cubic-inch class boats when he drove his Tops Up at an average of 61.6 miles per hour in a trial, eclipsing the old mark of 57.793 m. p. h. Driving the same boat, he came back to smash the record for the same class in a 5-mile competition by averaging 52.478 miles per hour.

After that, he parked his own craft and handled the controls of the 225-cubic-inch Milderina, owned by C. E. Inch, of London, Ontario. He sent this one down the course for an average 65.814 miles per hour, breaking the Canadian mark of 63.8 Cooper won the club's $500 Gold Trophy by taking all three heats of the 225-cubic-inch class.

Baker posted a new Canadian standard in the 135-cubic-inch class. He drove Cannonball at an average speed of 53.860 m. p. h. in a 5-mile competition.

Fractured Skull Detains Solters In Hospital Here

SOLTERS

Solters was struck by a ball thrown by his teammate, First Baseman Joe Kuhel, in the pregame practice. He did not appear severely hurt, and was taken to Georgetown Hospital for observation. The fracture, described as slight, is on the frontal bone of the skull. It is expected that Solters will be discharged from the hospital before the week is out. The injury will not hamper his baseball career, physicians stated.

New Version of The Shag—A la Umpire Pipgras

Umpire George Pipgras kept his eye on the play but hastily removed his person from harm's way yesterday at Griffith Stadium as the Nats' Catcher Jake Early made a low throw to Jimmy Bloodworth at second, attempting to keep Phil Rizzuto from stealing. Rizzuto was safe as the ball (arrow) bounced away

Kovacs Beats David Johnsen In Rye Tennis

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Nineteen-year-old redhead Earl Cochell, virtually unknown in big-time tennis, pulled the only upset in the Eastern grass court championships at Westchester Country Club today by whipping Francisco Segura, of Ecuador, 1939 South American champion, in 4 second-round match, 7—5, 6—1.

The colorful Ecuadorian, whose two-handed forehand had gained much favor with the gallery, was no match for young Cochell, whose deep court drives kept his opponent continually on the defensive. By virtue of his victory Cochell joined fourth-seeded Frank Parker and fifth-seeded Wayne Sabin in the third-round bracket. They were idle today.

Bobby Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., seeded number one, played rather listlessly as he turned back John R. Gray, of Richmond Hills, N. Y., 6—1, 6—2, in his first-round match. National singles champion, Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, won his first-round match from Marvin Kent, of Bethlehem, Pa., 6—1, 6—2.

Johnsen Beaten

Third-seeded Frank S. Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., did a bit of clowning during his first-round match with David Johnsen, of Washington, D. C., as he went on to win, 6—2, 6—1, in less than a half hour.

Other seeded players in action were Fred Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif., who won easily over Donald Neill, of Merion, Pa., 6—1, 6—0; Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, who downed Gerald Crowther, of Hermosa Beach, Calif., 6—1, 6—4, and Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., who polished off James Anderson, of Oakland, Calif., 6—3, 6—3.

Frank Shields, of New York, former National Singles champion, disposed of Ed Alloo, of Berkeley, Calif., 3—6, 6—4, 6—2.

In the women's singles the seeded players all came through the first round without incident. Gloria Evans, of Montclair, N. J., advanced to the third round together with Mary Jane Metcalf, of Denver; Shirley Catton, of Alameda, Calif., and Doris Hart, of Miami Beach.

New Jersey Woman Lands Record Tuna

Bimley Island, Me., Aug. 4 (AP).—A new world's tuna fishing record for women was credited today to Mrs. Maurice Meyer, jr., of Elberon, N. J., after she landed an 818-pounder that measured just a shade under 10 feet in length.

The previous record was held by Mrs. Lyman Bloomingdale, of New York, who boated a 702pound tuna off Wedgeport, Nova Scotia, on September 1, 1940.

Carrasquel to Get Starting Role Today Against Yankees

ALEX CARRASQUEL

Alex Carrasquel, the lone Venezuelan in the big leagues, will be promoted to a starting role on the Washington pitching staff today when he faces the Yankees at Griffith Stadium.

Carrasquel will be making his first start of the season. He has been a relief pitcher exclusively during the Nats' 1941 campaign. Because he has been the most effective of the Nats' relief men, Manager Bucky Harris is offering him a starting chance.

The Nats will be meeting up with Marius Ugo Russo today. The Yankee left-hander shut out the Washington club with four hits in the opening game of the season and has since beaten them twice.

Jenkins Scores T.K.O. Over Zodda In Newark Bout

By the Associated Press

Newark, N. J., Aug. 4.—Larrupin' Lew Jenkins of Sweetwater, Tex., world's lightweight boxing champion, belted out Joey Zodda, veteran New Yorker, in 2:55 of the third frame of a scheduled ten-round non-title bout at Meadowbrook Bowl tonight. Jenkins scaled 136 pounds to Zodda's 137.

A left hook to the jaw started Zodda on his way out. The blow felled him for a nine-count and a right to the other side of the jaw put him down again.

Staggering to his feet Zodda ran into two lightning rights to the jaw that finished him. Joey's head hit the canvas with a thud and he was out for several minutes.

Haggerty, A's Scout, Dies at Age of 60

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (AP).—Phil Haggerty, a baseball scout for the Philadelphia Athletics since 1934, died today after an illness of several months. He would have been 61 in September.

His last notable discovery for the A's was Tom Ferrick, now a star relief pitcher. He found Ferrick pitching for a semipro team in Brooklyn.

Pirates Grab Early Lead, Beat Reds, 4-1

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 4.—The World Champion Cincinnati Reds scored their second run in four games today, but it was hardly enough to delay the fast-charging Pittsburgh Pirates, who won, 4 to 1, on the three-hit heaving of Johnny Lanning.

The Pirates buttoned up the game with two runs in the first inning on Jeep Handley's infield single, Arky Vaughan's safe bunt, a force play, a walk, and the reluctance of Eddie Voost, and Lonnie Frey to decide about Vince DiMaggio's pop fly. It went for a single.

The Reds scored their run in the third without a hit. Bill Werber walked and worked his way round on Vaughan's wild throw of Joost's grounder, a sacrifice, an intentional walk, and a fly.

Rally In 9th Fails, Travis Grounds Out

Vernon Hits Homer, Drives In 3 Runs; Chase Unable to Hold a 2-0 Lead

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats and Yankees went their respective ways yesterday. The Yanks took a firmer, 12-game grip on first place and the Nats burrowed farther into the cellar. The score of their ball game at Griffith Stadium was 7 to 5, and the Nats didn't win it.

The Nats didn't win it, because Ken Chase spent a large part of the afternoon pitching three-base hits to the Yankees—four to be exact. He also suffered from an old ailment—base on ball poisoning. By the time Chase had finished his chores in the seventh inning, the Yankees had all their runs.

It was all very exciting, though. In the ninth inning, when the Nats generated a rousing false alarm that put the tying runs on base with one out and brought Johnny Murphy, the Yanks' one-man rescue squad, into the game.

Peek Knocked From Box

Steve Peek, strapping young right-hander late of Newark, threatened to pitch away the Yanks' 7-4 lead in the ninth, and Manager Joe McCarthy got him out of there. With one out, Peek walked Bloodworth and Pinch Hitter Buddy Myer, and Fireman Murphy moved in on the proceedings.

Murphy had no immediate success, what with George Case bashing a short single to left that filled the bases, but the tension was eased for the Yankees when Cramer filed out to Keller in left field, though a run scored. It was downright tense a minute later, though, when when Buddy Lewis drew a walk, moving the tying runs into scoring position and bringing Cecil Travis to bat with the bases full.

Travis grounded out to First Baseman Johnny Sturm, and everybody went home.

Vernon Hits Seventh Homer

The Nats stirred up a 2-to-0 lead for Chase in the first four innings. Cramer and Lewis singled in the opening inning with one out and, after Travis walked, filling the bases, Vernon got a run home with a fly to left field.

In fact, it wasn't Vernon's fault that the Nats lost the ball game. He drove in three of their five runs. Their second one was an exclusive Vernon production, taking the form of a homer over the right-field wall, his seventh of the season.

And then the Yankees started to move. Held to one hit for four innings by Chase, they gave him a burst in the fifth. Like this: Bang! Bang! Keller tripled to the center-field corner and little Phil Rizzuto tripled to the left-field corner. Rizzuto scored the tying run on Peek's high-bounding hopper to Chase.

The Yanks packed all their scoring into the fifth, sixth and sev-

Ival Goodman Goes Under Knife

Cincinnati, Aug. 4 (AP).—Ival Goodman, right-fielder for the Cincinnati Reds, underwent an operation for a minor hernia today and was reported in good condition. He probably will be lost to the Reds for the rest of the season.

Lonnie Frey, second baseman, disclosed today that he had undergone an operation for a small cyst on an eyelid Saturday.

Flock's Bunched Runs Turn Back Giants, 11-6

28,637 Fans See Night Game; Victory Is Brooklyn's Fifth Straight

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 4.—The resourceful Brooklyn Dodgers bunched all their runs into three consecutive innings tonight to overwhelm the New York Giants, 11 to 6, before a crowd of 28,637 and stretch their current winning streak to five straight.

The Giants tried desperately to snap the slump that had caused them to drop 11 out of 13 games on their Western trip. They scored twice before Brooklyn got started. A walk, a stolen base and Babe Young's double produced a run in the first inning, and, in the fourth, Young slammed his thirteenth homer of the year over the right field fence.

The Dodgers tied the score in the fifth on a single by Mickey Owen, a pinch double by Dixie Walker and a single by Bill Herman. In the sixth they took a four-run lead on Walker's double with the bases loaded and a two-base wild throw by Shortstop Billy Jurges.

This looked like the clincher until Ken O'Dea delivered a pinch homer with the bases filled for the Giants in the seventh to tie the score again. But the Dodgers were equal to the occasion. They sent ten men to bat in the seventh and scored five times. Jim Wasdell doubled two runners home, Pee Wee Reese singled for another and Herman doubled for the final two.

The Dodgers used three pitchers, with Curt Davis getting credit for the victory. The Giants used four, with Ace Adams the victim.

Sciatic Nerve Benches Reiser

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced tonight that Pete Reiser, Rookie outfield star who has led the National League in hitting most of the season, has been sent to New York Hospital for treatment of a sciatic nerve which has troubled him for several days.

Secretary John McDonald said Reiser was expected to return to the line-up Friday at the latest.

Woof Woof Injured

Del Mar, Calif., Aug. 4 (INS).—Woof Woof, star of the B. B. Robinson and Hursh Philpot Racing Stable, today was declared out of action for the remainder of the Del Mar August meeting. Woof Woof was injured in the American Handicap at Hollywood Park, in which he ran second to Mioland, and appeared off form in his only start since the handicap.

Yankees Nearing Another Record—13-Year-Old Double Play Mark

By George Kirksey
United Press Sports Editor.

New York, Aug. 4.—Baseball potpourri:

It's all right to heap praise on the pitching graybeards like Freddy Fitzsimmons, Charlie Root, Ted Lyons and Lefty Grove for their heroic mound work but how about giving a hand to 40-year-old Johnny Cooney, who plays center field nearly every day for the Boston Braves . . . he's missed only 17 games this season and what's more he is a bona fide candidate for the National League batting championship . . . Cooney hasn't much power but he can pull or slice those hits along the foul lines . . . Cooney is one of the real marvels of baseball . . . although not extremely fast he is a high class ballhawk because of his knack of getting the jump on the ball.

The Yanks have made 119 double plays in 101 games and stand a good chance of breaking the American League record of 187 set by Cleveland in 1928 . . . It's unusual for a first place club to lead the league in double plays . . . The major league record is 194 set by Cincinnati when Horace Ford and Hughie Critz formed the Reds keystone combination . . . Second division clubs have better double play records because they have more chances to make twin killings . . . Howard Krist, Cards' rookie, who leads the National League pitchers with nine victories and no defeats has beaten the Phils five times and pitched only two complete games, both against the tail-enders . . . Since Bill Dickey was hit in the head by Jim Bagby the Yanks have provided the Brooklyn type of head protectors for the players who want to wear them.

Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner, says if it's the Yanks and Cardinals in the World Series, the New York entry will be a heavy favorite, probably as high as 9-5 or 2-1. . . . Frankie Frisch gives Al Lopez a big measure of credit for the spurt of the Pirates. . . . "Lopez is the best defensive catcher in the game," Frisch says. "If a pitcher has fair control, Lopez can make a winner out of him." . . . Nick Etten, Phils' rookie first baseman who leads the league in hitting, was purchased from Baltimore for $10,000. . . . The Dodgers made every effort to get Johnny Rizzo from the Phils but had the deal balked by the Cubs who refused to waive on the outfielder.

The American League batting champion gets a cash prize of $500, but the National League champion gets nothing but a lot of criticism as to why he didn't hit more. . . . Dick Bartell says the main change he notices in the National League after a year's absence is the pitching improvement. . . . "Almost every pitcher has picked up an extra pitch," Bartell says. "I never saw so many sliders, knucklers, sinkers and screwballs in my life."

Robert Gardner Grove, son of Lefty Grove, is playing with the Gorham, N. H., Club and is determined to become a pitcher like his dad . . . well, a pitcher anyway . . . the Cubs again have tabled a plan to install a lighting system at Wrigley Field . . . The plan called for a system of lights that worked on the hydraulic plan, with the lights disappearing when not in use . . . this feature would have cost an extra $70,000. . . . Hank Leiber, Cubs outfielder, may have to wear glasses when he returns to action after being beaned for the second time in his career.

When Doc Prothro left the Phillies to go on a scouting trip, reports were circulated that Hans Lobert, who was left in charge of the club, would succeed Prothro if the good doctor decided to throw up the sponge at the season's end . . . to reports that Bucky Harris is serving his last season as skipper of the Washington Senators, Clark Griffith says, "I never discuss managerial changes in mid-season." . . . the story that Bill Terry might be succeeded by Lefty O'Doul as manager of the Giants next season has been be the Polo Grounds pilot . . . He denied but O'Doul may someday is hand-tailored for the job . . . however, Terry's contract has another year to run at $50,000 per and the Giants haven't that kind of dough to toss out the windows.

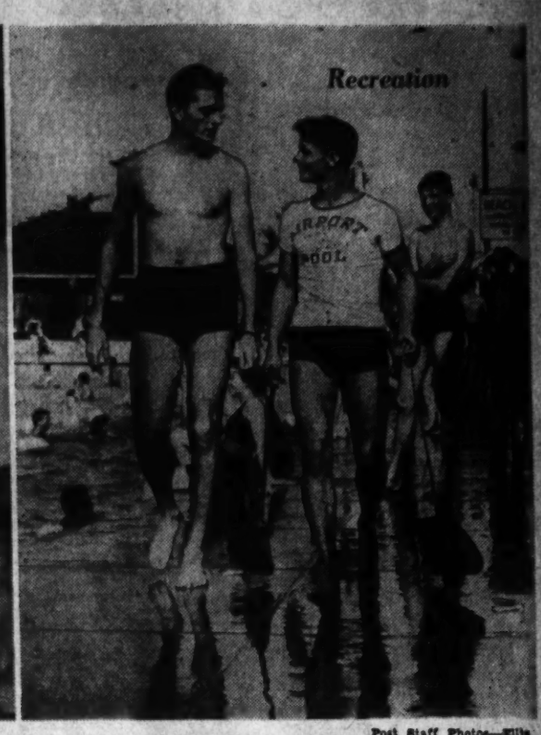
WILBUR ROCK'S DAY—GROUNDWORK FOR SCHOOL GRID STARDOM

Wilbur Rock is a special sort of football player, experienced and aggressive, but at a time when hundreds of local schoolboy athletes are looking forward to the grid season his daily routine should be nearly typical. Here the raw-boned Central High tackle, a senior-to-be, shows how he keeps in shape, starting with the toughest part of all. In bed almost every night by 10 p. m., young Rock is awakened at 5, grumbles a little, and finally gets up and prepares for a hard day's work . . .

House-painting is Wilbur's summer job. Under Foreman R. H. Deane, of the A. E. Gill Construction Co., he slaps paint on everything from cellar doors to attic ceilings for eight hours a day. His own overalls get a dose, too. The work is out-of-doors, strenuous enough to keep his 185-pound frame in first-rate condition for another banner season on the gridiron . . .

Though he has already eaten a hearty breakfast and big lunch, a healthful glass of milk is Wilbur's first desire after work. Here he's watched with wonder by his mother, who says, "I don't know where he puts it, but Wilbur almost eats us out of house and home." His appetite, however, is helping to build muscle that will stop off-tackle smashes later on . . .



Post Staff Photos—Ellis

Worsham's 68 Paces Kenwood P. G. A. Play

Ralph Beach, Rod Marien Win Pro-Amateur With 63; Walper, Barnett Have 69s

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Lewis Worsham, jr., the young Burning Tree pro who holds the Baltimore Open title, visited Kenwood, his old caddy grounds, yesterday and paced one of the largest Middle Atlantic P. G. A. fields in years with a 3-under-par 68.

In all nine pros and one amateur, Spencer Overton, broke or equaled par at Kenwood but by holing a pair of 60-foot putts, one on the fifth hole and another on the ninth, Worsham turned in the best round with 32—36—68.

The first pro-amateur prize went to Baltimore's Ralph Beach, the Suburban mentor and his amateur partner, Rod Marien, of East Potomac, with a best ball 63. Beach had a 74 and Marien a 77, plus a generous handicap allowance.

Spencer Overton, the ex-State and mid-Atlantic champion from Rolling Road led a large amateur sweepstakes field with a one-under par round of 70 while net prizes among the amateurs went to Marvin Wire, Kenwood, with 37-40, 77-13, 64, and Bobby Bowers, manager of the West Potomac course, with 72-6, 66. Parker Nolan and George Vass shot 73s but were out of the prize list.

Leo Walper and Bob Barnett tied for second in the pro sweeps, each with two-under par 69s. Barnett had a pair of deuces on the out nine which helped him to a 33 and he was back in 36.

Walper was headed for an average round when he hit the ninth hole but for the next four holes he rapped shots right on the pin and holed four consecutive birdies, 3-2-3-4. With par for a 67 on the seventeenth tee, Walper trapped his tee shot on the short hole, blasted over the green and finished with a double bogey five.

Three pro-amateur teams tied for second and last money in the best ball play. Walper and A. S. Melvin, Indian Spring, had 64, Melvin with a 75 of his own, Barnett and G. C. Warner, Chevy Chase, had 64, Warner helping Barnett five shots while Worsham and John Brooks had the same total.

Mrs. Meckley's 75-3, 72 Wins N.B.C. Cup Play

Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood's Maryland State champion who has been in the women's golf headlines throughout the season, played her finest round yesterday, a 75 at Columbia Country Club, which won the fifth annual play for the N. B. C. trophy.

Mrs. Meckley had nines of 37 and 38 for a course record, and minus 3 handicap strokes her net 72 was best of the field by 3 strokes.

Elinor Finckel, a prominent tennis player and golfer of the host club, had the day's tough luck story. Miss Finckel came to the last hole needing only a 7 to tie for the cup but she hooked near the fence to the left of the fairway and finished with a 10 for 46, 45—91—16—75. She had birdied the seventeenth hole and had five threes on a card which would have been her record score with an average finishing hole.

Mrs. Davy Shares

As Mrs. Meckley had both low net and gross totals she took the former and that left low gross to her playing partner, Mrs. Myron Davy, of the host club, with a 45-42, 87. Three missed a low gross tie by a stroke with 88s. Mrs. W. R. Stokes, Mrs. T. F. Neblett and Mrs. Leo Walper.

Jerry Weible, daughter of District of Columbia Women's Golf Association president, Mrs. W. L. Weible, appeared to be an easy third low net winner with a 44-47, 91-12, 79, her lowest competitive effort, but Jerry's playing partner turned in a score one stroke lower which when discovered carried the usual disqualification penalty.

Four players tied for third low net and by matching cards were prize winners in the following order: Mrs. W. E. Hall, Columbia, 93-13, 80; Mrs. J. W. Godfrey, Congressional, 89-9, 80; Mrs. H. W. Sharpe, Kenwood, 92-12, 80, and Mrs. Arnold McNitt, Congressional, 95-15, 80.

Seventh and eighth low net totals were also tied with Mrs. Edgar Puryear, Manor, winning with 99-18, 81, over Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, Woodmont, 93-12, 81, by the matching cards method.

High Score Counts

In an effort to encourage all players to turn in cards, a surprise high gross prize was awarded by the N. B. C. with Mrs. W. S. Lunger, of Manor, winning with a 107.

Mrs. Meckley's record round included only one long putt, that a 25-footer which thrilled the gallery around the eighteenth green by hitting the back of the cup, bounding into the air and then settling in the cup for a par 4. On the par 3 eighth Mrs. Meckley's 4-wood shot grazed the cup for a near hole-in-one, settling just 4 inches away for an easy birdie deuce. She had only one bad hole, a 6 on the twelfth.

Barney Welsh Tops Bennion In D. C. Tennis

Dick Bennion, unseeded former Utah State champion, put up a valiant battle yesterday, but like all of Barney Welsh's local net foes wound up on the short end as the D. C. Men's Tennis Tournament was continued at Edgemoor Club. Welsh's final margin was 6- 4, 6—3.

The third round match was hotly contested throughout as Bennion extended Welsh in both sets. Welsh thus gained the quarter-final round along with a pair of perennial contenders for local honors, Hugh Lynch and Bill Breese.

The first had trouble in his first set with Willis, but pulled out a 7—5, 6—3 decision. Breese romped over Dalby to the tune of 6—2, 6—0.

YESTERDAY'S SCHEDULE

Second round—Leavens defeated Beall, 6—0, 6—1.

Third round—Lynch defeated Willis, 7—5, 6—3; Welsh defeated Bennion, 6—4, 6—3; Breese defeated Dalby, 6—2, 6—0; Black defeated Gardner, 6—2, 2—6, 6—4.

Doubles: Second round—Shenkin-Rosenbaum defeated Morrow-Taylor, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4; Smith-Royal defeated Hackney-Hackney, 1, 8—6.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Singles: 4 p. m., Quarter-final—Lynch vs. Miller; 4:30, third round, Leavens vs. Shenkin; 5:30, quarter-final, Channing vs. Black.

Doubles, 6 p. m., third round—Channing-Breese vs. Adair-Miller.

Two Unseeded Players Win Women's Matches

Two unseeded players—Ena Dellinger and Eleanor Fishburn—joined Charlotte Decker, ranked No. 1, and Sarah Moore, rankned No. 4, in the semifinals of the D. C. Women's Tennis League Tournament yesterday at Rock Creek courts.

Miss Fishburn had little difficulty eliminating Ruth Jonsen, 6—0, 6—1, but Miss Dellinger was forced into three sets before downing Peggy Smith, 6—2, 3—6, 6—0.

Today's chief attraction will be the semifinal clash of Misses Decker and Dellinger at 5 p. m.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Singles: Quarter-finals—Ena Dellinger defeated Peggy Smith 6—2, 3—6, 6—0. Eleanor Fishburn defeated Ruth Johnsen, 6—0, 6—1.

Doubles—Decker-Herbert defeated Chinn-Towns, 6—2, 6—2.

Consolation—First round, Betty Zimmerman defeated Irene Bozart, 6—1, 9—7; second round, Margaret Graham defeated Betty Zimmerman, 6—3, 6—1; Eleanor Voith defeated Ethel Shedlow, 6—4, 6—2.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Doubles—First round, 3 p. m. Smith-Rowan vs. Graham-Emmons; 6 p. m., Moore-Fishburn vs. Decker-Herbert.

Singles—Semifinals, 5 p. m., Decker vs. Dellinger.

McKain Sold To St. Louis for 'Less Than $7,500'

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 4.—Sale of Relief Pitcher Archie McKain to the St. Louis Browns in a straight cash deal "slightly under" the $7,500 waiver price was announced today by Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Detroit Tigers.

McKain, the Tigers' No. 2 relief hurler, will join the Browns tomorrow in St. Louis.

McKain, who came to Detroit in 1939 from the Boston Red Sox in a five-player deal, has appeared in 15 games this year, winning 2 and losing 1. His first year with Detroit he won five and lost six and last year won the same number of games without dropping any.

Eagles' Hockey Coach To Meet With Owner

Redvers C. Mackenzie, coach of the Eastern Hockey League champion Washington Eagles, will be at East Potomac this morning at 11 o'clock to discuss the approaching Eastern League season with Owner Severine G. Leoffler, sr.

Mackenzie reports directly from Montreal, where he is golf professional of the Elm Ridge Country Club.

Mackenzie won Washington a pennant last season despite the fact that he started the campaign with eight new players. In his first season with the Eagles two years ago Mackenzie brought the Eagles home in second place.

RAMBLING ALL OVER THE JOINT:

Doesn't look as if Bobby Feller is going to win 30, does it? The Indians have 54 more games to play. Feller will get into a baker's dozen of those games, we'll say. That leaves him the extremely tough task of winning, say, ten out of 12 or 13 starts and relief appearances. All of which should bear out the lady's early statement that it is almost impossible to win 30 games in these days of three and four day rest periods between assignments.

CONSIDINE

We'd like to get a stenographic report of that meeting between Judge Landis and L. S. MacPhail, over the Babe Phelps and Augie Giulani cases. MacPhail took the initiative in suspending the blubbery complaining Babe and of sending Giuliani back tothe minors for what Giuliani claims is the fourth time. That's one more than par, and enough to cause Landis to declare Giuliani a free agent.

The Phelps case is the weirdest in baseball since Cliff Bolton walked out on the 1934 Senators after hitting .410 as a pinch hitter in 1933. Bolton apparently lost all interest in baseball, as has Phelps, who has stayed off the team despite the fact that he is losing potential money in bonuses. Even if the Dodgers blow the pennant, they'll get about a grand each for finishing second. We have a hunch that what took place in Landis' office was loud and severe, as things must always be when two forces as explosive as MacPhail and the rib-punching, profane old baseball czar collide.

Well, Craig Wood is the "world's champion" of golf. It couldn't happen to a nicer guy, but that doesn't relieve the fact that it couldn't happen to any golfer. There just can't be a world's champion in that game, at least a champ who'll last long enough to read his clippings. Craig beat Vic Ghezzi for the title in a special $2,500 match at Girard, Ohio. Neither Craig nor Vic would be sure shots even to finish in the money in their next tournament. The Scotch herdsman who first broke a home-made niblick over his kilted knee and swore that golf was an infernally humbling game, knew whereof he spoke.

Praises for Alexis Thompson

That's a decent thing young Alexis Thompson is going to do, when he begins operating his Philadelphia Eagles in the National Football League this fall. He's going to keep a job open for an athletic convict, and keep him on the payroll for the season. The young owner believes that sports can reestablish a man in society quicker and more surely than can any other calling. And so he is making this offer to gridmen fresh out of stir. He'll take one a year.

The tennis people are going to hold a "National Wimbledon Day" on August 24 for the benefit of the air raid victims of Wimbledon, once the Mecca of tennis. Wimbledon's once princely courts are now pock-marked with bomb craters and given over to the raising of vegetables. The money will be raised from a countrywide series of mixed doubles round-robin tournaments, to be played at all interested tennis clubs and groups of courts. The entrance fee of $2 a team will go in its entirety to Wimbledon—or what's left of it. The British War Relief people will give out prizes.

Along these lines, we think this would be a good chance for the U. S. L. T. A. to stop its nonsensical ban on an open tennis tournament. It hesitates now because an Open is contrary to International Tennis Federation rules. It could stage one for the relief of Wimbledon after the National Amateur is played at Forest Hills early next month. In such a tournament could participate such former Wimbledon greats as Bill Tilden, Helen Moody Roark, Don Budge, Bobby Riggs, Alice Marble, Sarah Cooke, Vinny Richards, Frank Hunter, Johnny Doeg, Frank Shields, Sid Wood, John Van Ryn, Elwood Cooke, Les Stoefen, Wilmer Allison, Helen Jacobs (who first suggested Wimbledon Day) and the other Americans, pro and amateur, who made Wimbledon the greatest name in the sport. P. S.: This suggestion will arouse the widest amount of disinterest in the U. S. L. T. A.

Bensinger Twice Victor At Junior Net

By the Associated Press

Culver, Ind., Aug. 4.—Seeded players in both divisions of the National Boys' and Juniors' tennis tournaments advanced to the third round as the first day's play today eliminated 53 contestants in 105 matches on the courts at Culver Military Academy.

Bobby Bensinger, who holds numerous titles around his District in Takoma Park, Md., marched through two matches in the junior division. Bensinger's first round victim was Raymond Speth, River Forest, Ill., by 6-0, 6-2 counts while in the second round he scored over Clarence Mabry, Alice, Tex., in three tough sets, 8-10, 6-3, 6-4.

Schweitzer Wins

In the boys singles, Britt Schweitzer, Washington, D. C., scored over Kenneth Culp, Monroe, Mich., 6-3, 6-4, in the first round while Dick Randall, Oak Park, Ill., won over Fred Gralock, Bethesda, 6-1, 6-2, and David Syerling, Washington, defaulted.

Gardner Larned, of Chicago; Victor Seixas, of Philadelphia, and Jimmy Evert, of Chicago, ranked 1, 2, 3 in the junior division, breezed through easy victories over opponents in the first two rounds, as did Bob Falkenburg, of Hollywood, Calif.; Jack Tuero, of New Orleans, and Don Harris, of Los Angeles, high seeded in the boys' division.

Larned Wins Twice

Larned will enter the third round tomorrow playing Holmes Cathrall, of Scranton, Pa., as a result of his 6—1, 6—2 victory over Alvin Bunis, of Cincinnati, and his defeating Pete Crandall, of Westfield, N. Y., in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1. Seixas, drawing a bye in the first round, defeated Ted Peterson, of Milwaukee, 6—1, 6—1, in his first match. Evert outclassed Charles Samson, of Waverly, Ohio, 6—0, 6—4, and Johnny Dennis, of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6—0, 6—3, in his opening matches. Evert meets Jack Ballack, of Long Beach, Calif., tomorrow.

Budge Patty, of Los Angeles, after being pushed by Marvin Beskin, of Chicago, to three sets, 6—2, 5—7, 6—0, defeated Lawrence Cahall, jr., of Philadelphia, in the second round, 6—1, 6—3. Harry Likas, of San Francisco, seeded sixth, defeated Ross Miller, of Ada, Okla., 6—1, 6—3.

Falkenburg, defending boy champion, easily defeated Eugene Gildermaster, of Princeton, Ill., 6—0, 6—0.

Carl Snavely Named All-Stars' Head Coach

Cornell Mentor to Have Norton, Crisler And Babe Hollingsberry as Assistants

By the United Press

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Carl V. Snavely, coach of Cornell's Big Red football teams the last four seasons, tonight was named head coach of the 1941 College All-Stars for their game August 28 against the professional champion Chicago Bears at Soldiers' Field.

He will direct a staff including Fritz Crisler, of Michigan; Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern; Homer Norton, of Texas Aggies, and Orin Hollingbery, of Washington State.

The coaches and a squad of 70 players, the latter selected by a Nation-wide newspaper poll, will begin training August 10 at the Northwestern University Stadium.

For the first time in the history of the event, coaches this year were named by the game's sponsor. Formerly they were selected in newspaper polls.

It also was disclosed tonight that Clark Shaughnessy, coach of Stanford's "rag to riches" Rose Bowl team, will assist the Bears for their game with the College All-Stars. Shaughnessy, one of the inventors of the famous T system employed by the Bears for several seasons and last year by Stanford, will be first assistant to George Halas, Bears' owner and veteran coach.

Gophers' Franck Signs One-Year Giant Contract

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Aug. 4. — George Franck, University of Minnesota halfback who won All-American honors last year, signed a one-year contract Sunday with the New York Giants, professional football team.

Franck, after a conference yesterday at Superior, Wis., where the Giants are in training, engaged in his first workout. He will remain with the team until Friday, when he goes to Chicago to play his last college game as a member of the All-Star squad in the annual game, this year against the Chicago Bears, professional champions.

Franck did not divulge terms of the contract, which he described as "thoroughly satisfactory." He expects to play right halfback.

Cumberland Opens Today With Sprinters in Feature Race

High Hedge, Roman Boy Will Clash

Dashing Doe Also Goes; Riders Vie For Watch; Eight Flat Races Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 4.—Maryland's half-mile racing season reaches the halfway mark at the 10-day meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association which opens tomorrow. At 2 p. m. Starter Ira Gregory is scheduled to send the first field away from the starting gate to inaugurate the greatest race meeting ever held in Western Maryland. With Hagerstown and Bel Air already on the books with record meetings, there is every reason to believe that Cumberland will go over the top with a bang.

Although lacking in the number of horses available at Bel Air, Cumberland will start only eight-horse fields and there should be enough bangtails available to fill any race Secretary Eddie Brennan has to offer. In fact, Cumberland has a higher grade of horses than ever before due, for the most part, to the minimum of $500 purses. Tomorrow's program will consist of eight flat races. The scheduled steeplechase event failed to fill.

Sprint Race Feature

The best offering tomorrow is the fourth event, a sprint that is fairly sizzling with speed. High Hedge, which set a track record at Bel Air, tackles Dashing Doe, Roman Boy and others. This race may bring a new mark for the 5-furlong course at this oval.

President Harry A. Manley as usual will award the top pilot at the end of his session a valuable watch.

Manley started this custom several years ago. It brought about many fine riding contests, as points are alloted for first, second, third and fourth positions; therefore it pays a jockey to ride his mount out and thus get points in the fight for the timepiece.

Points will be scored on the following basis: Five for first, three for second, two for third and one for fourth.

Among the well known riders, on hand are: Willie Dufford, Sammy Palumbo, Willie Kelly, A. F. Martinez, O. Hernandez, Al Veselli, Butsy Hernandez, Martin Bletzacker, R. D. Scott, Eddie Churchill, Danny Scocca, Joe O'Malley, Patsy Grant, Clarence Wright, C. Kirk, Bobby Barnhart, Johnny Shanks, Johnny Leyland, Freddie Woodstock, Doug Hamer, and A. Bocson.

Watch to Trainer

President Manley is also offering a valuable watch to the leading winning trainer during this month's racing. Only winners will count in the trainer's division, which means that numerous interesting contests are in order.

J. Brennan, race secretary here, also filled a similar role at Delaware Park and Bel Air. Brennan reports that more than 400 horses were shipped here.

All finishes will be photographed. It has also been decided to take saliva tests of all winners, as well as any other horses that the stewards may designate. This will insure fans that horsemen are abiding by the rules of the Maryland Racing Commission.

Exhibitors from every section of America are coming in for the gigantic fair to be held August 11 to August 16 inclusive. The fair, according to President Manley, will be the best in its 13-year history.

Following the racing here, horsemen will ship down to Marlboro for the 10 days sport of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association. August 20 to August 30, inclusive.

Fate Dealth Browns' McQuinn A Tough Blow—but He Smiles

George Not Resentful of Gehrig's Popularity, or Trade to Cellar Club

That old song about there being a broken heart for every light on Broadway has a recognizable echo down under the grandstands where the fielders and hitters, the pitchers and catchers shuck their damp flannels and head for apartment or hotel room.

Take the case of George McQuinn, the St. Louis Browns first baseman. He's one of the top men of his trade—maybe he is the tops, now that Lou Gehrig has passed on. His name has boomed as a sort of dull, throbbing obligato to every talk of trade or sale in the league for a couple of years. He's frequently reported as on his way to the Yankees, the club whose minor league chattel he was for 8 years. It's been said the slipping of the leash on him was the only real mistake Joe McCarthy ever made.

Cunningham

Yet McQuinn, young, talented, ambitious, is with the St. Louis Browns, a team which, with no aspersions upon the esteemed metropolis it purports to represent, is dragging bottom financially, has never won a pennant, has been in the second division steadily for the past 11 years, has finished seventh, seventh, eighth, seventh, eighth, and sixth, the last six, and which currently, despite its uncanny ability to wallop the Red Sox, is running neck-and-neck with Washington for last place.

Gehrig Kept Him Out

Here's a fellow qualified in every fashion to ride one of the proudest chargers at the head of the parade, yet fated by baseball luck and doomed by one of the game's greatest and most respected personal records to drag a ball and chain through the dust at the rear.

You'd expect him to be resentful, rebellious, even possibly noncooperative.

Strangely and admirably enough, he isn't. Although he fully realizes that a different fall of the cards would have had him guarding that first pillow for the roaring Yankees right now, would have had him in the front money these past four years and headed apparently for world series metal again this semester, he admits as much and then smiles it all off with a switch-over sentence that gets back to the chances of the Brownies of realizing their burning ambition of finishing in the first division for a change.

"I was the property of the Yankees," he explains. "At least I used to read that I was, but I never got closer to a Yankee ball park or training camp than Newark."

Then, by request, and with engaging honesty, he detailed his career. A high school first baseman in his home town of Arlington, Va., he started playing with a neighborhood semipro team organized mostly as a time-killer by a local pitcher, Len Owens, who was holding out on New Haven.

After a while Gene McCann, the Yankee scout, was around and McQuinn was forwarded by day coach to Wheeling, W. Va. He was what the dotcor ordered.

Pro Career Launched

That started him professionally. The rest of 1930 he free-wheeled for Wheeling. In 1931 he found himself in Scranton. He never knew why. The next year it was Albany, but that league blew up and he was informed he was the property now of Binghamton. In '33 he was told to report to Toronto. He was there two weeks and was hitting .350 when the manager, Howling Dan Howley, told him of a sad situation. It appeared that Howling Daniel had obligated himself possibly in the line of paying off some old fraternal favor, to give a Brooklyn first baseman a job if he didn't make good with Brooklyn. He didn't make good and here he was, and so here McQuinn wasn't, as far as any more job in Toronto was concerned.

Our hero thereupon back-tracked to Binghamton and finished the year. The next year, '34, it was Newark and Toronto. In '35, it was Newark all year. Now came '37 and the showdown. The Yanks, who had held a string on him all the while, although he'd never been even on the same field with the parent organization, had used up the three options provided by baseball law on him, and they now either had to fish or cut bait, which is to say they either had to make him a bona fide Yankee or let him go.

He was a crack first baseman by this time. In fact, in his three years in the International League he had hit .329, .330, and .331 consecutively, which is quite a trick, athletic or arithmetic. But the Yanks had the great Gehrig, the tremendous weight and unbelievable longevity of whose performance was what had been keeping the young man matched down all along.

Finally Released

So the Yanks released McQuinn outright to Newark, and the St. Louis Browns drafted him.

"Instead of any regret, it's just the other way 'round," the tall, good looking ball player grins. "St. Louis is a good town. I like the fans there. They're no different from any others. When we win they come to see us. When we lose, they don't exactly mob the ball park, but show me any town where that isn't so."

Young Mr. McQuinn, apparently in position to speak quite a piece about the injustices of baseball, didn't even come close. Moving apparently upon the theory that what you've never had, you haven't lost, he said everything was all right with him.

The story is that he'll wind up a Yankee even yet, but his career to date is the back facet of the matchless Gehrig jewel. If he were the heart-breaking kind, which he apparently isn't, he'd be a true baseball counterpart of that old Broadway song.

Perpetual May Not Enter Hambletonian

By the United Press

Goshen, N. Y., Aug 4.—Doc Parshall's Perpetual, the brown colt which has the best 1941 record of any eligible for Wednesday's $40,000 Hambletonian trotting classic, developed a fever today and may be unable to compete.

After the colt showed a temperature of 103, Parshall announced that he will give him a brief jog tomorrow morning and if Perpetual shows no improvement he will withdraw him at 11 a. m. tomorrow when the final $500 entrance fees are paid.

Should Perpetual be withdrawn, the field probably will be limited to nine starters, including two longshots whose entrance became virtually certain today—Merwynna and Double Guy.

Withdrawl of Perpetual doubtless would make Bill Gallon a prohibitive favorite. Before Perpetual's illness was known, expert horsemen already rated Bill Gallon the odds-on favorite, despite Perpetual's record. Bill Gallon, a brown colt owned by R. H. Johnston, of Charlotte, N. C., has only a one-heat victory to his credit this year. But he won that heat in 2:04 flat for the mile at Old Orchard, Me. Moreover, he was considered in sounder condition than Perpetual, despite the latter's imposing victories in the Matron, National and Historic Stakes.

Horsemen Puzzled

Indications that the longshots, Merwynna and Double Guy, will compete in the Hambletonian came as a surprise. Merwynna's owners, Sullivan and Mawhinney, of Machias, Me., sent in their $500 entrance fee to the secretary in advance today. They are confident, apparently, that the brown filly, which won the first heat of the matron stakes, is ready to upset other more-favored 3-year-olds.

Professional horsemen were puzzled by the probable entry of Double Guy, a chestnut colt owned by Dr. Anderson Arbury, of Midland, Mich. Double Guy's performances this season have been mediocre.

Withdrawal of Perpetual would increase the backing of such highly regarded horses as W. H. Strang's His Excellency, which has been clocked at 2:03 in training; E. T. Gerry's Fast Train, and Florimel, a bay filly owned by the Arden Homestead stable of Goshen.

In the longshot division, along with Merwynna and Double Guy, are the probable starters: Lucy Hanover, Hollywood Anna and Colleen Scott.

Marriage Takes Washington Race

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Marriage, a 5-year-old that won as a $1,000 claimer the first time out this season, scored his eighth straight success today when he won the Hanover purse before 10,000 ladies' day customers at Washington Park.

Marriage fininshed a length and a half in front of Diviana Stable's Sirocco. Miss Edna Boerger's Waugh Pop took third in the mile gallop over the sloppy track. Marriage paid $6.20, 3.40 and $2.80 and his time was 1:37. Arthur Craig handled the winner.

Trainenr Hirsch Jacobs claimed Marriage for $1,400 at Delaware Park last June 17, and won five claiming races with him, the last two while the son of Strolling Player—War Wedding—ran with a $5,000 tag.

Selections at Cumberland

Dear Al:

Up here where the Potomac River is a mere trickle, horse racing begins its usual ten-day stand today. Cumberland is one of the last stands of the fair and racing combine, once the order all around the Maryland half-mile circuit. Here in western Maryland, they still enjoy their fireworks, sideshows and pink lemonade along with their racing and the whole thing makes for two weeks of homey atmosphere that cannot be found elsewhere on the smaller tracks. It will be thus, too, as long as Harry A. Manley is Mr. Big. Manley loves Cumberland and Cumberland loves Manley. Years have served only to broaden his smile. As usual, last night was set aside for the annual chicken dinner at the track. This dinner is not a soup and fish affair, although it probably cost plenty. Rather, it is a "pitch 'till you win" and "come and get it" feed that, along with everything Manley backs, has grown and grown. It is one dinner where officials, horsemen, newspapermen, owners, trainers and stable help, gather in "catch-as-catch-can" style. You pick up your chicken and hide your face in corn on the cob. Jockey A. F. Martinez was the saddle champion at Bel Air, just as he was at Hagerstown. He finished with 11 winners to 7 for Sammy Palumbo. Nick Saegmuller, field secretary for the Virginia Horsemen's Association, proves that Virginia yearlings should be respected at Saratoga sales. Here's what he writes me on the subject: "In a careful study of all yearlings foaled in 1938, sold at Saratoga in 1939, and raced in 1940 I find that Virginia yearlings sold for $197,350 and returned in purses $102,315 or on a percentage basis 51.9 per cent of cost price. All yearlings other than those from Virginia sold for $1,322,850 and returned in purses $731,891 or a return of 55.3 per cent of cost price. Looking still further I find that 30.5 per cent of the horses from Virginia were winners and 45.8 per cent finished in the money in the 1940 racing season. Of horses other than those from Virginia 36.8 per cent were winners and 50.8 per cent finished in the money." See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—ABBOT'S CHANT is familiar with the sharp turns and is fit enough to turn back this kind. VALE DOVE was a winner at Bel Air and is dangerous. CLIFTON'S DAWN is a fair sort but is among the doubtful starters.

Second race—SINGLE FLY was bumped badly in the early stages of that last and then turned in a fair race. With better luck I look for this one to take it all. MICROFLAY drops back into company that suits. DEODO raced well after a long layoff and is a threat.

Third race—LITTLE HARPIST had poor racing luck at the other town and I'm going to string along with him in this field. SCOOTIE has speed and belongs close. MARANDAN to account for the minor money.

Fourth race—HIGH HEDGE and DASHING DOE are a close fit in this sprint. Both turned in excellent races at Bel Air and I prefer them in the order named. ROMAN BOY belongs in the thick of contention.

Fifth race—WELSH LAD was shut off badly at Bel Air and had littlt or no chance. Belongs on top of this kind. SKY HOSTESS likes this track and is a threat. ALLEN CAID for the show end.

Sixth race—BARDY seems well placed in this distance event. Gets a modest assignment and I'm going to string along. STOCKTON is better than generally rated. CONQUEROR III is good now, but this will be the third race in five days.

Seventh race—CHANNING was caught in the rip tide in the stretch last out. All this one needs is clear sailing. CHALOTAUR is in top shape and belongs close. KENNER is sharp as the proverbial tack.

Eighth race—IRISH OAK has been rested. May take the top from that No. 1 position and stay there. LIL'S DAUGHTER figured in a dead heat for first at Bel Air. MAC'S CANTOR belongs in the money circle.

Best bet—WELSH LAD.

Patsy Palmer, Washington Club Win Titles

One Record Marks A.A.U. Swim Meet

Joe LaSalle Paces Washington Over Airport, Y.M.C.A.; Palmer Sets Record

Patsy Palmer, the Shoreham team's outstanding aquamaid, and the Washington Golf and Country Club men's team, paced by Joe La Salle, collected top honors in the eleventh annual District A. A. U. swimming championships at the Takoma Park pool last night.

Miss Palmer, 16-year-old Wilson High senior, was the leading point-winner in the women's division, amassing a total of 15 for her three first places. She also set the only record of the evening when she lowered her own mark for the 150-yard medley.

On the men's side, Washington Golf and Country Club was trailing the Airport aggregation, 26 to 25, as the stage was set for the final event, the 300-yard medley. In this race Tommy Harrell gave the Country Clubmen an early lead when he captured the backstroke lap. Charley Koulias, swimming the breast stroke, held this advantage by a tiny margin, and Joe La Salle, swimming the anchor lap free style, turned in a fine performance to nose out Harry Palmer, of the Y's No. 1 trio at the finish. This victory gave the Virginians the men's team trophy with a total of 35 points. Airport, trailing badly with a fourth in this nightcap race, managed to slip into second in the team race with 28, and Y. M. C. A. finished third with 25.

Miss Palmer's victories, which no longer are classified as news, were highlighted by her final victory in the medley. Her teammate, Betty Roland, took the first leg, the breast stroke, but Patsy caught her at the turn into the second lap and was holding a slight margin at the completion of the back stroke. Then in the final 50 yards Miss Palmer, swimming one of her best races in the free style, held her lead and beat Miss Roland to the finish by a scant two lengths. This performance, negotiated in 2:13.6, lowered her own record of 2:14.8 which she established in the 1940 meet.

Following Miss Palmer in the individual women's points was Miss Roland with 11. Jean Brunson, also of the Shoreham team, was third with six, and Jackie Kinsey, of Airport, trailed with five.

Only two-time winner among the men was blond, stocky Howard McAdoo, the Fort Belvoir soldier who swims for Airport. Mac captured the century freestyle final after placing third in his preliminary heat, and came back later to take the 200-yard freestyle. Hoping to make a clean sweep of the dashes, he was a favorite to take the 50, but tired badly and finished a poor fourth.

As a feature of the show, five races were held for the lifeguards of the local pools—OSCAR ELDER.

Overlin Gets Soose Match November 21

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 4.—Ken Overlin will get a chance to recover his middleweight championship November 21 in a 15-round title encounter with Billy Soose at Madison Square Garden, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced today.

Soose, who hails from Farrell, Pa., was handed a close and widely disputed decision over the Washington scrapper last May. The champion lost a nontitle feud to Overlin's stablemate, George Abrams, last week.

The promoter also disclosed that the date for the light-heavyweight championship duel between Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside, N. J., and Tami Mauriello, New York, has been shifted from August 28 to August 26.

Boston Makes Bid For Louis-Nova Bout

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 4.—The City of Boston today put in its bid for the heavyweight title fight in September between Champion Joe Louis and Lou Nova, but Promoter Mike Jacobs remained undecided where the bout will be staged.

Jacobs conferred with George H. Eichelberger, an attorney, and James Fuller, of Boston, but said that he intended to give further consideration to their proposition along with bids from Detroit and Chicago.

Eichelberger and Fuller said they represented a group of sportsmen including Shelton Fairbanks, former Governor James Curley, Joseph Timulty, Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins. They said the group was ready to underwrite the fight with a $250,000 guarantee.

Jacobs' failure to mention New York as possible site for the match indicated that he possibly has abandoned the idea of conducting it here. The match is scheduled for September, the day to be set aside later.

Senate Upset In Mid-Atlantic Softball Play

The first upset of the third annual Mid-Atlantic softball tournament occurred last night at Ballston Stadium when Carr Brothers and Boswell eliminated Senate Beer, 1940 champion, 4-3, to gain the quarter-final round. In the second game, big Ray Wrenn connected for two successive home runs to lead his Plaza Wine and Liquor ten to a 6-3 victory over Baltimore's Cummins Construction.

Carr and Boswell scored all its runs in third inning on singles by C. Frey, L. Frey, Arnold, and Bauman and errors by Acquilino and Walsh. Tommy Dobyns held the slugging Senates to only three hits and only one earned run. In the nightcap, Roger Sawtell, only a day out of the hospital where he has been under treatment for a spinal disorder, limited Cummins to four hits. Wrenn drove in four runs with his homers. His first came in the opening inning with two mates on base.

May Ten Wins Capital City Encounter, 6-3

May Hardware scored its first victory of the second half in the Capital City League last night at Washington Softball Stadium, defeating Garvin's Grill, 6-3 and sending the Grillmen into the cellar. Charley Thompson hurled for the Maymen, limiting the Grillmen to but two hits.

Evening Star forfeited to Pepco in the National Night League.

enth innings. They came up with three more runs in the sixth when Chase parted company with his control. He walked Henrich and pitched a single to DiMaggio, who took second on the throw from the outfield. After Gordon lined a drive into Vernon's mitt for the first out, Rosar was purposely walked to fill the bases in order that Chase might pitch to Charley Keller who is the league's No. 1 run-producer.

In this crisis, Chase walked Keller and moved a run home. Two more scored when Rizzuto singled over second base. Bloodworth made a desperate try for the ball and succeeded only in booting it into unprotected territory.

In the seventh the Yanks came back for more against Chase and got two more. It happened after two were out. Joe DiMaggio walloped a triple to the center field wall, and Gordon surprised everybody but himself, by beating out a bunt to Archie that scored DiMag. Along came Rosar with a triple out of Buddy Lewis' reach and the Yanks had two runs for the inning and a 7-3 lead.

Back in the sixth inning, the Nats came up with a run when Cramer tripled to center and Lewis singled to left, but they muffed a chance for a big inning. Travis was safe when Rizzuto threw wild to second base on his grounder, but Gordon started a fancy double play on Vernon's smash over second base and the innards dropped from the uprising.

In the eighth, a walk to Lewis, Travis' single and Vernon's fly produced another Washington run, but four runs was the crying need at the time and so eventually the Nats lost the ball game.

Olson Hurls Heurich Nine To 6-2 Victory

Behind the hurling of slender Doz Olson, Washington-Lee High star, the Heurich Brewers yesterday eliminated Reliance Insurance from a chance for the second-half Washington Post Industrial crown with a 6-2 victory in a torrid battle on the Ellipse.

Olson gave Reliance only four hits, two of them being registered by Second Baseman McHale. Len Sokol's homer accounted for one of the losers' runs. Meanwhile, the Brewers collected six safeties, including doubles by Knight and Kaufman.

In today's clash, the playoff of a postponed game, the leading Cameo Furniture club squares off against Little Tavern on the South Ellipse at 5 p. m. The Tavernmen, in second place, boast an excellent chance of overcoming the leaders.

Archibald Bout Moved to Sept. 11

Fight Promoter Ray Alvis last night set September 11 as the date of his Joey Archibald-Chalky Wright promotion at Griffith Stadium.

Originally the fight was scheduled for August 19 at the stadium, but Promoter Joe Turner refused to yield his option on August dates. Turner will promote a Bill Poland-Eddie Blunt heavyweight show late this month at the stadium.

Archibald holds the New York version of the world featherweight title and Wright is recognized as No. 1 challenger by the National Boxing Association. The District Boxing Commission has refused to sanction the match as a title fight.

Keep Airliners In U. S., Urges LaGuardia

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 4.—Championing American commercial aviation, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia declared today that the United States should send no more transport planes to Great Britain.

"We want to maintain our rightful position in the commercial air field," he said at ground-breaking ceremonies for a new $500,000 seaplane hangar at LaGuardia Field. The hangar, already leased for 40 years at a total rental of $1,400,000 by American export airlines, will be completed early in 1942, and will be a base for a new Transatlantic air line.

LaGuardia stressed the importance of post-war adjustments in the United States and said: "I really believe that the war may be over not very long after this hangar is completed. In fact, it may be over before."

Terming the maintenance of commercial aviation a post-war problem and the hangar as New York's first concrete contribution to it, the mayor, who also is National Director of Civilian Defense, said:

"As anxious as we are to send planes overseas, I do not think that American aviation should be crippled."

To newsmen, later, he said: "I don't think we ought to give them (Britain) any more (transport planes). We need our transport planes here and we need them badly. After all, we have given a great many military planes and we will continue to give them. I want to see our commercial air lines, our shipping and our railroads kept up to top condition at all times."

Officials at the ceremony said the most recent reports from Washington were that a total of 112 commercial planes had been assigned to Britain, leaving slightly fewer than 350 passenger transport planes available in this country.

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau.
Monday, August 4, 1941—7:30 P. M.

Forecasts

For the District of Columbia—Increasing cloudiness and somewhat warmer Tuesday followed by local showers Tuesday afternoon and evening; Wednesday generally fair and somewhat cooler; gentle variable winds, becoming northeasterly Wednesday.

For Maryland—Increasing cloudiness followed by scattered showers in west portion and scattered showers and local thunderstorms in south portion Tuesday afternoon and evening; Wednesday generally fair and somewhat cooler.

For Virginia—Considerable cloudiness and somewhat warmer followed by scattered showers and thunderstorms Tuesday afternoon and evening over west and south portions; Wednesday generally fair, somewhat cooler east and north portions.

Weather Conditions

Pressure is relatively high and rising over the Great Lakes region as cooler air spreads eastward and southeastward into the Ohio Valley and North Atlantic States, causing generally cloudy weather with a few widely scattered showers in the Lake regions and North Atlantic States. Warm, humid weather conditions from Arizona and New Mexico eastward over the Gulf States to the South Atlantic States, with numerous showers and thunderstorms reported during Monday afternoon, while most of the rainfall in connection with these showers was light, locally moderate to heavy amounts being reported in northern Georgia, the Carolinas and the mountains of Tennessee. The extreme heat in Texas has moderated somewhat due to cloudy, showery weather, but unseasonably hot weather continues over the Central and Northern Plains States where maximum temperature above 100 degrees was quite common, with the highest 107 degrees at Rapid City and Pierre, S. Dak.

Opening lead: ◇ K.

By playing a seemingly useless trump on partner's high lead, McCarthy succeeded in defeating what appeared to be a sure game for his adversaries. The play of the trump forced declarer to overruff with an honor, establishing a trump trick for Mrs. Gordon.

When his partner won the first two diamond leads with the king and queen, declarer turning up with a doubleton, South could see a probable club trick and nothing more. But he was unwilling to give up as long as there was a chance to set the hand; and when Mrs. Gordon led the diamond ten, he threw on his heart nine, not with any feeling of assurance but in the hope that his play would make trouble for declarer in the trump suit. There was no need for him to trump, otherwise, as his partner's ten was obviously high, but then again his heart nine would never take a trick and this was as good a time to play it as any.

The heart nine forced the jack from declarer's hand, and left him with only three top cards to pull North's trumps. Mrs. Gordon's ten was then bound to take a trick, but without her partner's play it would have fallen under one of declarer's four honors.

West did not have to worry about taking the club finesse after trumps were drawn, for South could have no diamonds to return.

Note that Mrs. Gordon helped her partner to make the correct defense by playing the diamond rather than the ace to the third lead. It actually made no difference as the cards were of equal value at that point, but the play of the ten rather than the ace indicated that she might be trying for a trump trick.

Declarer was set one at four hearts, losing two diamonds, a club and the heart ten.

Capital Phone Firm to Spend $1,357,000

Expenditures of $1,357,000 for the construction of telephone plant and installation of equipment in the District of Columbia were authorized by the directors of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. at their monthly meeting, according to Charles A. Robinson, vice president and general manager.

ROBINSON

To take care of the increasing number of telephone calls in the Dupont and Lincoln dial centers, $879,000 will be spent to install additional equipment in these offices. About $741,000 of this amount will be spent at the Lincoln center where the fourth unit of crossbar dial equipment, providing an additional 7,730 subscriber lines, will be installed.

Expansion of business activities, in several Government departments, as a result of national defense measures, requires the expenditure of more than $113,000 to provide additional cable facilities and install private branch exchanges and associated equipment.

More than $60,000 will be spent to provide additional underground cable facilities in two other sections of the city to take care of telephone growth.

Mr. Robinson stated that actual expenditures for the first six months of 1941 totaled $6,944,000 as compared to only $3,406,000 for the same period in 1940.

"This increase," Mr. Robinson said, "is indicative of the unprecedented growth in the telephone service in the District of Columbia as a result of the national defense program."

Potomac Insurance Elects

Stockholders of the Potomac Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia at their 111th meeting yesterday elected the following directors:

Arthur Burston, John H. Grady, Charles E. Hood, Christian F. Jacobsen, Thomas C. Moore, Daniel Mungall, F. Norie-Miller, S. Norie-Miller, C. F. R. Ogilby, Alexander K. Phillips, Douglas R. Phillips and Frederick Richardson.

The Potomac, oldest and largest fire insurance company in the District, was chartered by a special act of Congress in March, 1831. The original charter was signed by President Andrew Jackson and John C. Calhoun.

The company now operates in 37 States, Hawaii, Cuba and Puerto Rico. The present assets are $5,838,197.40; capital, $1,000,000; surplus, $1,858,918.28.

New Drive Planned

Defense savings officials announced yesterday that a nation-wide drive would be made in September to get some 250,000 retail stores, filling stations and other business concerns to sell defense stamps.

Experiments have been made in Michigan, where 20,000 outlets have been used since July 10. Another 10,000 retailers scattered throughout the country are also handling the stamps.

Special sales campaigns, officials said, will be conducted in Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas prior to September.

The present plan is for retail stores to sell only defense stamps, leaving defense bonds to be handled by postoffices and banks.

D. C. Business Briefs

Seventeen of the 24 associations comprising the District of Columbia Building & Loan League have qualified with the Federal Reserve Bank and are empowered to sell defense bonds, according to F. Willson Camp, league secretary. Representing 92 per cent of the total assets of the group, the 17 units have found a steady sale for the securities and are reporting substantial numbers of new bond buyers.

William H. Dyer, assistant secretary of Perpetual Building Association, is enjoying a two-week vacation at Ocean City, Md. Other building and loan men away at this time include Chapin B. Bauman, Oriental Building president, who is at Bethany Beach, Del.; William Jameson, of the same association, vacationing in Maine, and Scott Birdsong, of Washington Permanent, who is on an extended trip.

Third Generator Ordered

Reporting quarterly earnings last night President E. L. Shea, of North American Company, called attention to the vast expansion of generating capacity in the utility system. In the Washington area, he stated, the Potomac Electric Power Co. recently expanded its construction program by ordering a third 50,000-kilowatt turbo-generator for its Buzzard Point plant.

A new addition to the Pepco plant was completed last October when a 50,000-kilowatt unit was placed in operation. A second unit of the same capacity is now under construction and is expected to be on the line next March. The third 50,000-kilowatt unit, just ordered, is scheduled to be shipped in December, 1942, and put in operation early in the following year.

Real Estate Bonds Gain

For 13 consecutive months, real estate bonds have shown an uninterrupted month-to-month rise, according to the Amott-Baker Realty Bond Price Average Bulletin. The average price of a $1,000 real estate bond, based upon the 200 prominent issues used in this survey, is now $303, as compared to $281 on December 31, 1940, and $298 on May 31, 1941. The improvement shown during July is 1.7 per cent and the rise shown during the first seven months of 1941 is 7.8 per cent.

Hotels led in the advance with a percentage of 12.1 per cent, helped largely by sharp advances in quotations for Washington's Mayflower and the Hotel Syracuse. Apartment hotels are up 11.3 per cent and office buildings are up 8.9 per cent thus far in 1941.

New Fur Shop to Open

David Silverman and Joseph Andelman announce the opening tomorrow of the J'Andel Fur Shop in the Willard Hotel building. A fur fashion promenade will be held throughout the day. Merchandise will not be sold tomorrow, they said.

Manufacturers Decry Talk Of 'Sheer' Hosiery Shortage

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 4.—Some hosiery manufacturers today decried talk of a major shortage in sheer stockings within the next year or so but differentiated between "sheer" and "all-silk."

One large silk stocking producer said categorically "there will be no sortage of sheer wear for the women of this country."

He estimated that under present conditions the supply would be sufficient for at least six months. The supply could be made to last at least two years, he pointed out, however, by altering silk content and production methods.

It was said most stockings no longer were all-silk. Since three years ago some manufacturers have been putting cotton and rayon tops and feet on some brands of hosiery. Some service weight stockings have silk only in the leg, with the rest cotton. The same is true of some 3-thread stocking in which the yarn consists of three threads of silk twisted together for strength. In some 3-thread stockings the tops and feet are made of rayon.

Hosiery men point out rayon is not a fiber but a synthetic yarn and consequently lacks the tensile strength and elasticity imparted by the fiber length of a material like silk. To attain strength and wear in some products silk and rayon threads are twisted together.

A Czecho-Slovakian industrialist said a high percentage of the hosiery made on the European continent was of rayon. He said almost 90 per cent of the stockings in his country were all-rayon.

A compromise between all-silk and all-rayon has been worked out for United States use.

The new process envisages the twisting of threads of silk and rayon together so that the finished hosiery would be both strong and sheer. The resultant saving in silk would be considerable, silk men say.

One of the most important defense uses to which silk has been put by the United States Government is the making of parachutes, of which 300,000 have already been ordered. It takes 12½ pounds of silk, according to silk manufacturers, to make one parachutes, fewer than 12 parachutes from a 35-pound bale of silk. That use for silk takes precedence over civilian demand. Silk is also used as bags into which powder is loaded to fire the big guns of the armed forces because its combustion is almost complete. The guns are left clean for the next load.

Silk manufacturers believe reprocessed silk could be used in the bags and probably a mixture of reprocessed and virgin silk could be used in parachutes.

Hosiery men, therefore, are not too pessimistic about the future of the industry. Several believe that instead of laying off men because of a silk shortage they will have to take on new men to care for the increased production of all-or-part-rayon stockings. They expect a boom in the mending of hosiery, which is already a growing business.

Nevertheless, they have no desire to be caught off base and most manufacturers canceled all orders pending clarification of Governments action. Some even closed their plants. Many of there probably will reopen, it was said, under the impetus of increased prices. Mrs. Average American must have her sheer hosiery.

Heavy Buying Carries Wheat To 4-Year Top

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Another outburst of buying today swept wheat prices upward more than 4 cents at one time to new four-year peaks, May, 1942, contracts reaching $1.17¾.

Oats were up almost 3 cents, rye more than 3 cents and corn almost a cent. May contracts for each cereal hit new highs for the past three or four years.

The market continued to reflect trade adjustment to price control legislation which, as it now stands, would prohibit establishment of ceilings below 110 per cent of parity for farm products.

Washington reports that some interests were seeking to raise this ceiling to 120 per cent and that legislation to revise parity figures upward was being considered added to bullishness. Increasing activity in the flour and milling trade due to higher wheat prices also brought in buying orders. Wheat flour prices in the New York metropolitan area were raised 15 cents a barrel.

Although all grains reacted from the day's tops due to profit taking, wheat closed 2⅞-3½ cents higher than Saturday, September, $1.11¾-$1.11⅞; December, $1.14⅜-$1.14½; May, $1.16⅞-$1.17. Corn was ½-¾ up, September, 77¼; December, 80½; May, 82¾; oats ⅞-2 higher; rye, 1½-2 up; soybeans, ¾-1⅛ higher and lard 10-13 higher. May oats sold as high as 46, May rye as high as 79¾.

Despite recent sharp advances, Chicago grain prices are still well below parity. Traders estimated ceilings under pending legislation at $1.43 for wheat; $1.04, corn; 64, oats; $1.17, rye, and $1.01, barley. Farm prices at mid-July ranged from only 48 to 81 per cent of parity, with corn coming nearest.

Cotton Closes Weak

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Commodity prices fluctuated nervously and closed irregularly today in markets beset on all sides by conflicting bullish and bearish reports.

Cotton ended 35 to 65 cents a bale lower in a brief flurry of liquidation brought on by uncertainty over the Federal loan rate announcement expected after the close. Earlier gains ranged around $1 a bale on talk of further farm bloc changes in the price control bill. Cottonseed oil, inconsistently, gained .13 to .19 of a cent a pound.

After the market closed, the Agriculture Department announced that Government loans on 1941 cotton, ⅞-inch middling, would average 14.02 cents per pound, compared with 8.90 cents last year. The increased rate was made mandatory by the new requirement that loans be made at 85 per cent of parity, and was based on the August 1 parity price of 16.49 cents.

Domestic sugar contracts held minor gains on a firm market for raw sugar, and world contracts added about 1/10 of a cent a pound.

Libby, McNeill Offering Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Headed by Glore, Forgan & Co., a national underwriting group, tomorrow will offer 1,500,000 shares of the common stock of Libby, McNeill & Libby, at 5⅝ a share. These 1,500,000 shares will be purchased by the underwriters from Swift & Co., and are the remaining portion of 3,018,639 shares of Libby—approximately 83 per cent of the outstanding stock owned by Swift & Co. on January 1. On completion of this underwriting, Swift & Co. will have completely divested itself of Libby securities.

The underwriting group offering the stock is one of the largest on record. Principal members associated with Glore, Forgan & Co. are: Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc., Blyth & Co., Inc.; Dean Witter & Co.; Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc.; Hornblower & Weeks; Hemphill, Noyes & Co.; Bankamerica Co., and Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.

Men's Wear Sales Up 19% in June

Reports to the Commerce Department indicate that June sales of chain men's wear stores were about the same as in May and were 19 per cent higher than in June, 1940. Usually, June sales are well above May, the department said, but May business was at an unusually high level. For the first six months, sales were 33 per cent above the 1940 period.

Bank Loans Up 1.6 Billion During Year

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that the defense program had caused commercial, industrial and agricultural loans in 101 leading cities to rise $1,606,000,000 in the last year.

The board said that this gain was figured after taking into account a rise of thirty-six million dollars to a total of 6,047,000,000 in the week ended July 30. New York banks accounted for half of last week's jump.

Business loans have been rising fairly steadily during the last year, and last week's gain was the fourteenth in a row.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on July 30, together with the increase or decrease since the previous week and the corresponding week last year, in millions of dollars:

Celanese to Boost Production of Synthetic Yarns

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—An official of Celanese Corporation of America said today the company had increased its production of synthetic yarns considerably in the past year and that the trend during the coming year would be upward.

The biggest percentage will be at the Celco, Va., plant, where the 2,100 employes will be increased to 4,100 within a year, he said. A cellulose acetate plant under consrtuction there is expected to be ready at the end of 1941.

At Cumberland, Md., the company has about 11,000 employes, an increase of 2,000 over the total a year ago.

"That approximates the ratio of increased production during the past yera," the official said. "We expect the trend to continue upward at about that rate—if we can get raw materials."

Florida Railway Plan to Cut Debt

By the Associated Press

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended yesterday a reorganization plan for the Florida East Coast Railway Co. calling for a reduction in capitalization from $95,816,000 to 37 million dollars.

The examiner, Ralph H. Jewell, said his recommendation to the commission was similar with a few recommendations to the plan proposed by the deposit committee for the first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds.

Present fixed interest charges would be reduced from $2,823,480 to $483,480. The latter sum could be increased, however, to $813,480 under a provision raising the interest rate on fixed interest bearing bonds whenever income available for fixed charges equals or exceeds $1,250,000 a year for any two consecutive years after consummation of the plan. The recommended effective date of the plan is January 1.

Leaf Marts Open Today

Valdosta, Ga., Aug. 4 (AP).—Fifteen tobacco market towns in Georgia and two in north Florida were prepared today for the opening bids of the 1941 bright leaf selling season tomorrow morning, the growers cheered by Federal price guarantees of profitable averages.

D. C. Utilities' Parent Earns $5,514,060

The North American Co., public utility holding company, reported yesterday consolidated income for the second quarter of $5,514,068, after preferred dividend requirements to 53 cents a common share, against $4,876,137 or 46 cents a common share in the like period of 1940.

President E. L. Shea said that entering the second half of 1941 the North American system was producing the greatest supply of electric power in its history. Revenues for the second quarter of 1941 were said to be 11 per cent greater than the second 1940 quarter, and electric output for the period 22 per cent greater than in 1940.

Shea said that since the beginning of 1940 the system has authorized an increase of 35 per cent in generating capacity. The program at present calls for addition of 737 kilowatts to output and runs through 1943.

The North American Co. owns approximately 80 per cent of the common stock but less than a majority of the voting stock of Washington Railway and Electric Co., whose subsidiaries are Potomac Electric Power Co. and Braddock Light & Power Co. in the Washington area.

In a footnote to the income statement the utility holding company stated:

"Dividends recevied from Washington Railway & Electric Co. during the three months periods ended June 30, 1941, and June 30, 1940, and the 12 months period ended June 30, 1941, were $89,572, $55,601 and $34,923, respectively, less than the proportion of the consolidated earnings of that company and subsidiaries (other than Capital Transit Co., and subsidiaries) applicable to the holdings of the North American Co. Dividends received from Washington Railway & Electric Co. during the twelve months period ended June 30, 1940, exceeded by $166,975 the proportion of the consolidated earnings of that company and subsidiaries (other than Capital Transit Co. and subsidiaries) applicable to the holdings of the North American Co.

"The proportion of the consolidated earnings of Capital Transit Co. and subsidiaries applicable to the holdings of the North American Co. directly and through Washington Railway & Electric Co., in excess of dividends received by the respective companies from Capital Transit Co., amounted to $170,014 for the three months ended June 30, 1941, $11,064 for the three months ended June 30, 1940, $366,589 for the 12 months ended June 30, 1941, and $227,953 for the 12 months ended June 30, 1940."

Earnings Reports

Packard Motor Car Co. reported for the six months ended June 30 net profit of $1,251,894, equal to 8 cents a share, against net loss of $102,366 in the first half of 1940. Indicated net profit for the June quarter was $977,422, equal to 6 cents a share against net loss of $140,773 in the same period last year.

Certain-Teed Products Corporation, makers of building materials, reported for the six months ended June 30 net profit of $518,721 after provision for Federal income taxes, equal after dividend requirements on the 6 per cent preferred stock to 48 cents a share on common stock. This compared with $168,581, equal to $2.31 a share on the 6 per cent preferred stock in the first half last year. Preferred dividend accumulations amounted to $25.50 a share on last June 30.

Dresser Manufacturing Co., makers of gas, oil and water pipe accessories, reported for the six months ended June 30 net profit of $375,781 after provision for Federal taxes, equal to $1.12 a share, against $476,480, or $1.59 a share in the like period of 1940.

Net earnings of Continental Can Co. and wholly-owned subsidiaries for the 12 months ended June 30 were $8,670,908 after deductions for estimated Federal taxes. This was equal after dividends on preferred stock to $2.88 a share on the common stock and compared with $8,879,628, or $2.80 a share in the preceding 12 months.

Pillsbury Flour Mills reported for the fiscal year ended May 31 net profit of $810,764, equal to $1.47 a share on capital stock, against $900,914, or $1.64 a share in the preceding year.

Coca Cola Co. Reported net profits of $9,162,727 for the quarter ended June 30, as compared with $5,584,503 for the same period of 1940. The report said the volume of operations in the second quarter was the largest in the company's history. Directors declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock.

Van Raalte Co., Inc., showed first half net profit of $429,725, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.88 a common share, compared with $356,664 or $2.30 a common share in the first half of 1940.

Aircrafts Turn Buoyant in Late Trade As General List Moves Irregularly

New York, Aug. 4.—For the sixth straight session the stock market today was unable to register an advance on average.

While aircrafts worked up belated fractional improvement, and motors and oils did fairly well throughout, steels displayed further slipping inclinations and most recently buoyant rails took a rest.

The Associated Press composite of 60 stocks closed unchanged at 44. The barometer had not been up since last Monday. The day's stalemate was exemplified by the fact that, of 725 individual issues traded, 258 were down, 235 were up and 232 unchanged.

Dealings were lively at intervals but slow periods were plentiful. Transfers amounted to 633,190 shares against 678,990 in the previous 5-hour proceedings.

Increasing Far Eastern worries, with Japan halting steamship sailings to the United States, helped restrain buyers, brokers said. The Russian-German war news seemingly was unimpressive marketwise. There was plenty of business optimism although tax doubts remained a chilling factor here.

Steels had to contend with an estimated drop in this week's mill operations attributed mainly to growing shortages of scrap. Mounting military plane backlogs aided the aviations. Oils did better as the 7-to-7 curfew yesterday resulted in even heavier gasoline sales in the blacked-out Eastern seaboard States than is usual on Sunday.

Full priorities for all copper, decreed by the OPM and effective Wednesday, kept most metal stocks in a restricted area. While American Smelting conceded a point, Anaconda and Kennecott were up a shade.

Edging into new high ground for the year were Boeing, Lockheed, and Consolidated Aircraft. Improved also were North American Aviation, Curtiss-Wright, Douglas Aircraft, General Motors, Chrysler, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Corporation, Willy-Overland and Twentieth Century-Fox.

On the offside were Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, and Eastman Kodak.

Leaning forward in the curb were Beech Aircraft, Brewster Aero, Fairchild Engineering & Aircraft, Gulf Oil and International Petroleum. Backward were Republic Aviation, Cities Service, and St. Regis Paper. Volume here approximated 141,000 shares compared with 145,000 Friday.

Gen. Motors Votes Usual $1 Dividend

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Directors of General Motors Corporation today declared a dividend of $1 a share on the common stock payable September 12 to holders of record August 14. A similar payment was distributed in the previous quarter. There are about 43,150,000 shares of common stock outstanding.

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share in addition to the regular 25-cent dividend on the capital stock, payable September 15 to stockholders of record August 18. Similar amounts were declared a year ago.

Directors of Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, payable September 15 to stockholders of record September 5, in addition to the quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on preferred stock, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 20.

Failures Total Sets New Low for Year

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet reported today industrial and commercial failures totaled 190 in the week ended July 31, compared with 253 in the previous week of 1940. The figure for the latest period was the lowest for any full working week so far this year.

Boom Market In Furniture Sales Noted

By the Associated Press

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 4.—Summer markets in the furniture industry have thus far displayed all the appearances of a runaway boom, according to Seidman & Seidman, industrial accountants.

Attendance at all exhibit centers has reached new high records and pratically every manufacturer booked all the orders he cared to take, the report added. In many instances furniture plants were "sold out," did not open their exhibition spaces at all, and in other cases manufacturers accepted orders contingent on 60 or 90 day delivery basis.

In terms of dollar volume, orders booked by the industry at the July market exceeded those of the 1940 summer market by nearly 70 per cent.

Scrap Shortage Is Factor in Steel Operations Drop

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Steel operations for the current week were estimated by the American Iron & Steel Institute today at 98.3 per cent of capacity, a drop of 1.3 points from last week's national average.

The level compared with 96.8 per cent a month and 90.5 per cent at this time last year.

Steel trade sources regarded as a factor in the decline the troublesome shortage of scrap. Within the last week leading steel authorities warned that the industry would have to cut operations unless some way were found to enlarge the supply of scrap material.

E. A. L. Profit Sets New High In Six Months

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 4.—Eastern Air Lines, in a statement for the six months ended June 30, today showed net profit of $768,662 or $1.34 a share on the common stock. This compared with $733,925 or $1.28 a share for the same period last year.

Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president and general manager, said the half year set a new record for net earnings despite the fact that provision for Federal income tax this year was $117,000 greater than the first six months of last year and provision for depreciation and obsolescence was $398,437 greater than for the comparable period of 1940.

Earnings for the June quarter were $282,179, compared with $322,346 in the like period last year.

A total of 215,539 revenue passengers were carried during the half year, a gain of 36 per cent, and passenger revenue amounted to $5,530,495, an increase of 29 per cent.

Capt. Rickenbacker reported that ten Douglas DC-2 14-passenger planes were sold indirectly to the British purchasing commission, two Douglas DC-3 21 passenger planes were sold to the Defense Supplies Corporation, and ten Douglas DC-3 21 passenger planes on order released to the priorities board.

In addition, he said, Eastern Air Lines has released to the United States Army 8 Douglas DC-4 four-engined 40-passenger planes, orders for which had been placed nearly two years ago.

Cotton Traders Reject Plan to Boost Margin

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—A New York Cotton Exchange committee today in effect rejected a suggestion of the Federal Commodity Exchange Administration that speculative margins be set at 15 per cent of the purchase price of the product traded.

Such margins "would work a great hardship on the producers of cotton by denying them a full and free market for their product," the committee reported.

Mrs. Anadale's Rites Today; Here 95 Years

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen R. Annadale, 97, a resident of Washington for 95 years, will be held today at 2:30 p. m. in the Wright Funeral Home, 1337 Tenth Street Northwest. Burial will follow in Glenwood Cemetery. She died Sunday afternoon in her home at 1125 Fourth Street Northeast, just four days after reaching her ninety-seventh birthday.

Mrs. Anadale was born in Germantown, Pa. She married John A. Anadale here, a master plumber and steamfitter, who died in 1906.

She was active until eight months ago. She recalled vividly how the streets of Washington were thronged with wounded Union solders returning from the Battle of Bull Run. During those days Mrs. Anadale worked sewing bandages and making blankets. Mrs. Anadale remembered seeing President Lincoln on a number of occasions but was most impressed with the crepe-hung streets after his death.

Surviving are two sons, Alfred H. Anadale, of Woodside, Md., who was formerly assistant to the District plumbing inspector, and Harry D. Anadale, of 1125 Fourth Street Northwest, with whom Mrs. Anadale made her home, and 7 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren, all of Washington.

OPM Can View Concrete Example Of Defense Speed

OPM officials, looking out of their windows from the new Social Security Buliding, have a mark to shoot at in speeding up the defense program.

Their view across the street at Independence Avenue and Fourth Street Southwest, is of a two-story building of seven wings and 118,000 square feet of office space. It was completed yesterday. On May 23, however, it was only a dream of the McCloskey & Co. contracting firm.

On that date the work was authorized. Ground was broken three days later. Keys were turned over to the Government yesterday, one day before the expiration of the 75-day contract. The work was done on a straight eight-hour day, five-day week program.

The first truckload of equipment from the Office of Price Control and Civilian Supply, which will occupy the new building, moved in yesterday afternoon.

ODD BODKINS — By FRED [illegible] CRAIG

HEY—WAIT!! YOU'VE GOT MY SUITCASE
WHY DON'T YOU DO SOMETHING TERRIBLE TO US—MUSCLE-MAN! WE'D LIKE TO SEE HOW YOU WORK!
WHAM!
NOW WHAT HAVE I DONE?
DON'T COME NEAR US—PLEASE DON'T! WE'LL PAY FOR EVERYTHING!
GOLLY, IT'S GETTING SO I CAN'T EVEN RUB TWO STICKS TOGETHER!
MEANWHILE IN WHISTLE STOP...
ODD CAME IN YESTERDAY TO BUY A MONEY BELT—AND BY GONNIES, GRANDMA TWEEDY, DO YOU KNOW WHAT I SOLD HIM BY MISTAKE?
WHAT-EVER IT IS, HE'S WEARING IT!!

JOE PALOOKA — Calisthenics — BY HAM FISHER

GO THROUGH THOSE CALISTHENICS WITH JOE. I'LL SEE YOU LATER. BE SURE HE DOES HIS STUFF.
RIGHT. HE WON'T LAY DOWN ON TH' JOB WHILE I'M AROUND.
TEE HEE.
C'MON NOW-- ONE-- TWO-- THREE-- FOUR-- FIVE--
YESSIR!
F-FORTY-FI-- F-F-FORTY-SIX-- WHEW---
NO---IT'S THIRTY-- YOU MUSTA MADE A MISTAKE.
I'LL BET YOU A CARTON OF CIGS.
DO YOU THINK I'M NUTS?

WINNIE WINKLE — He'll Go and Like It — BY BRANNER

OH, ISN'T IT WONDERFUL THAT FATHER AND I GET OUR VACATIONS THE SAME TWO WEEKS!
THAT'S FINE!! NOW WE CAN ALL GO ON A VACATION TOGETHER!
NOT ME! I'M GOIN' ON A CAMPIN' TRIP WITH TH' BOYS FROM TH' FIREHOUSE!
YOU CERTAINLY ARE NOT! YOU'RE GOING WITH US!!
AW, WE'RE JES' GOIN' TO DO A LITTLE FISHIN'- YOU'D BETTER FORGET FISHIN'! YOU'RE GOIN' TO SPEND YOUR VACATION WITH YOUR FAMILY!!
OH, WELL— ALL RIGHT! WHERE ARE WE GOIN' FOR OUR VACATION, ANYWAY?
HEAVENS-ER-I-UH-I DON'T KNOW—WHERE ARE WE A'GOIN', WINNIE?
DEAR ME, I DON'T KNOW EITHER!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELP — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — A Plea for Help — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

WHEN BY-STANDERS STARTED TO HELP JANE THE ESCAPING MURDERER TOLD THEM THE JEWELRY STORE WAS BEING ROBBED— AND THAT SHE WAS ONE OF THE BANDITS—
A BANDIT, EH? WELL, LET'S GIVE HIM A HAND THEN!
NO—I'LL GET THIS ONE TO THE POLICE STATION—
YOU FELLOWS GET HELP SO THE OTHERS CAN'T ESCAPE!
OW! YOU LITTLE VIXEN—
I'LL TEACH YOU—
GRAB HIM, QUICK—THERE'S NO ROBBERY— HE'S A MURDERER!

SUPERMAN — The Evil Dwarf — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

OUTSIDE THE METROPOLIS BANK--A DWARF-LIKE FIGURE WADDLES UP TO ONE OF THE GUARDS WAITING NERVOUSLY BESIDE A BANK TRUCK...
MAY I PLEASE HAVE A MATCH, SIR?
GO ON ABOUT YOUR BUSINESS!
AS THE LUDICROUS LITTLE MAN REGARDS THE GUARD, HIS GREEN MALEVOLENT EYES GLARE LIKE TWO TINY EMERALDS...
SORRY TO HAVE ANNOYED YOU—SO SORRY! IF I HAD KNOWN WHAT YOUR REACTION WOULD BE TO HAVE DONE JUST THE OPPOSITE!!!
WHEN THE GUARD'S COMPANIONS EMERGE FROM THE BANK SHORTLY AFTER, THE BANK GUARD OPENS FIRE ON THEM!!!..
I WANT THAT DOUGH!
LATER—AFTER HE IS OVERCOME.....
WHY DID YOU DO IT?
I-I DON'T KNOW...! THE LAST THING I REMEMBER IS TALKING TO AN ODD LITTLE HALF-PINT WITH THE STRANGEST EYES...!"
TAKE HIM TO HEAD-QUARTERS FOR QUESTION-ING!
IN AN ALLEY ACROSS THE STREET, GLAD OBSERVES THE DEVELOPMENTS WITH INTEREST.....
UNFORTUNATE.... HOW UNFORTUNATE! AND HIS STORY OF BEING ACCOSTED BY A SHORT STRANGER. THE MAN IS OBVIOUSLY OUT OF HIS MIND!

There's reason to believe that the subject of "Report to the Nation," which you'll hear over WJSV and the Columbia network at 8:30 tonight, is of universal interest, whether people like it or not.

For it's to be about that certain thing—taxes—more certain next year than ever!

The new Federal tax bill's effect on [illegible] of the average citizen is to be thoroughly outlined in the half-hour dramatization and Director Brewster Morgan, the fiend, plans to show in great detail how much more the individual's tax bill will be in 1942 than it was this year.

Just to show that he also has a kindly side, however, Morgan plans to devote a part of the broadcast to explaining how the new tax anticipation notes work. They are part of the scheme devised by the Treasury Department to enable people to pay their taxes ahead of time, on the installment plan.

Although, you'll notice, "Report to the Nation" is being heard at a new time—formerly it was heard on Mondays at 7 p. m.—it still retains the same format. WJSV's indefatigable commentators, Albert Warner and John Charles Daly, continue as the narrators.

The new time gives the show a larger audience than ever before. It's a logical sequence that its topic also concern a larger audience than ever before.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Double Talk About Trouble — BY MILTON CANIFF

THE BOMBERS WERE EVIDENTLY AFTER BIGGER GAME TO THE WEST! ONLY A FEW INCENDIARIES LANDED HERE... SO THE EVENING TURNED OUT VERY WELL!
THE DANCING WAS PROBABLY A STRAIN ON YOUR KNEE, BURMA! IF YOU WISH TO GO ON TO BED, I AM SURE THE BOYS WILL UNDERSTAND!
THAT HORSE-FACED, HIGH-NOSED PRIMA DONNA!!! GIVING BURMA THE BRUSH IN FRONT OF TERRY AND DUDE! IF I ONLY KNEW WHAT HAPPENED IN THAT AIR RAID SHELTER TO MAKE HER SO HAPPY!
GOOD NIGHT, DUDE! ISN'T IT STRANGE HOW THE GREATEST REASSURANCE SOMETIMES COMES WHEN THE HOUR IS DARKEST? GOOD NIGHT, TERRY!
MILTON CANIFF

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

I WONDER WHERE THEY'RE GOING, TOM?
PROBABLY JUST A GRASS FIRE... WE'VE HAD A LOT OF THEM DURING THIS DROUGHT!
HOPE IT'S NOTHING BIG... JUST WHEN WE'VE PUT THE PAPER TO BED!
MR. KANE! I JUST PHONED THE ENGINE HOUSE...!
TOM KANE EDITOR & PUBLISHER
THE TRAILER CAMP IS BURNING! SHALL I GO OUT THERE?
NO, FRANK! STAY ON THE PHONE... HOLD THE PRESS... I'LL CALL YOU BACK!
BOOMVILLE TIMES
DALE

MICKEY FINN — At Last! — BY LANK LEONARD

NOW WHAT'S THIS ALL ABOUT?
YOU'RE COMING DOWN TO HEADQUARTERS WITH US, TEX! GET YOUR CLOTHES ON!
NOT SO FAST! YOU GUYS HAVEN'T ANYTHING ON ME!
OH YES, WE HAVE! YOU'RE UNDER ARREST RIGHT NOW!
WHAT FOR?
FOR THE MURDER OF STONEY HART!

MR. AND MRS. — The Magic Spectacles — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

THAT WAS MISS CRUMPLE. WHY DIDN'T YOU BOW? DIDN'T YOU RECOGNIZE HER?
NO! CONFOUNDED HUMIDITY CLOUDS MY GLASSES SO I CAN'T SEE MY THING
HOW DO, MISS SHEER! NICE DAY!
JUST A GIRL IN OUR OFFICE
SINGULAR HOW YOUR EYE-GLASSES CLEAR UP WHEN A YOUNG GIRL GOES BY

DIXIE DUGAN — Race Against Time — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Drafted — BY FRANK MARTINEK

SAY! YOU FELLOWS DON'T REALLY SUSPECT RODERICK RICH OF ANY—
IT'S NOTHING DEFINITE, JACK, BUT JUST HUMOR A COUPLE OF NAVAL INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS, WILL YOU?
OH, WELL—OKAY. IF YOU WANT TO PROWL AROUND THE PLANT TONIGHT AND CONFRONT THE OLD BOY—GO AHEAD.
WHILE NEARBY AT THE REFUGEE CAMP...
WELL, IT'S ABOUT TIME! THAT FOREIGN AGENT PAL OF MINE HAS HUNTED ME UP AT LAST
TONIGHT, COMRADE, YOUR SERVICE FOR THE HOMELAND BEGINS. REPORT AT THE REAR ENTRANCE OF THE RICH MANSION AT MIDNIGHT

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

GRANNY TUTTLE! I DIDN'T SEE YOU AROUND ALL DAY YESTERDAY!
RHEUMATISM, DEARIE! BUT I TRUST MY GRANDSON KEPT YOU FROM BEING BORED!
THAT REMINDS ME, GRANNY—I HAVE A CONFESSION TO MAKE—AS WOMAN TO WOMAN!
CONFESSION?
IT'S ABOUT A FRIEND OF MINE—STEVE ROPER—IN WASHINGTON!
A FRIEND IN WASHINGTON? WELL! MY SUSPICIONS OF THIS PRETTY PIGEON WERE WELL FOUNDED!
GO ON, DEARIE!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

SEE, KING, IT DOESN'T LOOK LIKE THERE'S BEEN ANY SHOOTING HERE AT BACHE'S CABIN!
NO, BUT THERE'S SOMETHING CURIOUS ABOUT THIS QUIET, KID!
HEY, HALF-HAND! LOOK, COMING UP THE HILL! THE MOUNTIE!
WELL, DON'T JUST STAND THERE, GUILL! GET HUNTER BACHE'S BODY OUT OF SIGHT!
IT'S NO USE! KING'S AT THE DOOR NOW! WE'RE CAUGHT RED-HANDED!
OH, YEAH? WELL, I DON'T MIND KILLING A FEW MORE. GO ON, UNLATCH TH' DOOR!
HMM—THAT'S GUILL'S VOICE—APPARENTLY THERE'S NOTHING WRONG HERE, KID!

DONALD DUCK — Is His Face Flushed! — BY WALT DISNEY

UNCA DONALD
PIPE DOWN! I KNOW HOW TO WASH A CAR!
THERE! IS THERE ANYTHING WRONG WITH THAT JOB?
NO, IT'S FINE! BUT WOULDN'T IT HAVE BEEN BETTER...
...IF YOU'D SHUT THE WINDOWS?
